18 LIVES LOST

Miners Were Killed by Explosion

Near Amsterdam, Ohio

STUBENVILLE, O., April 22.—Eighteen of a night force of twenty-five machine men employed in the mine of the Youngsberry & Ohio Coal Co. near Amsterdam are thought to be dead as a result of an explosion in the mine late last night. So far six bodies have been recovered. Seven were taken from the shaft alive but in an unconscious condition. Twelve men are still in the mine and there is a general belief that they have perished. Rescue parties began work a few minutes after the explosion. About 200 men are employed in the mine during the daytime. They quit work between three and four o'clock each evening. The machine men work nights preparing the work for the day shift. It is thought that the explosion was caused by coal gas being ignited by the lights on the helmets of the miners.

MANY KILLED

Chinese of Hunan Threaten to Put Foreigners to Death

HANKOW, China, April 22.—The situation in Hunan province is reported as critical. Women and children are fleeing for their lives from Changsha, the capital. A number of villages near the city have been reduced to ashes by native mobs. The country is peppered with threats to kill all foreigners. This disquieting news was brought by missionary refugees who arrived here from Changsha and nearby missionary stations at 10 a. m. today. Many of them had traveled 30 miles on foot and reached the Yang Tse Kiang river in rags. Their houses had been burned and they lost all of their personal effects. The missionaries stated that gunboats in the river have their guns trained upon Changsha and nearby points and have afforded a refuge for many foreigners. Three thousand Chinese imperial soldiers are occupying the strategic points of the capital and detachments are being hurried to the outlying districts where rioting is reported. Many Chinese have been killed. In one instance a technical school was set afire and 30 students were burned to death. When vessels approached Changsha to rescue the imperiled ones the Chinese mob saturated junks with kerosene oil from the looted stations of the Standard Oil Co. and, setting them afire, allowed them to float down stream in an attempt to fire the oncoming steamers. The viceroys of Hunan province and the governor of Changsha assert that they have the situation in hand and that order is practically restored, but the missionaries say that they fear further outrages. The telegraph wires to the westward of the disturbed districts have been cut. Many missionaries, American, French and Norwegian, remain at outlying points. The British consul at Changsha, who has arrived here, said today: "If one foreigner had been killed a massacre probably would have followed. The British consulate was burned because I employed laborers from another province in the construction of new buildings." The monetary loss to foreign interests is believed not to have been great. The Standard Oil Co. has lost a few thousand cans of oil.

FOR COUNSEL FEES

Lawyer Sues City of Malden for $10,000

Remainder of a $25,000 Counsel Fee That He Alleges is Still Due Him—Verdict of $172.20 for Plaintiff in Case of Sullivan vs. Inhabitants of Pepperell

The jury in the case of Sullivan vs. the inhabitants of Pepperell to recover land damages returned a verdict of $172.20 for the plaintiff this morning. The case of Charles R. Elder of Malden vs. City of Malden to recover $10,000 for legal services rendered the city of Malden, was opened shortly before adjournment last evening and took the entire session today, all jury-men not empaneled on this case being excused until Monday. The plaintiff, Mr. Elder, is a former city solicitor of Malden but the case is an action of contract to recover the balance which the plaintiff alleges is due him for professional services when not city solicitor, rendered in the city's suit against the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which resulted from the taking of Spot pond—the source of the water supply of Malden, Melrose and Medford—when the new Metropolitan Water System was established, by act of the legislature. Mr. Elder claims that he is an expert on water systems, and that his services for the city were unique. Judgment was entered against the Commonwealth, in the sum of $279,584.72, a much larger sum than the city at first was willing to accept. Mr. Elder claims that this was due to his expert services, and the large amount of research which he put into the case; and he considers that he was entitled to receive $25,000. He was paid $15,000, and now seeks to recover the remainder, with interest. Mr. Elder's case has been heard by an auditor, who decided in his favor, finding that the claim of $25,000 made by Mr. Elder was a reasonable one for the services rendered. The auditor found that the case was unique, that it involved many questions of law, some of which were extremely complicated, and many questions of fact more or less involved. Also, that the whole history of Spot pond had to be looked up, from the time of its discovery in 1631; and that all legislative enactments relating to water systems had to be looked up by the counsel. He found that Mr. Elder spent 252 days of five hours each, in working on the case, preparing it for trial, and in the trial. The city claims that it did not employ Mr. Elder as an expert and that it was not known in Malden that he was an expert on water cases. He was known as a hard worker, and was employed by an act of the city council, authorizing the mayor to employ additional counsel. That he was not employed to assume the whole responsibility of the case, but to assist the city solicitor. That prior to his employment there had been several counsel in the case. Also that the work of preparing the case had been subdivided, between counsel for the three cities. John C. Burke of this city conducts the case for the plaintiff and H. L. Bonwell and F. P. Miller for the defendant. The session was taken up with the reading and discussion of the auditor's report in the case.

DEATHS

RETAIL CLERKS

Of Local Stores Want Thursday Half Holiday

The retail clerks of this city want the Thursday half-holiday, expression to that effect having been made at the monster mass meeting held in Harrington hall in Central street last night. There were over 400 of the clerks in attendance and the meeting proved to be an enthusiastic one. The first matter of business taken up was relative to the closing of the stores on Thursday afternoons and the members were unanimously in favor of closing on that day. It was voted that a committee of ten be appointed to interview the merchants and petition them for a half-holiday on Thursday afternoons. The committee which was appointed consists of an employee from each of the following stores: Putnam Clothing Co., Hon. Marche Dry Goods Co., Tailor Clothing Co., Cook & Taylor, O'Brien's, O'Donnell's, A. G. Pollard Co., MacCartney's, Colonial Store and Chaffin's.

While the matter of earlier evening closing was taken up, it met with rather cool reception, and when the sentiment was expressed, "Thursday afternoon or nothing," it was received with such enthusiasm as to show without the shadow of a doubt how the clerks feel in this matter. At the next meeting the matter of forming a union will be taken up and after the business meeting a short social time will be enjoyed.

TREADWAY'S VOTE

Killed the 54 Hour Bill in the Senate Yesterday

BOSTON, April 22.—President Treadway of the senate killed the 54-hour bill for women and minors in mercantile and manufacturing establishments yesterday by casting the vote which created a tie.

The record stood 18 to 17, with every member of the body recorded but Senator Turtle of Pittsfield. Senator Keith of Bridgeport was paired with Senator Spaulding of Cambridge, and Sen. Parker, who was sitting beside President Treadway, was requested to ask the Pittsfield member if he would not vote.

Senator Turtle, who was in his seat, refused to do so. The president, who could note the refusal from his place on the rostrum, at once requested Clerk Colbridge to "call the name of the president of the honorable senate."

It was called and President Treadway answered "No," making the vote 18 to 18 and killing the measure as effectively as if a majority had been shown against it. Senator Ross immediately gave notice that he would move reconsideration this afternoon, and the matter went into the orders of the day.

If you have sore feet, tired feet, sweaty feet, lame feet, tender feet, red feet, corns, calluses or bunions, read what happened to Mrs. Crockett, of Jeffersonville, TIZ DID IT. Mrs. Crockett says: "After the second treatment she walked downstairs and up stairs at a time. She was not able to walk downstairs before to pass five years, except by stepping down on each step with one foot at a time. TIZ cured her. It acts right off. It cures sore feet to any extent. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. You will feel better the first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget your ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. WORCESTER MEN

Say They Have Perfected Flying Machine

WORCESTER, April 22.—Something of a surprise was handed out to Supt. of Public Buildings Halcott when he asked the nature of the structure which Alphonse J. Dube and his brother Vincent Dube asked permission to build.

"I want a building permit for a garage," said Dube.

"Going to have a new place to store the auto in?" asked Supt. Halcott inquiringly.

"This is an aeroplane garage," answered Dube but it might do for an auto on a pinch.

As soon as Mr. Halcott recovered from the shock he dragged out his permit blank and filled out his first flying garage permit.

"I suppose I might just as well start issuing these permits now," he said, "for they are bound to come sooner or later."

The Dube brothers have been experimenting in airships for some time and claim that they now have a perfected flying machine.

SHOT IN HEAD

Doctors Expect to Save Man's Life

PROVIDENCE, April 22.—Department Foreman Eugene Royce of the American screw company underwent an x-ray operation at the hospital last night in an effort to extract a bullet from his head. His condition was serious when he was taken to the surgeon's table and with heroic treatment the doctors expect to save his life.

Royce resides at 11 Belauder street and in some mysterious manner he was shot, and the police are unable to obtain any sort of a satisfactory statement from the occupants of the house where Royce lived and where the shooting took place. The bullet entered the head near the jaw. Royce is 62 years old and he is one of the best-known residents of the North End.

JOHN A. MCKENNA MEN INVOLVED IN COTTON POOL, ATTORNEY Resigns as Secretary of Board of Trade GENERAL AND SENATORS DEMANDING PROBE

John A. McKenna, for the past four years the efficient and courteous secretary of the Lowell board of trade, has resigned his position to become sales manager of a well known manufacturing concern located in this city.

The resignation was received by the executive committee on Monday and is to take effect on April 20. Mr. McKenna, however, has consented to remain in office after that date if the board by that time has not found a successor to his place.

Mr. McKenna's resignation was a complete surprise to the members of the board and was received with general regret. He has worked untiringly for the advancement of the board's interests and it was mainly through his efforts that the membership of the organization has increased from 22 to 700 in the past four years.

President Harvey B. Greene when apprised of Mr. McKenna's resignation, said: "We are very sorry to lose Mr. McKenna. He has made a most able secretary of the board, has worked unceasingly for its advancement, and has the highest respect and friendship of every member of the organization."

Mr. Greene stated that the executive committee of the board would meet in the near future to take action upon Mr. McKenna's resignation. He also stated that it might be some little time before a new secretary was chosen.

FRANK M. BELL

Presented Memorial by
T. & L. Council

Frank M. Bell, retiring secretary of the Trades and Labor council was last evening presented a handsome memorial, inscribed with the resolutions of regret and the appreciation of his services, passed by the Trades and Labor council upon receiving his resignation.

The presentation took place in the hall at 32 Middle street, in the presence of every member of the council, the presentation being by President Thomas J. Reagan of the council. Mr. Bell, who was taken entirely by surprise, had difficulty in responding.

The memorial is signed by Thomas J. Reagan, Charles E. Anderson and M. A. Lee, and subscribes to the excellence of Mr. Bell's work as secretary, his untiring efforts in behalf of the council, the appreciation of his worth by the council, and the regret of that body at his retirement from office. It is framed and ready for hanging.

NEW YORK, April 22.—With some $18,000,000 in cash at his command and plenty of credit from Chicago banks, James A. Patten is in the midst of a fight against the bears in a cotton pool.

While Patten is leading the bulls in their struggle for profits and higher prices his greatest trouble is coming when Attorney General Wickensham, backed up by Senator Bacon of Georgia, Senator Overman of North Carolina and Senator Simmons of the same state, lays the matter before the courts.

Patten declares he is not running a pool, but is buying and paying for all cotton offered him. But that a pool does exist and that other failures are due to follow the failure of Knight, Yancey & Co., one of the largest "spot" houses in the country, is the statement credited to government officials. Attorney General Wickensham has gone on record as saying an illegal cotton pool exists and the government will punish the guilty members. John W. Gates is credited with being a partner of Patten, and Gates is quoted as saying the "government will have a long run before it gets him."

The investigation of the cotton pool has been carried into the United States senate, many southern senators backing Wickensham, while other senators are demanding to know why the government is taking such an active part in cotton dealings. Before the inquiry is completed sensational in the form of shattered reputations are promised in high financial and political circles.

D. A. R. CONGRESS

More Excitement is Expected Today

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Delegates to the continental congress of the national society of the Daughters of the American Revolution were again intent on their political affairs when the congress was called to order this morning. Because the election of two days previous had failed in the selection of an honorary vice-president general and one of the ten vice-presidents another day of balloting was in order. The delegates began voting early for seven nominees for vice-president general who had failed to get a majority vote on Wednesday. From these seven one more vice-president will be chosen. Those nominated for honorary vice-president general before were Mrs. Charles H. Deere of Illinois, Mrs. Sarah T. Kinney of Connecticut, and Mrs. Althea Dedle of New Jersey. None received a majority in the voting Wednesday. After the reception to the delegates last night by Mrs. Matthew Scott, the president general, many of the members busily engaged themselves in electioneering to secure an election today of the necessary two to complete the personnel of officials.

While the ballots were being counted reports of committee and state regents were heard.

This afternoon in Continental hall an entertainment for the children of the American revolution will be held.

BOY DROWNED

Little Lad Was Gathering Pussy Willows

Edgar Decelle, aged eight years, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Decelle of 1163 Lakeview avenue, Dracut, was drowned shortly before five o'clock yesterday afternoon in Beaver brook at a point near the Parker avenue bridge in the Navy Yard section.

The boy was gathering pussy willows and had climbed into a willow tree whose branches extend for some little distance over the water. One of the limbs onto which he was holding for support gave way and he was precipitated into the water. Yvonne, the little sister of the drowned boy, who was watching her brother screamed for help, but her cries and those of the victim failed to bring assistance in time. Those attracted to the scene made every effort to recover the body but this did not meet with any success and it was nearly 7 o'clock when undertaker Albert dragged the little victim's body from the water after searching for only a short time.

The deceased is survived by his parents, besides three brothers, Harry, Walter and George and two sisters, Yvonne and Laura.

NORTH BILLERICA

An excellent concert was held last night in the North Billerica Baptist church. The attendance was large and the program which was varied and well carried out greatly pleased the audience. Those who took part in the program were: Herbert Mallinson, violinist of Maynard; Mrs. Lillian Dodge Haskell, reader; Mrs. Nettie L. Roberts, vocalist of Lowell; Miss Ella M. Kelly and Miss Linda Perry with a piano and organ duet. A chorus of 25 voices under the direction of Miss Minnie Clifford rendered several pleasing numbers and a short organ recital which included a series of classical selections was given by Miss Kelly, the church organist.

Valuable Advice to Sufferers From Skin Diseases.

Under no circumstances should medicated or plain soap or any preparation containing alcohol or water, be used by sufferers from eczema and similar skin troubles. These things aggravate the trouble and make it impossible for the skin to heal. The new medical compound called Cadum is the best and surest remedy, as it contains neither water nor alcohol. When applied, it excludes the air and other irritating agents, stops the itching at once, and sets up the healing process immediately. Most wonderful cures are reported from all sections. Cadum is just as effective in the treatment of psoriasis, ringworm, pimples, blotches, rash, eruptions, chafing, itching piles, rough, scaly skin, sores, acne, herpes, etc. 10c and 25c. First Time In My History

I had to stop taking orders for Patriots' day delivery early last week. It was simply and utterly impossible for me to turn out the unexpected volume of work on time. As money could not buy additional skilled labor at this season of the year I could not accept the orders, so I let many a man out of my store to get a suit elsewhere.

With double the facilities that always proved adequate to my growing trade this is the first time in my career that I could not take all the business that came my way.

Think a moment. I do not attract people by pretentious stories. I don't go in for fancy furniture and swell fixtures. I'd rather put the money into the woollens. Advertising helps me, but is not my whole success. All the advertising from now till the crack of doom could not bolster an unworthy success long enough to pay the printer. It's the values, man, it's the pleased customer, it's the good word passed along from Jim to Jack, from Jack to Joe and so on.

Hockanum Worsteds

I pulled off a stunt last week that I admit I can't always duplicate. It isn't given to any one man in business to always accomplish the wonderful things that are wonderful because they are seldom. Today I can talk big—I've got the goods. I've got for you and your neighbors the famous

ROYAL WELCOME

Theatre Audience in Paris Went Wild Over Roosevelt

PARIS, April 22.—No reigning sovereign ever received a more enthusiastic welcome to Paris than did Theodore Roosevelt, the former president of the United States, yesterday. He reached here at half past seven o'clock yesterday morning and was greeted by the representatives of the president of the republic and the cabinet, American Ambassador Bacon; M. Jusserand, the French ambassador at Washington, and a great concourse of people, which the cordon of troops surrounding the railway station had difficulty in holding in check.

After luncheon at the American embassy, Col. Roosevelt called upon President Fallieres and Foreign Minister Pinchon, who immediately afterwards paid return visits to the embassy. Part of the afternoon was devoted to private engagements.

Mr. Roosevelt was given an ovation at the Comedie Francaise last evening, where he made his real public appearance in Paris, occupying the presidential box which had been placed at his disposal by M. Fallieres.

Anticipating his coming, every seat and every box seat in the theatre had been sold days in advance, the audience being an exceptionally brilliant one. When Col. Roosevelt entered the theatre between acts, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel, Kermit, Jules, Claretie, director of the theatre, and Ambassador and Mrs. Bacon, the house literally rose to its feet, volleys of applause bursting from the boxes, pit and gallery. For a full minute the colonel made no response, but as the demonstration continued he came forward and bowed his acknowledgments.

The bill was Sophocles' Greek tragedy, Oedipus Rex, staged and acted as only possible at a French national theatre, and Mr. Roosevelt seemed to enjoy it hugely, joining with the audience in the applause. At the end of each act, when Mounet-Sully, who played the title role, and the other performers responded, they advanced as customary when royalty is present, bowing profoundly in the direction of the ex-president before turning to the audience. This seemed only to give additional pleasure to the audience, which in turn each time gave a fresh round of applause for Mr. Roosevelt.

During one of the intermissions Jules Claretie, director of the theatre, conducted the party through the magnificent foyer, pointing out the statues, portraits and relics of actors and actresses once connected with the history of the famous house. As the party left the building at the close of the performance, rounds of cheers were given by the crowds outside.

The Times last night fairly reflected the tone of the entire French press, declaring that Mr. Roosevelt's tour of Europe is unparalleled in history.

"No democratic chief of state," says the paper, "ever before enjoyed such popularity. We are accustomed to formal visits of kings and presidents, but Roosevelt is no longer president. It is the man, therefore, not the office, which is being honored. It is his vigor, his personality, his character, ideas and temperament, which appeal to European opinion."

After reviewing his career, the Times concludes:

"Few are more worthy of the esteem of the democracy, for he represents at the same time liberty and authority—these two antitheses which republicans are conscious of their duty and solicitude of the future, are everywhere trying to harness together."

All of the newspapers are particularly warm in their words of welcome and the sentiment of Parisians generally is shown in the abundant display of American flags and bunting on private residences, shops and public buildings.

Mr. Roosevelt said last night that he expected to enjoy his stay in Paris, particularly where he was acquainted, either personally or through correspondence with a host of interesting personalities in the literary, scientific, artistic and political world. At his request Ambassador Bacon managed to restrict the number of official functions as much as possible, to allow him to meet and exchange views with eminent Frenchmen, in whose ideas he is greatly interested.

Yesterday afternoon Col. Roosevelt slipped away for two hours to pay visits to President Loubet and the sister of the late Edward Simmons, the American artist, for whose work the ex-president has a high regard.

Saturday will be devoted to a reception by the French Immortals and the university. Col. Roosevelt delivering his lecture at the Sorbonne on that day, and the American ambassador has arranged for a reception on Tuesday night, to which only Frenchmen distinguished in arts and letters have been invited. Arrangements also have been made for the ex-president to meet Leon Bourgeois, the ex-minister of foreign affairs, Jean Louis Renault and Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, the leaders of the French arbitration and peace movements. Among other engagements made by Col. Roosevelt is a dinner with Edith Wharton, the writer.

Jules Cambon, whom Mr. Roosevelt knew well in Washington, will come from Berlin today to be present at the dinner of President Fallieres. M. Clemenceau, the former premier, has also been invited, but he is ill at Karlshof and has been obliged to decline.

The lecture at the Sorbonne on Saturday, which the entire cabinet will attend. It is understood, will be a very vigorous document. It was written a year and a half ago and deals with the duties of citizenship. Col. Roosevelt said yesterday that he looked to find his greatest pleasure in appearing before one of the oldest universities in the world. When informed that 900 students had been selected who understood English, he replied laughingly: "I should like to speak to them in French, but I have too much regard for my auditors."

It is understood that both the English and French lectures, as well as that at the Sorbonne, were written in America, the only product of his African labors being the Nobel prize address to be delivered at Christiania.

During the course of the day more than 500 cards were left at the American embassy, where Mr. Roosevelt and his family will be guests during their stay here.

Today will be spent in sightseeing. In the afternoon there will be a luncheon and reception to the American colony at the American embassy, and in the evening President Fallieres will have Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt as guests at dinner and a reception at Elysee palace.

five per cent either way is allowable under the rules of the state comptroller's office, and granting the full allowance is asked for in the final accounting, the estate would be worth but $35,910,000.

At the time of the panic of 1907, Rogers had been obliged to dispose of securities at a loss and the statement that he left only one-third of the fortune he was supposed to possess is cited as giving color to the truth of these assertions.

"FATHER'S NIGHT" OBSERVED AT THE FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

"Father's Night" was observed on Wednesday night by the members of the Maternal association at the First Congregational church. The gathering was a very pleasant one, the president of the organization, Mrs. M. J. Boynton, welcoming the guests in a most cordial manner.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Mr. Wedge of the Baptist church. Many interesting, entertaining, applicable suggestions were made in the course of the address which were approved by his hearers, as evidenced by frequent applause.

A pleasing musical program, consisting of piano solos by Miss Murphy and vocal solos by Mrs. Stella Wilson, contributed to the enjoyment of the evening.

The hostesses of the evening were Mrs. Robert S. Fulton and Mrs. John

E. Lewis, who were ably assisted by the following members:

Reception committee: Mrs. Boynton, president; Mrs. Fulton, vice president; Mrs. Charles E. Robinson, secretary; Mrs. John E. Lewis, Mrs. Otis W. Butler, and Mrs. Edward F. Carley, treasurer.

Prior to an hour of sociability, a most appetizing chafing dish luncheon was daintily served by Mrs. John E. Lewis, Mrs. Otis W. Butler, Mrs. Arthur Bartlett, Mrs. Frank Hoyt, Mrs. Walter Hoyt and Mrs. Charles E. Robinson. Mrs. John A. Osgood poured.

MARK TWAIN DEAD

The Noted Humorist Passed Away at Redding, Conn.

REDDING, Conn., April 22.—Samuel Langhorne Clemens, "Mark Twain," died peacefully at his home here at 6.30 o'clock last night of angina pectoris, after a long illness which began yesterday afternoon and never recovered consciousness. It was the end of a man worn out by grief and agony of body.

Wednesday was a bad day for the little knot of anxious watchers at the bedside. For hours the gray, aquiline features lay motionless in the inertia of death, while the pulse sank lower and lower, but late at night Mark Twain passed from stupor into the first natural sleep he had known since he returned from Bermuda, and yesterday morning woke refreshed, even faintly cheerful, and in full possession of all his faculties. He recognized his daughter Clara, Mrs. Ossip Gabrieltowitch, spoke a word or two, and, feeling himself unequal to conversation, wrote out in pencil: "Give me my glasses."

They were his last words. Laying them aside he sank first into reverie and later into final unconsciousness. There was no thought at the time, however, that the end was so near. At 6 o'clock, Dr. Robert Halsey, who had been continuously in attendance, said: "Mr. Clemens is not so strong at this hour as he was at the corresponding hour yesterday, but he has wonderful vitality and he may rally again. Albert Bigelow Paine, Mark Twain's biographer and literary executor, said to a caller who desired to inquire for Mr. Clemens: "I do not think you will have to call often."

Relatives Not Received

Nevertheless, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Loomis, who had come up from New York to give their love in person, left. Stormfield, Mr. Clemens' house, without seeing him, and heard of his death just as they were taking the train to New York again.

Mrs. Loomis was Mr. Clemens' favorite niece, and Mr. Loomis is vice-president of the Lackawanna railroad. Similarly, Jarvis Langdon, a nephew, who had run up for the day, left even earlier, and wholly uninforming. At the death bed were only Mrs. Gabrieltowitch (Clara Clemens), her husband, Dr. Robert Halsey, Dr. Quintard, Albert Bigelow Paine, and the two trained nurses.

Restoratives were administered, but the patient failed to respond. Oxygen was tried Wednesday, and the physicians explained that it was of no value because the valvular action of the heart was not disordered. There was only an extreme and increasing debility, accompanied by labored respiration. Although angina pectoris is characterized by severe pain and deep depression of spirits, Mark Twain died in anguish. Sedatives soothed his pain, but in his moments of consciousness the mental depression persisted. On the way up from Bermuda he said to Mr. Paine, who had been his constant companion in illness: "This is a bad job; we'll never pull through with it."

On shore once more, and longing for the serenity of the New England hills, he took courage and said to unexpected, the announcement of Mr. Clemens' death is startling. The news will cause universal sorrow, because the world has lost not only a genius but a man of striking character, of influence and of boundless resources. His place can never be taken by another. "FALSE REPORT" Is the Charge Against Police Inspector

NEW YORK, April 22.—Police Inspector Hussey is in serious trouble with Mayor Gaynor and will probably stand trial in the near future, as the result of making a report which the mayor believes to "have been false and without warrant."

Louis Bowsky, of No. 436 West One Hundred and Sixteenth street, on March 13 wrote Mayor Gaynor a letter protesting that the police were interfering with boys selling flowers at the subway station in Broadway and One Hundred and Sixteenth street, while they allowed vendors of vegetables and newspapers to go unmolested.

Instead of investigating this complaint from his own office, as was his custom, the mayor sent the complaint to Police Commissioner Baker, asking him to look into it. Baker turned the letter over to Inspector Hussey, calling for an investigation. In due time Hussey sent a report to Baker saying that Bowsky denied ever having written the letter to the mayor and that the complaint was entirely unfounded.

Baker forwarded this report to Mayor Gaynor, who then took the matter into his own hand and asked William B. Meloney, his executive secretary, to make an investigation. As a result of the mayor's inquiry, Bowsky yesterday appeared at the mayor's office, where he swore to an affidavit setting forth that the original letter of complaint was in his own hand, and that no police official ever saw him, and that he never made any statement to Inspector Hussey or any other official or citizen purporting to represent him, and that the police were still persecuting the boys attempting to sell flowers at Broadway and One Hundred and Sixteenth street.

The mayor last night sent this affidavit by Hawley to Commissioner Baker, attached to Hussey's report, declaring that Bowsky had repudiated his letter. The mayor demanded an immediate explanation of Hussey's "false report," and intimated that unless Hussey could make the matter right the first thing today he would be placed on trial in a day or so and dismissed for submitting a false report to the mayor.

This action by the mayor alarmed the police department thoroughly last night as soon as the action in Hussey's case became known, for it was understood on excellent authority that the mayor had trumped at least three other inspectors in a similar manner and would proceed against them as soon as Hussey's case was disposed of.

CLEMENS' HOME MAY BE PURCHASED BY THE STATE

HANNIBAL, Mo., April 22.—The news of the death of Samuel L. Clemens was received with profound sorrow in Hannibal, his boyhood home. Many of the characters in his earlier works are still living here.

All business places and city offices will be closed on the day of the funeral and memorial services will be held at the same hour as the services in the east.

A lengthy telegram of condolence was sent to Mrs. Gabrieltowitch urging that the body be buried here, in the same lot with his father, mother and brothers.

A movement has been started to have Clemens' boyhood home purchased by the state and it is said State Senator McAllister said this a bill to this effect would be introduced in the next legislature.

"HUCKLEBERRY FINN" WEPT

PARIS, Mo., April 22.—B. C. M. (Harvey) Parthing, the original of "Huckleberry Finn," wept when he heard of Mark Twain's death. "The old days are passing," he said. "From the long sweep of the majestic Mississippi river seems to have dwindled. The noise of its traffic and the music of its deep-throated whistles are practically no more. The man who put into words for the delight of the world the pictures of the great river, is dead."

COL. ROOSEVELT PAINED TO HEAR OF MARK TWAIN'S DEATH

PARIS, April 22.—Former President Roosevelt was greatly pained to hear of the death of Mark Twain. He said: "It is with sincere grief that I learned of the death of that great American author. His position, that of Joel Chandler Harris, was unique, not only in American letters but in the literatures of the world. He was not only a great humorist but a great philosopher, and his writings form one of the assets in America's contributions to the world of literature of which we have a right as a nation to be genuinely proud."

In the pigskin library which Mr. Roosevelt carried through the jungles of Africa were two of the late author's books, "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer," and Mr. Roosevelt says that he read both of them several times and always with the greatest interest.

GRAND CANYON

Able Lecture by Chas. F. J. McHugh

BEFORE KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS LAST EVENING

Noted Speakers Secured For Council's Banquet on Next Tuesday Evening in Council Rooms

"The Grand Canyon of Colorado," was the theme of an interesting lecture before the members of Lowell Council, Knights of Columbus last evening. The lecturer was Mr. Charles F. McHugh of Cambridge, an eloquent speaker who described the scenes amid the massive gorge most eloquently. The talk was made doubly interesting from the fact that 100 vari-colored views of the canyon region were displayed on the screen. Mr. McHugh visited the canyon district one year ago, and he declared that the place was indescribably beautiful, well worth a trip. During the evening an entertainment program was presented, the feature of which were selections by the Pocomantas Mandolin club, under the direction of Wm. P. Hovey. They gave several popular medleys that brought forth tremendous applause. The members of the club are as follows: Violins, George Nelson, Edw. P. Slattery, Jr., Herbert Wisby, William Wiggins; mandolins, Charles Thiller, Edmund Frisy, Donald Kierby, Henry Brown, and James Rooney; guitars, Albion Phil, Fred Rolfe, Charles Bell, Donald Whitney, John Down and Barry Putnam. Solos were rendered by Andrew McCarthy and James E. Donnelly. Both gentlemen responded to accolades. After the entertainment a buffet-luncheon was served. Dr. Thomas P. Carroll was speaker during the evening. The affair was in charge of Mr. John H. Murphy, lecturer of the council, who has demonstrated since assuming the position that he is the right man in the right place. Mr. Murphy has other entertainments arranged for the members.

K. of C. Banquet

The annual banquet of Lowell Council, Knights of Columbus, will be held Tuesday evening next, and promises to be a brilliant affair. At the grand banquets exercises Dr. James J. Walsh of Fordham university, an eloquent speaker and author of note, will be the principal speaker. Dr. Walsh is regarded as in the forefront of Catholic educators, and this week delivered a lecture in Boston in aid of the new

POLICE CAPTAIN

Says He Was Offered $50 Bribe

NEW YORK, April 22.—Assistant District Attorney Robert Elder, of Kings county; Deputy Police Commissioner Reynolds, in charge of Brooklyn, and Captain Samuel McElroy, of the Hamilton avenue police station, Brooklyn, are congratulating themselves on the clever manner in which they trapped a man who, they allege, attempted to bribe Captain McElroy. The man, who gave the name of Michael M. Armbramp, a barber, of 33 Carroll street, was arrested yesterday afternoon in front of the county courthouse, in Brooklyn, by Lieutenants Van Wagener and Murphy, and later was held in $2000 bail in Adams street court. He was locked up in Raymond street jail.

Several days ago, shortly after Captain McElroy was placed in command of the Hamilton avenue station, Armbramp approached Captain McElroy, the police say, and offered him $50 to refrain from raiding the premises of Frank Colma, at 3 Carroll street, which has been raided a dozen times.

The captain told the man he would consider the offer, and then took the matter to Deputy Commissioner Reynolds. Reynolds called in Elder.

"Why, I know this man," exclaimed Elder. "He is known as Mike the Fixer. This time we'll fix him."

Reynolds and Elder instructed the captain to make an appointment with Armbramp at the captain's home, 291 Sterling place, for the purpose of receiving the money. On Tuesday night the prisoner called at McElroy's home, the captain says, and tendered him the money. The captain was not the only one who saw him hand it over.

YONKERS DOCTOR

NEW YORK, April 22.—After a race of four miles against time, Dr. William Klein, of St. Joseph's hospital, Yonkers, probably saved Peter Clowry, thirty-four, of No. 37 St. Joseph's avenue, Yonkers, at the Webster avenue car barns of the Yonkers Railroad company, last night.

Clowry, a machinist at the car barns, after leaving for the night, had attempted to board the front platform of a Yonkers bound car. He slipped and his foot caught in the step. The motorist saw what had happened and stopped the car.

One of Clowry's feet was almost severed and his head and body were badly bruised, and Clowry had lost much blood. No medical aid was procurable in the vicinity, but a telephone message brought Dr. Klein.

MILK PRODUCERS

Plan a Milkless Day for Boston on May 1

BOSTON, April 22.—If the plans of the Boston Co-Operative Milk Producers' association do not miscarry, Boston will have a milkless May 1.

Reports show that the farmers all over New England are being organized, and are agreeing to withdraw their milk from the Boston market after April 30, when the winter price agreements with the group of contractors who control the milk of New England expire, in order to prevent the reduction usual every summer and force a retention of the winter rates throughout the whole year.

The indications seem to be that the farmer is preparing to rise in his might as he has never risen before.

"This will be the greatest withholding of milk from the Boston market that New England has ever seen," Jonas Bemis of Charlestown, secretary of the Boston Co-Operative Milk Producers' association, said tonight. "We'll have Boston so dry May 1 that her people will have to drink the sea water."

If this withdrawal goes through, as it will unless the contractors grant the farmers' demands—and their attitude now and in the past makes it almost certain that they will not—much of the milk supplies that will be withdrawn will never be again available for Boston. We gave the contractors a chance to get in line with us and they refused to grant our requests.

The farmer has been pushed to the wall and you know in that position gets desperate. The farmer has rights in this matter and he is going to see at this time if he can't get them. He has gone to the legislature and the legislature has done nothing for him.

Now he's going to see what he can do for himself.

"At the prices the contractors want to pay, the farmer cannot make a profit on his milk. Living has advanced, the cost of grain and the increased wages for help have made fat his expense. If he can't make money selling milk, perhaps he can make it making butter and utilizing his skim milk in various ways."

Three or four firms control practically all of the milk sold in New England, aside from that sold in or near their home towns by small producers. These men have divided the New England states into 10 zones that radiate from Boston. As these zones, each 20 miles wide, recede from Boston, the price paid the producer in each arbitrarily marked territory is automatically reduced one cent per can of eight and a half quarts. This is on account of transportation charges, which the farmer, consequently, has to pay in a ratio with his distance from the Hub.

TO WITHDRAW MILK SUPPLY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 22.—Word was received here last night that 100 farmers, who supply milk to the Providence branch of a large Boston milk concern, last night gathered at Chestnut Hill, Conn., and voted to withdraw their milk from the Providence market unless the winter prices are maintained in the summer schedules. A branch of the Boston Co-Operative Milk Producers association was organized with Nathan Manning of Lebanon, Conn., president, and L. M. Lord of Chestnut Hill, secretary and treasurer. A nucleus for a campaign fund was secured.

romantic association. In 1812 Louis Philippe, an exile deposed from the throne of France, found refuge in the home of Bishop B. J. Plagel in Bardonia. He had met the prelate while traveling in Cuba. To show his appreciation of the bishop's hospitality, Philippe sent seven paintings to St. Joseph's church in this Kentucky hamlet. They are from the brushes of the oil masters and still hang in the little house of worship.

There are also some paintings in this church which were presented by the Boone family. In the run to Bowling Green, from Louisville over the old Louisville and Nashville pike, the party in the pathfinder stumbled upon a vivid reminder of the fact that Abraham Lincoln was a native of Kentucky. There is near Buffalo, Ky., a splendid park filled with monuments of the great president, and called the Lincoln memorial farm. These in search of Lincoln more make pilgrimages to this farm. On Knob Creek, just on the border of the village of Athertonville, is a cabin, 14 by 20 feet, built of hewn logs. It is the most remote building of the great Lincoln farm. In this structure, Lincoln attended school and there are irrefutable evidences to prove that the shack's claim to distinction is authentic. The building is now used as a manse and so far as the owner of the farm knows, it was never photographed until Wm. A. Krohn, the official photographer with the Glidden pathfinder, snapped it.

The clay clinking has long since fallen away from the square timbers, which retain the scars of a broadaxe swung by some pioneer builder. The roof of tanned paper is a jarring note and yet as one stands in the little gulley surrounded by the ridges which have witnessed cultivation up to the present time, one unconsciously pictures an ungainly, tumbled headed lad peering through the chink hole at the blue sky where there floated the angelic of turkey buzzards that circled on motionless wings as the pathfinders gazed upon the tumble down shed.

It was but a few rods from this school on the Rolling Fork of Salt river that Lincoln embarked on a flat boat to leave Kentucky in 1811. A Lincoln story with a startling point, yet containing a touch of interest was gleaned from a grizzled matter by the crew of the pathfinder car in passing through this region. The inhabitants all speak of Lincoln as though he had been an intimate friend. His memory is worshipped and a few patriots who knew him are venerated solely on that account. "L'il Abe had a right smart hair on him," said the oldest inhabitant. "Ol' Ambrose Riney gave thuh boys in thuh school house thuh learnin' an, mind ye, he never forgot thuh manners. Exhuh boys had pass Masah Riney an' nuke a powerfu' booby, smelt off thuh teeth and bendin' low. Wal, me, as went to school with Abe told me, an' it's true as God's above, Abe had to borah a cap each day to make his bow. Yes, sub, he didn't have no cap he was thuh down poah."

GLIDDEN TOUR

Some Great Attractions to be Seen

One of the great attractions of the 1910 Glidden tour from the tourists' point of view will be the historical interest attaching to the various towns in Kentucky and Tennessee. The Gliddenites will travel through much of the civil war territory and through some of the oldest country in the Union. The official pathfinding party has found the people in this territory hospitable and intensely interested in the automobile. They are always willing—in fact, proud—to relate the historical anecdotes of their localities.

Bardstown, a typical Kentucky village, strung out along the old Louisville and Nashville pike, was found by the pathfinding party as intensely interesting a spot as any along the route. There are a few distilleries, a court house and some private residences in Bardstown which causes the beholder to think that he is gazing upon a vision born of too many mint juleps. In this respect Bardstown is by no means in a class by itself.

My Old Kentucky Home, the Judge Rowan's plantation, on the border of the town, Stephen Foster, an invalid, who was the judge's guest one summer in the old days, had a restless night. Looking over the tall ridges from the window of his room, he felt the spell that Kentucky exercises on all who call her home. He heard their swaying of the banjos and the songs and laughter from the servants' quarters. In the morning he laid at his host's place at the table the manuscript of the song which has become as famous as any in the English language.

But Bardstown has an even more

FOR WOMEN

Easy to Stop Hair Falling Out, and Dandruff Also.

No one doubts that it is the duty of every woman to look as charming as possible. Every woman knows why she wants to be beautiful and attractive.

A woman with scant hair, dull and lifeless, has lost half her charm. How many times have we heard the expression that "the crowning glory of a woman is her hair."

Now a day's thanks to Parisian Sage, almost every woman can have hair so radiant and so glorious that it attracts, fascinates and compels unstinted admiration.

PARISIAN Sage—the scientific and ideal hair rejuvenator and tonic, will cause hair to grow. It will turn harsh, withered hair into lustrous and bewitchingly luxuriant hair. How many times have we heard the expression that "the crowning glory of a woman is her hair."

Use it also on the children's hair, if you want to keep the scalp clean and free from germs. Druggists everywhere, and Carter & Sherburne sell Parisian Sage on money back plan. A large bottle costs but 50 cents. Mail orders filled, charges prepaid, by the American Makers, the Giroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle.

Shrubs and Trees at McManmon's

Now is the time to plant shrubs and trees. We have all kinds at our nurseries in Kenwood and would be pleased to have you call and look them over. Take Lawrence car or leave your order at 6 Prescott street.

It was voted to repair the crossing at June and Twelfth streets, but the committee allowed that June street did not need any attention at this time.

The petition that Wentworth avenue and Laurel street be macadamized was referred to the next city government.

In the Plain and Loughton streets petitions, a sub-committee was appointed to investigate and make a report. The proposition to change the name of Loughton street to Harriman avenue was turned down.

A sub-committee was appointed to consider the petition to extend Shaw street from Warwick to Wilder.

petition was put up to grade. Meanwhile the petition was tabled.

The question of macadamizing Butler avenue and laying sidewalks of edgestones and cinders thereon, was brought up. On motion of Councilman Donohoe it was voted to have sidewalks laid.

"ROYAL ROOTER"

Michael J. Regan Placed Under Arrest

PROVIDENCE, April 22.—Michael J. Regan, known all along the baseball belt as "the royal rooster" from Boston, was arrested by the police at the opening game of the Eastern league here yesterday afternoon at the request of Deputy Supt. Watts of Boston. Regan is wanted in Massachusetts to answer a charge involving $12,000 in bonds of the Florida railway company, the securities being the property at one time of Harriette N. Brown of Boston.

Regan was not making much noise at the game yesterday and inspectors Ahearn and Monahan, who had been looking for him during the week, had no little difficulty in picking him out of the 10,000 other people at the Providence-Toronto contest.

Regan expressed no surprise when taken into custody. He said he knew that steps were being taken by the Boston authorities to get him back to his old stamping ground and that he had made no efforts to get away from Providence, but was about the city all the time and enjoying most of the good things of the town.

Celebrates Baseball Opening

"I've been celebrating the baseball opening a bit today," he told the inspectors, "and I'm feeling good as you can see."

Regan was jolly and then a bit cranky by spells. He finally told the inspectors that they need not ask Supt. Watts to send down an officer to take him back to Boston as a prisoner, for he would not go without extradition papers. The inspectors, however, are inclined to believe that Regan will change his mind.

Regan is held here as a prisoner on a fugitive from justice warrant, sworn out by Chief Horton, this action being taken at the instance of Supt. Watts, who wrote here on the case about a week ago. Watts said that while Regan was reported to be in Europe, he believed he was in Providence and would be on the honorary list of guests at the opening game.

100 YEARS OLD

Oldest Passamaquoddy Indian Dead

EASTPORT, Me., April 22.—The oldest member of the Passamaquoddy tribe of Indians, 100 years old, died a short time ago at the settlement. His name was Nicholas Jelsack.

There are yet a few old Indians at the village, but none as old as Nick, and the few that are now living all Pleasant point and who have reached an advanced age are confined to their homes.

REAL CHARITY

H. W. J. HOWE APPEALS FOR A WORTHY FAMILY

At the last meeting of the board of charity, Commissioner Howe made a strong appeal in behalf of a worthy family that had met with misfortune. He said this was one of many cases that had been brought to his attention and that he had investigated it personally with much care.

His rule was never to allow these cases to draw upon the resources of the department if other means of assistance could be provided. He had found that in many such cases valuable assistance might be rendered in pointing out to the needy how they can help themselves by a little effort in the right direction.

The family for which he appealed in this case had been temporarily reduced to a state of destitution by sickness. The mother had been suffering for months from diabetes. There were several children and the husband, though temperate and industrious, could not command a higher wage than $6 or $7 a week in the mill.

The family had fallen behind in the rent and were ordered out of the tenement. The mother needed special care and diet, but the husband has been unable to pay the rent or to pay the expense of moving. The landlord has waited as long as could be expected, but wants his tenement vacated. To prevent the family from being sent to the farm or from being thrown upon the street, Mr. Howe asked the board to pay the expense of moving and to be responsible for the first month's rent. The request was granted.

WOMEN'S GOLF PLAY

BOSTON, April 22.—It is a pretty stiff proposition of 72 holes medal play which the executive committee of the Women's Eastern Golf association has planned for the championship at the Huntington Valley Country club, Noble, Pa., from June 28th to the 11th.

In previous years 36 holes has been considered sufficient test, although on two occasions the play had been so close that extra holes were necessary to decide a tie.

The announcement of the meeting was made today by Miss Harriet Currier, secretary pro tem of the association. The annual meeting of the association will be held on June 9th. Gold, silver and bronze medals will go to the winners and the champion will have the honor of having her name engraved on the association cup.

Contesting Will of Aunt Who Died in Haverhill

HAVERHILL, April 22.—The supreme court will be called upon to probate the will of Elizabeth G. Bradley, who died in this city last February, as Fred C. Chase of Lowell, a nephew, has filed in the probate court of Essex county (an appeal from the decision of that court, basing his action on the allegation "that the instrument was not properly signed and that it never was intended for her last will."

Mrs. Bradley left an estate of $8000 and after bequeathing $1000 to the Plaislow, N. H., public library and $4000 more in specific bequests, she set aside the residue for the advancement of socialism and named Rev. Geo. E. Littlefield of Westwood, an ex-pastor of the Unitarian church here, and Ralph E. Gardner of this city, as trustees of the fund.

Henry W. Barnes, Jr. of Lowell was named as executor of the will and on the document which was filed in the probate court, Ralph E. Gardner appeared as counsel for Mr. Barnes.

At the time the will was filed it was noted in court that it was not signed by the testator, but Mr. Gardner took the ground that the will was in her handwriting and that it was plain that it was her last will and testament. He was sustained by the probate court and the will allowed March 14.

SEARCH OF RUINS

Resulted in Finding of Man's Body

BEVERLY, April 22.—The body of Joseph Phillips, the missing hostler, was found when a search of the ruins of the livery stable of Fred K. Warner was made by the firemen today. Phillips slept in the stable and could not be found after the building caught fire last night. The bodies of eleven horses were uncovered today, and it is believed that five or six other horses were burned to death. Although the fire in the Warner stable is believed to have been due to crossed electric wire the theory that it was of incendiary origin received some impetus by an inquiry made in the other barns on Union street about 4 a. m. The barns which were used as a furniture storage house were badly damaged, causing an estimated loss of more than $5000.

AN EXPERT'S OPINION OF SKIN DISEASES

A prominent, national expert on skin diseases whose name you are familiar with says that in all his scientific experience he has never found so hard a disease to conquer as Eczema. Yet he does not hesitate to recommend ZEMO as a most successful remedy for the treatment of Eczema, itching skin diseases, dandruff, pimples, black heads and all other diseases of the skin and scalp. He says that not only do its curative qualities make it popular but also the fact that it is a clean, liquid remedy for external use. A great improvement over the old style greasy salves and ointments which are not only unpleasant to use but do not destroy the germ life that causes the disease. ZEMO draws the germs to the surface and destroys them, leaving the skin clear and healthy. Can be used freely on infants. A. W. Dowd will gladly supply those who call with a free sample bottle of ZEMO and a booklet which explains in simple language all about skin diseases and how to cure yourself at home with ZEMO.

NO MORE TREATING

Drinks on "The House" Are Barred in Worcester

WORCESTER, April 22.—Worcester barkeepers must all wear muzzles next year and there will no longer be heard the old familiar and welcome invite from the far side of the mahogany: "Well, boys, have one on the house."

When Worcester goes back to its wet season, after a couple of years on the water wagon, a fellow of a party of fellows can go into any of the emporiums where "joy water" is dispensed, blow in his pipe and then go home without getting anything except what he or they pay for.

That is the edict of the new liquor license commission. And the commissioners go even further than shutting off the treating of the house to get things going when they once begin to lag. They don't want to have the patrons of the joy water plunge in and get wet all over at the outset. After two years in the desert they see danger ahead and they intend to have the ones rebuffed by easy stages. They don't want too much of a rush and they have issued warning to the proprietors of the places that will be allowed to open for business on Monday, May 2, that for the first three days of the wet season the liquor saloons must be run on a short schedule, opening at 8 a. m. and closing at 9 p. m.

There will be no "rushing the can" by women whose husbands do not know that the lady of the house is entertaining her friends when he is at work. The dealers are tipped off to sell beer and ale to women patrons only in bottles, and there must be no "drumming up" of trade by drivers of wagons who carry out a load of stuff to sell as opportunistic demands. The wholesalers are expected to sell only to customers who give orders by letter or phone or personal visit to their places of business.

The retailers are not to sell liquors of any kind to women unless they have special permission in writing from the commissioners to do so.

And the customers of the saloons will not be allowed to settle the charges made against them during the week by the pay checks they get from the big manufacturing concerns. These employees will be expected to take the pay checks home or to some other kind of a store so that their families will get at least a little of their earnings. They will not be allowed to "blow in" their weekly wages at the saloon nearest their place of employment.

These regulations for the liquor traffic in Worcester next year were handed out yesterday by the commissioners in the form of a set of questions and a set of suggested answers that are to be made to the questions by all the successful applicants for licenses. The action caused the biggest kind of a sensation among those in any way interested in the liquor trade, because the regulations tighten up the business to such an extent that the proprietors hardly know what to say.

The questions were sent to all the firms granted licenses yesterday afternoon, and with the questions went the answers that alone will be acceptable to the commissioners. They realize they have no legal authority to hedge around with such restrictions of the liquor trade, but those who want to do business must do business their way or they will not do business at all. The answers must all be filed in writing with the commissioners before the legal license is issued, and only those who send in the answers wanted will get one of the permits.

STAR THEATRE

A novelty in motion pictures is a subject by the Gamont company known as the "Private Alibi." The alibi has a huge magnet attached to it and many different things leave terra firma and fly through the sky to effect a clinging embrace with the magnet. The picture is very funny. The talking picture, "The Outlaw's Sacrifice" is a thrilling western drama. The picture program comprises scenic and educational subjects as well as those of exciting the comic and tragic side of life. The admission of five cents includes a seat.

A CLOSE SHAVE

Many of Them Happening Every Day but Soon Forgotten

Close shaves would be of more frequent occurrence but for the tender faces of many men, which will not permit of shaving often. Heretofore, those who have been in these columns about posium, a new skin discovery, in connection with its use after shaving. Its publicity and sales have been confined almost exclusively to its remarkable properties as an eczema cure; it stops the itching at once and cures the worst cases in a few days. While the application of posium after shaving is one of its minor uses, such as for pimples, the complexion, etc., shavers will find it a revelation, as it does for eruptions, roughness, and severe scrapings what it does for all manner of skin difficulties—heals and cures in a few hours. It is the only article possessing real antiseptic and curative value that has ever been exploited for this purpose, and will soothe the skin as the skin as a toilet preparation could possibly do. Posium can be had for fifty cents at any reliable druggist's, particularly Fells & Burkhowsky and Carter & Sherburne, who make a specialty of it. Or the Emergency Laboratories, No. 32 West 25th street, New York City, will send a trial supply free by mail to any one who will write for it. This is sufficient to show results in 24 hours.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

A fine program is offered at the Opera House for the last three days of this week, commencing yesterday afternoon. What is one of the most striking of recent vaudeville offerings here is Col. S. J. Simmons' story of Gen. U. S. Grant in the Days of '61, illustrated by Philpoteaux's famous Civil war paintings. The story is a closely and well told and the paintings are works of art. The other features of the bill are Fiske and McDonough in a laughable offering, entitled "The Ladies' Interfering Society." Honey Johnson in a black faced monologue, that kept the audience in roars of laughter, and Frank Pringle, a clever team of colored performers, who sing and play on musical instruments. The pictures are all new and good and include a number of good comedy subjects. The same bill will be repeated today and Saturday. Tonight will be amateur night at the Opera House, and a big list of amateur talent will be seen.

THE WHITE SISTER

James O'Neill of the Viola Allen company is one of the thrifty men of the stage. He has always been shrewd in business affairs, and his many deals in real estate and mining properties have nearly all turned out well for him. Only within the past six or eight months Mr. O'Neill embarked in a manufacturing and mercantile business in the city, which is already bringing fine results. By the time this fine actor is ready to leave the stage—which we trust may be years hence—he will be possessed of an abundant competency for his old age. Mr. O'Neill is at present playing the part of the venerable archbishop in the Viola Allen company, which will present F. Marion Crawford's last play, "The White Sister," at the Opera House Wednesday night, April 27. Sale of seats begins Monday morning.

"HAVANA"

Thursday, April 28, James T. Powers and the original company from the Casino theatre, New York, will present at the Opera House the musical comedy success, "Havana." The piece came direct from a successful engagement in Boston, where the press hailed it as one of the cleanest, prettiest, sanitiest, most tuneful musical shows ever seen in that city. Mr. Powers himself has a part in "Havana" which gives every opportunity to display his best talents but, not depending on the clever comedian alone, the Shuberts have surrounded him with an excellent supporting company. Seats for the engagement go on sale Tuesday morning.

SCENES OF CIVIL WAR.

As vital to the present generation as the recital of Mrs. Pickett, widow of the Confederate leader, given at a Boston theatre recently, are the exhibition of eight mammoth canvases depicting scenes of the Civil war, by the noted French artist, Paul Philpoteaux, at the opera house, the three remaining days of this week.

Philpoteaux is scarcely known by the rising generation, outside of France, but in the days succeeding the rebellion he was very widely admired for his remarkable work in painting large oil paintings. The eight pictures shown in connection with the vaudeville and motion pictures are among the very best the French artist ever painted. They rank with the most noted canvases of the two Vernets and with some of the best work of Paul Delaroche. Philpoteaux was to the Civil war what the Vernets were to the wars of Napoleon and Verestehagin to the march of Napoleon towards Moscow. No other artist has ever sought to immortalize the American internecine struggle like the Philpoteaux.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

At the Academy of Music there is a clever team of musicians in the Van Cooks. They have a sketch called "Harmony in a Chinese Laundry" in which they play on rats, family washing, hot iron, illuminated roses, and other things too numerous to mention. Gilbert Lasee is a clever entertainer. The range of his voice is little short of wonderful. Mae Hagshaw is singing a beautiful song and the pictures are A. 1. The feature picture on Monday will be "Roosevelt in Africa," which the management has procured at great additional expense. Admission 6 and 10 cents.

THEATRE VOYONS

Hundreds of Lowell people have visited or were born in the Canary Islands and today the Theatre Voyons shows a motion picture of many of the most interesting sights of those islands. Another picture of the better class is "Her First Appearance" dramatized by Richard Harding Davis from his own story of the same name. The acting is superb and the staging equal to any yet seen. There will be a concert on Sunday and on Monday a double bill will be given the features being "Roosevelt in Africa" and a film d'art production of "Othello."

COLONIAL THEATRE, LAWRENCE

This week's attractions at the Colonial are already the talk of the town. This is as it should be for with two great headliners like "The Carnival of Roses" and "The Comstock Mystery," and a variety of supporting acts, it is little wonder that the people of Lawrence are talking about the features shown at the popular Hampshire street playhouse.

"The Comstock Mystery" introduces no stranger to Lawrence, Miss Charlotte Parry, in the leading roles. This clever artist appears in seven distinct characters, with an entire change of dress, voice and manners for each character. The quickness of each change is nothing short of startling for Miss Parry is out of sight only a few seconds when she reappears in a different character.

The rest of the bill is made up of new and novel acts.

FIRE IN ASH BARREL

An alarm from box 63 about 6.30 o'clock this morning summoned a portion of the fire department to a fire in an ash barrel in a yard in Howard street. There was no damage done other than to the barrel.

BITTER DISCUSSION

In Parliament on Anderson's Parnellism and Crime

LONDON, April 22.—Memories of the turbulent scenes of Parnell's time were revived in the house of commons last night during the discussion of a motion by T. P. O'Connor, to reduce the civil service estimate by $4500, the amount of Sir Robert Anderson's pension.

In an autobiographic article recently published in the "Parnellism and Crime" series of articles which appeared in the Times in 1887 and culminated in the publication of the Parnell Inquiry Commission report, the house announced their intention to obtain if possible a government investigation of the affair, with a view to depriving Sir Robert of his pension, on the ground that his act was a breach of official confidence, because he had been the head of the investigation department, of Scotland Yard.

Mr. Balfour, leader of the opposition, agreed, at last night's session, with Premier Asquith and Mr. Churchill in condemning Sir Robert's action as improper, but Mr. Churchill, as home secretary, declined to interfere to deprive him of his pension.

The debate was proceeding quietly, but with acerbity on the part of the Nationalists, one of whom declared that Sir Robert's articles were an attempt to revive old charges against the Nationalists, in order to help the Tories in the coming elections, when the Rt. Hon. James Henry Campbell,

INDIANAPOLIS, April 22.—Thomas Taggart will go before the democratic state convention of Indiana as a candidate against Senator Beveridge for the United States senate. Mr. Tag-member from Dublin university, in the course of his speech referred to the Phoenix Park murders and the Pigott letters in terms that excited the highest resentment from the Irish benches. There were loud demands for Mr. Campbell to withdraw his offensive expressions. The chairman declining to interfere, a perfect uproar ensued. Mr. Redmond shouting, "It was an outrage," while others cried, "Send for the speaker."

The chairman and Secretary for War Haldane, vainly appealed to the house to allow Mr. Campbell to continue his speech.

The pandemonium was renewed on the part of the Nationalists, who shouted "Pigott," "Dublin Castle," "We won't stand it," and cheered for Parnell.

The scene was continued for several minutes, and finally Mr. Churchill moved closure and Mr. O'Connor's motion was rejected 164 to 94.

A RECEPTION WAS TENDERED REV. AND MRS. NILSSON

The Swedish M. E. church was the scene last night of a farewell reception to Rev. Benedict Nilsson and Mrs. Nilsson. The reception was held in the auditorium and even standing room was at a premium. Mr. and Mrs. Nilsson will go to Springfield, where Mr. Nilsson will take up his new pastorate.

Following a song by the choir and two selections by the male chorus, Rev. Mr. Nilsson replied, thanking the church people for their gifts, and speaking of his regret at leaving the church with him. He thanked them, too, for Mrs. Nilsson.

At the close of the devotional exercises the gathering adjourned to the vestry, where a social hour was enjoyed to bid Rev. and Mrs. Nilsson farewell. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

There were 19 boys who Wednesday evening for two hours took the examination in Bible study, prepared for the boys of this country, by the international committee of Y. M. C. A. at New York. Probably at the same moment there were 600 other boys in other parts of the nation who were doing the same thing.

One local class of boys has had perfect attendance for the season. On Thursday evening, all the Eliot church boys gathered at the Y. M. C. A. rooms for organization, and elected the following officers: President, Harry Dolson; vice president, Allen Nichols; secretary, Chester Chase; treasurer, J. C. Dow; chairman physical committee, Leslie Clark; of social work, Edwin Monson; of religious work, Emil Hartford. Refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday evening, May 12, when plans will be submitted for the summer season. The suggested name for this organization, which will be voted on in May is the "Ward" club of the Eliot church.

Dr. Yarnell's Life Problem group for young men will meet this Friday evening as usual at 8:30 when Mrs. Crisler and Mrs. Davis will have charge of the supper. All young men are invited. If you have not attended you are missing a good thing.

THE MASTER BUILDERS.

It is time the Master Builders should bestir themselves to revive their moribund organization. Whether it is business rivalry or general apathy that ails the organization is difficult to say; but the present board of officers intends to stir things up somewhat. Let us hope they will succeed.

THE REACTION AGAINST REPUBLICAN SWAY.

Something bordering on consternation struck the republican leaders at Washington when they heard of the election of a democrat in the Rochester, N. Y., district where George W. Aldridge, a republican boss, was defeated in a republican stronghold by a sweeping majority. The republicans claim that this defeat, like that of the man who ran against Boss, was brought about by the candidate's unpopularity, but they must remember that in past years the candidate, no matter how unpopular, needed only to be labelled "republican" to be elected in a district having a republican majority.

The reaction is setting in. The people dislike the Aldrich tariff law; they blame the republican party for the trusts that sell their products cheaper in Europe than in this country; they stand aghast at the revelations of graft in New York, Pennsylvania, California, Montana and other states.

The indications point to a revulsion of feeling against the republican party with the prospect of more sweeping defeats in the congressional elections to be held next fall.

SOAP AND WATER CAMPAIGN.

The mayor of Kenosha, Wis., has of late come out with a scheme for political advertising that is unrivalled for its novelty. In order to convince the people that he is to give a clean administration he has contributed 5000 bars of soap as a means of calling attention to his candidacy for reelection. Upon one side of each bar of soap he has had ingeniously inscribed the picture of himself and on the other side "Purity Soap." The inference, no doubt, to be drawn from this species of political advertising is, that the mayor of Kenosha, if reelected, will give an administration that is personally as well as politically pure.

It would be well indeed if the man who shows such genius for inventing schemes for advertising, would show equal ingenuity in devising methods to carry out his promises. Unfortunately these pledges of civic purity are not always carried out after election. Out in Pittsburg where the revelations of graft are now going on every one of the guilty men promised to give the city a good, wise and clean administration. They forgot their promises after they entered office, they accepted bribes and proceeded to make the administration exactly the reverse of what they had promised to make it. Perhaps the mayor of Kenosha is right when he thinks a little soap and water is needed, but it will not wash away the record of political corruption.

THE FACTIONISTS PUT TO ROUT.

The feeble effort of William O'Brien, M. P., to assume independent leadership in parliament and to make it appear that he forced concessions from the British chancellors that Mr. Redmond could not secure, has proved a complete fiasco. He and Mr. Healy, both of whom aspire to leadership, have utterly failed to make any impression on the strong attitude assumed and triumphantly maintained by Mr. Redmond. In articles in the press as well as by speeches on the public platform and in the house of commons, these two factionists have done their utmost to overthrow the leadership of Mr. Redmond and to increase their own following, but they have utterly failed, and today they stand more discredited than ever before, and that is saying a great deal.

In an article in the National Review for March, one of the strongest Tory magazines in England, Mr. Healy scoffed at what he called the "revolting pilgrimage of Messrs. Redmond, Dillon and T. P. O'Connor to Downing street." In that article Mr. Healy said:

"If the Nationalists endorse the program of the prime minister, then when this parliament comes to an end, the budget will have become law, but neither home rule for Ireland nor the abolition of the lords' veto will have been secured. When all is over, we may not be denied the comfort of hearing Mr. Redmond assure his countrymen that he still remains a convinced optimist on both subjects. Lacking courage a golden opportunity will have turned like fairy treasure to dust in our hands."

In this case Mr. Healy turns out to be a false prophet, for so far from following the dictates of the British premier, Mr. Redmond forced the premier to accept his terms as the only possible means of securing the support of the Irish party in carrying through the financial legislation. Mr. Redmond distinctly stated in advance that he would subordinate everything else to home rule, and the annulment of the lords' veto power meant home rule in the near future.

O'Brien and Healy opposed this policy and tried to alarm the people over the prospective burdens of the new budget, but Mr. Redmond said he was willing to accept the budget in order to pave the way for home rule, knowing full well that the budget could be easily modified in the future and that at worst it would but take back a portion of the money that had been granted by the government under several measures during the past few years.

These two members are now making a fruitless fight against the budget in spite of the fact that Redmond has agreed to support it on condition that the premier would ask the crown to create peers enough to carry the measure in the upper house.

Yesterday it was announced by Augustine Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland, that Premier Asquith will so advise the king. The latter does not wish to get mixed up in the controversy, but he cannot very well resist a demand that seems to come from the people backed by a reasonable majority.

From the present outlook it seems quite probable that the veto power of the lords will be overcome by the legislation now under consideration, without an additional appeal to the country. Should such a change come about the British parliament would then be the most democratic in the world.

SEEN AND HEARD

Those of us who have met the census enumerators are wondering what happened the thirty questions that he or she was supposed to ask. The fellow who interrogated the writer put five questions over the plate and they were dead easy.

The census taker is up against it, so to speak, when he tackles the Celestial. The Chinese do not count time by the Gregorian calendar as we do, and the census enumerator is supplied with a table for converting Chinese dates of births into their English equivalents. Every Chinaman knows the year, the month, the day and the hour of his birth as well as he knows his name, but not even an educated Chinaman would find it easy to translate it into correct English. Time is counted in China in two ways: First by cycles of 60 years each; second, by the reigns of the successive emperors. The Chinese month is the lunar month of twenty-nine or thirty days. Each month is known by its number. A year may have 12 months and consist of 354 or 355 days; or it may have 13 months and consist of 383 or 384 days. In order to bring the calendar into accord with the solar year, an extra or intercalary month is inserted every second or third year. The table prepared for the use of enumerators is quite comprehensive.

HOW TO STOP DRINKING

come for her husband, Adam Wolf, conditioned on his living the rest of his life in the home of one of her daughters, Annie and Kate, or of her son-in-law, Albert Fleckenstein.

If he should establish a home of his own, remove his personal apparel and belongings out of the homes of one of the persons specified, he, by such act, forfeits all claim to any part of the estate or its income. It is said that Mrs. Wolf had an understanding with her children that they would not receive a step-mother in their homes.

By administering a pledge of total abstinence from intoxicating drinks Justice Moreau of the supreme court, in Brooklyn, settled a suit for separation brought by Mrs. Betsy Thorne, against Aaron Thorne, on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. Mrs. Thorne said that her husband was all right except when he drank. The couple have one child, a boy, 14 years old.

"Will you not, for the sake of your wife and boy, try to abstain from drink for a month?" asked Justice Moreau.

Thorne said he would, and the court ordered him to hold up his right hand.

"You solemnly swear, in the presence of the overlying God, that you will abstain from all intoxicating drinks for the space of one month from this date."

"We keep our own cow," explained the hostess, proudly. "So we're sure of our milk."

"Well," interrupted the small son of the guest, setting down his cup, "somebody's stung you with a sour cow."—Cleveland Leader.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

George W. Young, husband of Mme. Norblin, the soprano, purchased the two three-story stone houses at Nos. 6 and 8 West Ninth street, New York, on April 6. They will be turned into one, which Mr. and Mrs. Young will make their home. The price paid for the houses was $26,000 and $30,000 respectively. Mr. and Mrs. Young have heretofore occupied an apartment at No. 25 East Thirtieth street.

Edwin Hawley, who is fast acquiring a habit of buying railroads and who is already spoken of as the new Harriman, has a curious habit of resting in his office at the end of a hard day's work. He sits on the floor with Miss Amanda Ford, deaconess at the immigrants' home in East Boston, met 80 vessels on their arrival in port during the last 12 months and aided nearly 700 persons, of whom 314 were women, 206 men and 76 children. She obtained work for nearly 30 girls, sent $5 to their friends, gave lodgings and meals to some and distributed garments to others.

Stephen Marchand, a rich American, some time ago got the idea that he was going to have the most luxurious bedroom in the world, and fitted one up at a cost of $200,000. He had a bedstead made of ebony, which was richly carved and inlaid with ivory and gold. At the head was a big ivory carving which was cut from one tusk. A man was sent to Africa to get the tusk, and ordered to buy the biggest and finest one he could find.

BOSTON HOLDING CO.

Received Another Setback From the Attorney General

BOSTON, April 22.—Efforts to make the bonds of the Boston Holding Co. a legal investment for Massachusetts savings banks received another setback today when Atty. Gen. Malone reported the bill exempting these bonds from taxation to be unconstitutional. The decision of the attorney general was received in the house and without debate the house refused to admit the bill.

The proposition legalizing these bonds originated with Gov. Draper, who advocated such a measure in his inaugural address in January. The bill was vigorously opposed at the hearing before the committee on railroads and the counsel for the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, which company financed the holding company as a solution of the problem of the Boston & Maine railroad with the New Haven, announced that the original measure would not be pressed.

In the meantime Senator Tuttle of Pittsfield brought forward a second proposition exempting the bonds from taxation, but this bill was also held up pending a decision from the attorney general.

The action of the house today prevents savings banks and similar institutions from investing in these bonds, the proceeds of which, it was stated, would be used in upbuilding the Boston & Maine railroad.

The New Haven company again sought the legislature on Monday when Pres. Meilen filed a petition asking that the legislature approve the entire issue of the stock of the road, its bonds, pending an investigation into its finances by three state officials and commissions. The most strenuous opponents of the Boston & Maine merger have based their opposition on the claim that the New Haven road issued stock without the consent of the legislature and the New Haven road is now seeking this legalization. The petition is now before the senate committee on rules on the question of its admission. Undismayed by the decision of the attorney general and the subsequent action of the house, Gov. Draper continued the fight in favor of the bonds by sending a special message to the legislature today urging some action that would prevent the bonds of the company from being subject to double taxation.

The message was immediately referred to the joint committees on railroads and taxation for a public hearing.

The stock of the New Haven road already pays a local tax which the governor deems sufficient. He believes that the legislature will find some method by which the bonds may be exempted without violating constitutional provisions.

WAGE DEMANDS

Of New York Central Employees Have Been Arbitrated

NEW YORK, April 22.—Arbitration of the wage demands of the trainmen and conductors of the New York Central lines west of Buffalo was agreed upon today. The arbitration will be independent of that now in progress affecting the men on the Central's lines east of Buffalo but the same arbitrators will serve.

The agreement was announced following conferences between C. W. Schaff, vice president and general manager of the Vanderbilt lines west of Buffalo, and A. E. Garretson and W. C. Lee, the heads respectively of the conductors and trainmen's organizations.

E. F. Clark of the Interstate Commerce commission and P. H. Morrissey, president of the railroad employees and investors association, who have heard the testimony on both sides on the wage demands of the men on the Central's east of Buffalo lines, consent to act as arbitrators. Their decision in the earlier arbitration is looked for by tomorrow.

LOSS IS $55,000 BABY TOOK PILLS

Iron Foundries Were Destroyed by Fire Thought They Were Candy and Died

BRIDGEWATER, April 22.—The Le Baron iron foundry, with its contents, was destroyed and the Perkins foundry adjoining suffered a loss of about $55,000 by fire last night. The Le Baron loss will be in the vicinity of $30,000. Both companies are partially covered by insurance.

The fire was discovered at about 7:30 in the Le Baron foundry, and an alarm was sounded from box 33. When the fire department arrived most of the roof was ablaze.

The firemen directed their efforts to the adjoining property and succeeded in saving the larger portion of the Perkins plant, although part of the building in which the patterns were stored was burned.

The Le Baron foundry was conducted by E. T. Le Baron, who removed to this town from Middleboro about 18 months ago. The building was owned by the Perkins Foundry company, and the machinery was leased by the Le Baron company. The Le Baron company manufactured fancy iron work and had considerable material ready for shipment. The Perkins company was conducted for many years by the late Henry Perkins, and the business is now carried on by his heirs.

A large number of hands were employed at the foundries. It is understood that the business of both of the concerns will be continued.

EXPECT ARREST

WESTERVILLE, R. I., April 22.—An arrest is expected by the people of this city and vicinity following the coroner's inquest today into the death of Daniel Sullivan of White Rock, one of the 13 alleged poisoned whiskey victims in the border towns. The coroner's inquest was ordered immediately following the report of Prof. Whitney of the Harvard Medical school, received last Wednesday, in which he stated that he found traces of wood alcohol in Sullivan's stomach and that the whiskey which Sullivan had drunk prior to his death had been composed largely of the same poison.

The police claim that they have traced the purchase of the whiskey to an Italian's place, although they express the belief that it was originally purchased from a certain Westerly drug store which acted as a sort of a wholesale place and disposed of the adulterated liquor to the Italians in large quantities.

BALLINGER CASE

WASHINGTON, April 22.—When the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry was resumed this morning after the usual five day recess there was still pending the request of Attorney Brannan representing Louis R. Glavis and others that he be allowed to defer his cross examination of Assistant Secretary of Interior Hovey until after he has had opportunity to question Secretary Ballinger. Attorney Vertrone representing Mr. Ballinger, has opposed the request and has asked the committee to require witnesses to be disposed of as they are offered. The request of Assistant Secretary Hovey applies also to other subordinates of the Interior department.

REDDING, Conn., April 22.—Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) who died last night at Storrsfield, will have a public funeral befitting his national fame. He is to be buried on Saturday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon from the Old Brick Presbyterian church at 73rd street and Fifth avenue, New York. Invitations will be by card but after the members of the family and his close personal friends have been seated the church edifice will be thrown open to the public. The burial will be in the family lot at Elmira, N. Y. The arrangements in detail are still under advisement and the list of pallbearers yet remains to be selected. The Old Brick church was Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke's pulpit and it seems likely that he will pronounce the eulogy.

News of Mr. Clemens' death did not reach the countryside at large until the morning papers brought it up from the city.

Expressions of grief were then heard on all sides. For Mark Twain was not only personally endeared to his close friends, but he was generous to his large acquaintance, shared the beauties of his handsome new home with the neighborhood and took a lively interest in the affairs of the town. Several of his neighbors who stood very close to him in life were permitted by an old country custom to view the body as it lay in the carved bed. Mr. Clemens did much of his work in bed, and in death he still seemed a part of the surroundings of his active life. Ranged about him were his books. Beside him was his tabouret set with a tobacco jar, a collection of sweet old crusted pipes, a stand of cigars and matches in abundance. Above his head was a reading lamp. In bachelor days he had heartily cursed the curse of bachelorhood against all chambermaids because of their hostile ideas of tidiness.

"They always put the pillow on the opposite end of the bed from the gas burner," he wrote, "so that while you read and smoke before sleeping, as is the ancient and honorable custom of bachelors, you have to hold your book aloft in an uncomfortable position to keep the light from dazzling your eyes. If they cannot get the light in an inconvenient position any other way they move the bed. They always put your books into inaccessible places. They always put the matchbox in some other place. They hunt up a new place for it every day and put up a bottle or other perishable glass thing where the box stood before. This is to cause you to break that glass thing. They always save up all the old scraps of printed rubbish you have thrown on the floor and stand them up carefully on the table and start the fire with your valuable MSS."

In later years when successive sorrows descended heavily upon him, Mark Twain had been spared from such small discomforts. So he lay to day among all the luxuries of disorder that he loved, beyond any vexation whatever, at last. Death that stamps some faces with indignity, has left nothing but nobility on his. There were no lines of pain, no hint of terror, not even a smile—nothing but a large and serene benignity.

FUNERALS

REGAN.—The funeral of the late Jeremiah Regan took place this morning at 9 o'clock from his late home, 93 Union street, and was largely attended. The funeral cortege proceeded to St. Peter's church, where at 9 o'clock a funeral mass of requiem was sung by Rev. W. George Mullin. The choir sang the Gregorian mass. Mrs. John McKennedy presided at the organ. Among the floral tributes was a large pillow inscribed "Husband" from his wife; wreath inscribed "Grandpa" Regan children; spray of pinks and eyes painted by Conney children; standing wreath on base Mr. and Mrs. P. Hennessey and family; wreath Mr. John McDermott and family. The bearers were John Sands, James Hennessey, John Watson, Timothy Donovan, Patrick Howe and Mr. Harrington. Burial was in the family lot in the Catholic cemetery. Undertakers M. H. McDonough & Sons in charge.

UNSETTLED WEATHER.—BOSTON, April 22.—Unsettled weather made the opening of the New England baseball league today more or less uncertain. Lynn was scheduled to play at Fall River, Haverhill at New Bedford, Worcester at Lowell and Lawrence at Brockton. Because of rain the Brockton game was declared postponed in the forenoon. In the Bristol county cities the weather was unsettled.

GAME POSTPONED.—New England at Brockton—Brockton-Lawrence game postponed, rain.

In Palais des Invalides Visited by Col. Roosevelt

PARIS, April 22.—After paying a tribute to Mark Twain's memory in an expression to the press, Mr. Roosevelt began his program for the day with a visit to the tomb of Napoleon in the Palais des Invalides. The great stone structure is now used as a home for incapacitated soldiers.

When Mr. Roosevelt, accompanied by Kermit, Mr. Jusserand, French ambassador at Washington, and American Ambassador Bacon, arrived in an automobile he was welcomed by a great crowd which included many photographers who took snapshots of the party as they entered the Cour d'Honneur where General Daubigny, military governor of Paris and several aides in full uniform awaited them.

Mr. Roosevelt had luncheon as the guest of Baron Pierre de Courbin whom he met in the United States with the Olympic games, he being the president of the International Olympic committee.

This afternoon Mr. Roosevelt continued sightseeing, visiting the galleries of the Louvre. He returned to the American embassy at 4:30 when he received a call from former President Lohr. Tonight Mr. Roosevelt will be the honorary guest at a dinner at the Elysee palace.

COTTON MARKET

In Liverpool Sustained a Shock

LONDON, April 22.—A severe shock has been experienced in the Liverpool cotton market, according to today's Shipping Gazette in the discovery of forged bills of lading for cotton purporting to have been shipped from the United States. The quantity involved is said to be between 15,000 and 20,000 bales.

According to the Gazette it is at present difficult to ascertain which of the bills of lading are bona fide and which are fraudulent and this point will be determined only upon the arrival of the vessels and the discharge of their cargoes. The paper adds that some eighteen local cotton firms may be involved.

LOWELL POLICE REQUESTED TO LOOK FOR A METHUEN GIRL

After four days of fruitless searching for his daughter, William Taylor of Methuen reported her disappearance to the police Wednesday. The Taylor family resides at Longwood drive, off Jackson street extension, and the daughter, Bessie, went away last Saturday, leaving a note stating that she would not be seen again. She requested in the note that good care be taken of her sister and small brother, the latter being in the hospital.

Miss Taylor is 15 years old and had been employed at a loom harness factory in this city. Saturday evening she was seen near the Spicket river bridge, Jackson street, Lawrence. The girl is a feet 6 inches tall, slight

VASSAR GIRLS

OBJECT TO THE "ALWAYS FRESH" LABEL

KANSAS CITY, April 22.—Eugene F. Ware, former commissioner of pensions, representing Vassar college, brought suit in the federal court here yesterday for an injunction to stop a local concern from using the label "Vassar Chocolates."

The noted poet recites that his particular objection is to the imitation seal and the picture of a supposed college girl, which forms the centerpiece of the seal.

The picture is of a young woman in scholastic garb with a moria board, and the college complaints that this tends to provoke discussion and reproach because it is believed that such a garb should be worn only by men. The official corporate seal of the college, as shown imitated on the advertisement on the candy boxes. On the face of the seal is represented a woman with a book and a sprig of myrtle. In the background, on the hill, is a Greek temple. On the rim are the words, "Vassar Chocolates," substituted for "Vassar College." At the bottom under the female figure whereon the official seal "Purity and Wisdom" would be, the defendants have placed the words, "Always Fresh." The words "Always Fresh," says the complaint, "seem applicable to the female figure above it and are a matter of ridicule and reproach."

CASE OF THREATENING

Against John J. Gray Caused Merriment in Police Court

One of the most comical cases ever heard in police court was aired before Judge Samuel P. Hadley this morning when John J. Gray was charged with threatening to do bodily harm to Dennis E. Connors. That there has been some feeling between the parties is forestalled in the case is known, owing to the fact that there are several cross-suits pending between the parties at the present time. While Mr. Connors and other witnesses claimed that threats had been made by Mr. Gray against his life, Mr. Gray, who pleaded his own case, in his argument denied each and every allegation in every point.

While the case for the complainant was conducted by Lawyer A. S. Howard, Mr. Gray displayed great versatility in pleading his own case and though the court gave him considerable latitude he at times tried to over reach the bounds and was called to account. He was dramatic to say the least and frequently banged the desk of the clerk of the court and the roll on the witness stand in a manner which would indicate that he meant what he said.

The first witness called for the government was James J. Dacey, who testified that he was in the employ of the Connors Bros. Construction Co. Witness said that Wednesday while driving through Thorndike street, he met Mr. Gray and during the course of a conversation Mr. Gray said that he had a pistol and intended to shoot Mr. Connors. Mr. Dacey informed the court that within the past six months Mr. Gray had stated five or six times that he intended to get Mr. Connors out of the way.

Mr. Gray put Mr. Dacey through a sharp cross examination, though the witness held to the original story with a slight exception. Dennis E. Connors, the complainant, during the direct examination said that he was not on friendly terms with Mr. Gray and had not been since last spring. Mr. Connors continuing with his testimony said, in part: "Last spring I met Mr. Gray in John S. Patton's office in the Pemberton building in Boston and he said that he would stab me. He said to me, 'You might as well get ready to take your medicine now, for it is coming to you.' I said to him, 'What's the matter, John?' He said, 'I will show you,' and then he said that he would shoot and stab me. Yesterday he called me up on the telephone and he said to me, 'Tomorrow I will meet you in the arena and it will be lucky for you if you are not shot before the sun goes down tomorrow afternoon.'"

During the cross examination of witness Mr. Gray endeavored to show that the complainant was out to establish a conspiracy to blacken his character. Witness said that while he did not threaten to strike Mr. Gray he said that he would put his head down a cistern in the yard. He denied that he had had any conversation with Mr. Gray relative to going out on a "big ride with women" and then went into a story relative to Mr. Gray's family matters when the court put a stop to the talk.

Mr. Connors in answer to questions put by Mr. Gray relative to his family affairs answered in the negative. Charlotte Johnson of Reading, a clerk in the office of the defendant, testified that a voice which she thought was that of Mr. Gray called the office up on four different occasions yesterday. She said that she would not swear that it was the voice of Mr. Gray, but was pretty sure that it was. The complainant rested his case at this point.

The first witness for the defense was Henry J. O'Dowd, who told of a conversation which he had with Mr. Connors last August, when the latter said that he would tear Gray to pieces and cut his heart out.

John G. McLaughlin, who was in the employ of Mr. O'Dowd at the time in question, said that he heard the conversation between Messrs. O'Dowd and Connors.

Mr. Gray, at this point, informed the court that he did not wish to offer any testimony.

care to make an argument," asked Lawyer Howard to Mr. Gray.

"No, you go ahead and I will argue after you get through," said Mr. Gray.

"Well, the counsel for the defense generally argues first," said Mr. Howard.

"That's all right, you go ahead and argue," said Mr. Gray.

At this time Judge Hadley told Mr. Gray that if he wished to offer an argument that he should go ahead and do so, and then Mr. Gray, who had previously stated that he would not offer any testimony, started his argument, but his argument was in reality unsworn testimony. From time to time Mr. Gray hammered the clerk's desk and the roll of the witness stand which threatened destruction to both pieces of furniture.

After the evidence in the case had been considered by Judge Hadley, he found Mr. Gray guilty and ordered him to be placed under $200 bonds to keep the peace for six months. Mr. Gray appealed and was held under $300 bonds for his appearance before the superior court.

Mr. Gray was congratulated after the trial on his ability as displayed in handling the case and on the amount of ammunition he fired at the other side.

Lillian Bernard, who was under a suspended sentence to Sherborn, was arrested yesterday, and this morning the suspension of the former sentence was revoked.

James Stewart, who gave the name of Alexander Campbell when he was placed under arrest, was sentenced to four months in jail. Henry A. Grady will spend four months at the same institution. John C. Crowley was fined $6 and a first offender was fined $2.

BOURKE COCKRAN

To Defend Man Accused of Murder

NEW YORK, April 22.—Judge Malone yesterday assigned W. Bourke Cockran as counsel to defend Victor Nelson, a negro, who is under indictment for the murder of Charles Humphreys, in a laundry at 107 East 129th street on March 23.

Nelson, when arraigned in court, said he was not guilty and had neither money nor friends to aid him.

"How would Bourke Cockran suit you?" asked Judge Malone.

"I never heard of him," said Nelson.

"But he will do."

"I am ready to do all in my power to aid Nelson, whom I do not know. It is a duty that I owe to the bar and the court," said Mr. Cockran later.

MONKEY A SUICIDE

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 22.—A monkey, supposed to have belonged to the Norris & Rowe company circus, committed suicide yesterday, hanging himself in a factory with a chain tied to a rafter.

It is supposed the monkey escaped from the circus and, becoming homesick, decided to end his life.

BARS FEATHERS

Action Taken by N. Y. Legislature

ALBANY, April 22.—No longer will the beautiful algerette find lodging place in the eye of the wearied man in the subway car. No longer will the hat with its lowering feathers be an obstruction to the enthusiastic fan at the ball game. No longer will the cross husband have an excuse for remaining at the club every night for a week on account of an extremely high-millinery bill caused by the purchase of rare feathers.

Because—

The legislature has decreed that after July 1, 1911, the wearing of the feathers of a bird, except those of a crow or other animal made unpopular by his own misconduct, shall be unlawful.

The official death knell will not be sounded until Governor Hughes signs the bill, but there seems to be a quivering feeling among the milliners that he will follow the lead of the legislators. So certain are the members of the Audubon Society of America that the governor will sign the bill that they intend to ask him for the pen he uses.

The bill passed the assembly two weeks ago and the senate yesterday.

At the time it passed the assembly there were cross words between certain legislators because a story had gained circulation that a corruption fund had been raised to kill it.

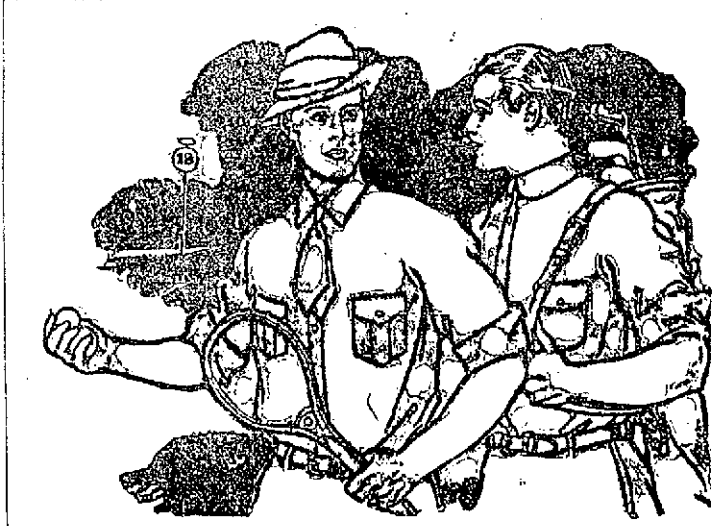

Senator Fawcett, of New York, opposed the bill, claiming that it meant disaster to the millinery business in this state, in which there are millions invested. But his words fell on deaf ears.

The bill bans the use of the feathers of all wild birds except the English sparrow, crow hawk, crow-blackbird, snow-owl, great-horned-owl, kingfisher and pheasants, ducks, wild geese, and other birds for which there is an open season.

TO ROB U. S. TREASURY EVICT STRIKERS

Is No Crime Says Assistant Secretary Norton

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The astonishing statement was made by Charles D. Norton, assistant secretary of the treasury, before the house committee on expenditures in the treasury department yesterday, that there is at present no law by which a subordinate in any of the various sub-treasuries of the United States can be punished for making away with public funds.

A man may loot the treasury as much as he likes and no law exists by which he can be punished, said Mr. Norton, if two or more employees engage in an embezzlement, they may be punished for conspiracy, but that is all.

The further information was elicited that the bonding system of treasurers and assistant treasurers of the United States and their various subordinates is obsolete and inadequate.

Treas. McChung said that his bond of $150,000 was the same as that required in 1789. The assistant treasurer at New York furnished a bond of $60,000, signed by private parties because a bonding company would charge him $1500 premium, and Mr. Norton said the furnishing of bonds by private parties in such cases was a most undesirable arrangement for the United States.

Subordinates in the treasury department, handling millions in money daily, were required to furnish no bond, except that in some cases assistant treasurers required bonds regardless of the law in the case.

And much other similar information was obtained from Mr. Norton during the hearing yesterday on the question of whether the committee should undertake an investigation of the $30,000 shortage in the sub-treasury at St. Louis and other places and incidentally inquire into the accounting system of the U. S. treasury.

The committee adjourned without deciding whether an investigation should be held or not.

Mr. Norton told of the extensive and revolutionary plans of the department now under way to perfect a new system of construction of vaults, cages and other features of the various treasuries, and of espionage and examination of these institutions.

HON. BUTLER AMES

Fears That Senator Lodge May Misuse Fund

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Claiming that Senator Lodge might in some way use for political purposes the fund of $65,000 which he has asked congress to appropriate to further investigate the increased cost of living, Rep. Butler Ames of Massachusetts will endeavor to prevent the freehand appointment of employees by Senator Lodge, with this money. Mr. Ames said yesterday that he was opposed to the appropriation on general principles, and made it clear that he thought the senator was far off the track in his conclusions as to the cause of the increased cost of food stuffs.

When the proposition to appropriate $65,000 requested by the senate investigating committee, of which Senator Lodge is chairman, comes up in the house, said Mr. Ames "yesterday," I will see to it that an amendment is offered expressly stipulating that all of the employees appointed under that fund to conduct the investigation shall be appointed under the civil service.

It would appear that Mr. Ames is afraid that Senator Lodge will make the appointments to build up and strengthen his political machine in Massachusetts.

"Senator Lodge's conclusions that cold storage is responsible for the increased cost of living is a fallacy," said Mr. Ames. "Cold storage operates to keep down prices, not to increase them. It insures the use of all the food stuffs of a perishable nature produced, and maintains prices on an even and low level. Without cold storage much food must be sacrificed or destroyed, and while at times, when the supply falls away, other times, when the supply is less than the demand, prices would soar.

"The fixing of an arbitrary period of one year in which food may be kept in cold storage is a fallacy. The time should be determined by the perishable nature of the various kinds of food, and be governed by their wholesomeness."

EXTRA GIRL A WITNESS

At the Trial of Wolter, Accused of Murder

NEW YORK, April 22.—Two witnesses—the young prisoner himself and a young woman—were relied upon by Albert Wolter's counsel today to sweep away the mass of evidence which the prosecution has piled up against him and to clear him from the charge of having strangled Ruth Wheeler and burned her still living body in the fireplace of his apartment. The trial of the 19-year-old youth moves swiftly to its close. For the last four days he has sat in queer calm and seen without a quiver the constant production in court of the children bones and other gruesome reminders of the deed which so shockingly ended the life of the 15-year-old stenographer who called at his rooms looking for work and was never again seen alive. Wolter's lawyer says the boy's innocence has fortified him and he expected to prove from Wolter's own lips today that the prosecution's array of facts counted for nothing. He would be helped in this, the prisoner's counsel, Walter Scott, stated, by a woman who would swear that the body of Ruth Wheeler was not placed on the fire escape of Wolter's apartment until two days after the alleged commission of the crime when it would have been impossible for Wolter to have put it there.

A bright faced German girl, Kate Gilie, went to the witness stand today to tell a story that Wolter's counsel hopes will unravel the meshes of circumstantial evidence which have been woven around the East Side murder. Her room adjoined that of the Wolter apartment where little Ruth Wheeler was murdered. Mr. Scott told the jury that he would build the foundation of Wolter's defense by testifying that the bag containing the burned body was not on the fire escape either on Friday or Saturday morning. If it were not there at that time, then Wolter did not kill Ruth Wheeler, declared counsel, for Wolter was then in the hands of the police.

"I did not see the body," said the girl, "but did look out on the fire escape during the day."

"I stayed in my room until 4 o'clock and then went out," she continued.

"Saturday morning I took possession of the Wolter room and cleaned it. About 10:30 in the morning I looked out on the fire escape and there was nothing on it. Wolter threw a smile of apparent triumph at his counsel.

On Thursday, the Gilie girl said, the sack which later held Ruth's body was in the public hall. It was there on Friday morning. "I'll be sworn," she declared in answer to a question from the court.

"When was the last time you saw the sack?" asked Mr. Scott.

"On Friday at one o'clock," Miss Gilie replied.

"If there had been anything on the fire escape on Saturday, would you have seen it?"

On a grill of questioning the Gilie girl was only slightly shaken in her testimony. She said she didn't remember whether she had told Pearl or Adelaide Wheeler that she had not been home on Friday.

WOLTER'S STORY

ACCUSED MAN BETRAYED NO EMOTION WHILE TELLING IT

NEW YORK, April 22.—Gently guided by counsel, Albert Wolter, taking the stand today in his own defense, told to an intently listening jury the story of that fateful day on which ruthless Ruth Wheeler came to his apartment on a quest for work and found death by strangulation and burning.

Wolter betrayed no emotion. He coolly declared that he had never written Ruth Wheeler in his life; he had not even seen her and had only written her name in his memorandum book at the request of a Coney Island waiter, Fred Ahner, who, he said, wanted to start a German stenographic school.

He was eighteen years old, the defendant said, and had come here from Germany two years ago. Wolter had met Katie Mueller and they had lived together since December.

Early on the morning of March 24, Wolter said, he left his room, bought paint and brush and after loading all day in Central park, returned home in the evening and painted the fireplace.

Some time during the hours Wolter said he spent in the park, Ruth Wheeler met her death in his room. That evening Pearl Wheeler came in search of her sister but the witness said he did not meet her.

"That night I was awakened by the falling fireplace," said the witness. "Twice it fell and each time I arose and fixed it."

Explaining the postal cards sent to young girls in reference to securing positions, Wolter said he met Ahner and they talked of establishing a school to teach German shorthand.

"Did you see any girl come up to your room on Thursday?"

"I did not,"

Prosecutor Moss on cross-examination piled Wolter with ceaseless questions to entrap the fencing witness.

No flush of shame tinged the face of Wolter as he admitted that he and Katie Mueller lived on what the girl earned—$8 a week. They had bread and cocoa for dinner. Wolter blurted out that he had lost one position because he had collected money and did not turn it in. Prosecutor Moss read extracts from Wolter's memorandum book, including some stories of murders, which Wolter had copied from newspapers into his book.

Wolter had now lost his nonchalance. His brow was drawn, his lips were drooping and his smile was wan and sickly. Mr. Moss read Ruth Wheeler's name from the book and asked:

"Why did you also write March 24th?"

"Because I thought that date was Monday."

"Why did you write it—wasn't the girl standing alongside of you when you wrote this? Hadn't you told her you would give her a job?"

"No. Fred Ahner told me to write it."

"When?"

"In my room on Thursday, March 24th, between three and four o'clock, he dictated it to me."

Mr. Moss wanted to know what Wolter had meant by telling Captain Carey that he had copied the name Ruth Ahner Wheeler and her address from an advertisement.

"I did not tell him that."

Mr. Moss read from the stenographer's record of his examination by Captain Carey.

"Tell you, did you say that, didn't you?"

"I don't know. I was too sleepy at that time to remember," was the faint reply.

"Is that your shirt?"

Wolter looked it over carefully and replied:

"Yes."

"How did it get all that blood and grease on it?"

"I don't know."

"When Pearl Wheeler was in your room looking for Ruth, calling her by name, knocking on the closets, you had her name in the book and said nothing about it to Pearl?"

"I didn't remember," said Wolter.

"Why did you go so far away from home to buy the paint and brush?"

"Because I thought I could get it cheaper," said the witness, and Wolter's cross examination was ended.

The defense rested when Wolter left the stand. After several witnesses had been called by the prosecution in rebuttal and Katie Gilie was recalled to testify briefly for the defense, court adjourned until 4 o'clock, when Mr. Scott will sum up for Wolter.

Lowell and Worcester opened the season here today with a game at Spaulding park at 3 o'clock but the out-of-door parade and flag-raising ceremonies at the park prior to the game were postponed until Monday when Lawrence will be the attraction.

Invitations to the opening game will be going out Monday and all the details of the opening ceremonies will be carried out.

The Worcester team arrived here this morning and Manager Gray at once decided that if it were possible a game would be played. At noon the weather conditions were such that it was definitely decided that there would be a game.

Burkett Disturbed

Old Jesse Burkett and his champion came here today to open the season and Jesse went on the field at Spaulding park as mad as a hatter.

It had been arranged that there was to be an auto parade with the Lowell Cadet band dispensing sweet music and the immortal "Tessie," and there was to have been a flag-raising at the grounds before the game.

But none of these took place and hence Jesse's disappointment. Up noon it was doubtful if there would be a game but at that hour the sun came out and Manager Gray wisely announced that under the circumstances the opening game would be played but the ceremonies and parade would be postponed until Monday when Lawrence plays here. Jesse wanted the parade, believing that it would mean a larger attendance, but the parade was out of the question at that time.

Owing to the weather conditions the local team played in their traveling uniforms of gray and maroon, and home uniform of white being held back until a day when the grounds are dry and sliding can be done without spoiling the immaculate white suits.

The players went out to the grounds early and began in practice, for every man in the Lowell team was anxious to win the opening game. Don Edwards of Boston, who was connected with the team in Al. Wynn's time was present and went to the grounds with the boys. Doc expects to scout for one of the big league teams this season, which he admitted.

On Monday Lawrence will come here and then the auto parade and flag-raising will take place.

The teams lined up as follows:

Lowell	Worcester
Fitzpatrick 2b	2b Page
Ordway ss	If Anthony
Fluharty rf	3b Haas
Maggie lf	rf Burkett
Stone 1b	cf Crum
Jones cf	3b Manning
Campbell 3b	as Lambrecht
Huston	c Rondeau
Tyler p	p Collamore

First Inning

Although the weather was not at all favorable for base ball there were about 1500 persons present. It was expected that Mayor John F. McManus would throw the first ball, but he will be at Monday's game instead when the formal opening of the season will take place.

Just prior to the opening of the game Manager James J. Gray was called to the plate and presented a mammoth floral horseshoe.

Page, the first man up, drew a free pass. Anthony hit one too hard for Stone to handle and he got on. Tyler then struck out Haas. Burkett after getting three balls and two strikes flew to Jones and the latter by a quick throw caught Page at the plate.

In the latter half of the inning Fitzpatrick got a scratch single. Ordway sent him to second with a sacrifice. Fluharty nearly knocked Collamore over with a hot liner, and Fitz went to third. Maggee fled to Haas and Stone closed the inning by flying to Lambrecht.

Score—Lowell 0, Worcester 0.

RETAIL CLERKS

Of Local Stores Want Thursday Half Holiday

The retail clerks of this city want the Thursday half-holiday, expression to that effect having been made at the monster mass meeting held in Harrington hall in Central street last night. There were over 400 of the clerks in attendance and the meeting proved to be an enthusiastic one.

The first matter of business taken up was relative to the closing of the stores on Thursday afternoons and the members were unanimously in favor of closing on that day. It was voted that a committee of ten be appointed to interview the merchants and petition them for a half-holiday on Thursday afternoons.

The committee which was appointed consists of an employee from each of the following stores: Putnam Clothing Co., Bon Marche Dry Goods Co., Talbot Clothing Co., Cook & Taylor, Gilbride's, O'Donnell's, A. G. Pollard Co., MacCartney's, Colonial store and Chaffin's.

While the matter of earlier evening closing was taken up, it met with a rather cool reception, and when the sentiment was expressed, "Thursday afternoon or nothing," it was received with such enthusiasm as to show without the shadow of a doubt how the clerks feel in this matter.

At the next meeting the matter of forming a union will be taken up and after the business meeting a short social time will be enjoyed.

MANY KILLED

Chinese of Hunan Threaten to Put Foreigners to Death

HANKOW, China, April 22.—The situation in Hunan province is reported as critical. Women and children are fleeing for their lives from Changsha, the capital. A number of villages near that city have been reduced to ashes by native mobs. The country is peppered with threats to kill all foreigners.

This disquieting news was brought by missionary refugees who arrived here from Changsha and nearby missionary stations at 10 a. m. today. Many of them had traveled 30 miles on foot and reached the Yang Tze Kiang river in rags. Their houses had been burned and they lost all of their personal effects. The missionaries stated that gunboats in the river have their guns trained upon Changsha and nearby points and have afforded a refuge for many foreigners. Three thousand Chinese imperial soldiers are occupying the strategic points of the capital and detachments are being hurried to the outlying districts where Chinese are reported. Many Chinese have been killed. In one instance a technical school was set afire and 30 students were burned to death.

When vessels approached Changsha to rescue the imperiled ones the Chinese mob saturated junks with kerosene oil from the looted stations of the Standard Oil Co. and, setting them afire, allowed them to float down stream in an attempt to fire the oncoming steamers.

The viceroys of Hunan province and the governor of Changsha assert that they have the situation in hand and that order is practically restored, but the missionaries say that they fear further outrages.

The telegraph wires to the westward of the disturbed districts have been cut. Many missionaries, American, French and Norwegian, remain at outlying points. The British consul at Changsha, who has arrived here, said today:

"If one foreigner had been killed a massacre probably would have followed. The British consulate was burned because it employed laborers from another province in the construction of new buildings."

The monetary loss to foreign interests is believed not to have been great. The Standard Oil Co. has lost a few thousand cans of oil.

FOR COUNSEL FEES

Lawyer Sues City of Malden for $10,000

Remainder of a $25,000 Counsel Fee That He Alleges is Still Due Him—Verdict of $172.20 for Plaintiff in Case of Sullivan vs. Inhabitants of Pepperell

The jury in the case of Sullivan vs. the inhabitants of Pepperell to recover land damages returned a verdict of $172.20 for the plaintiff this morning.

The case of Charles R. Elder of Malden vs. City of Malden to recover $10,000 for legal services rendered the city of Malden, was opened shortly before adjournment last evening and took the entire session today. All jury men not empaneled on this case being excused until Monday.

The plaintiff, Mr. Elder, is a former city solicitor of Malden but the case is an action of contract to recover the balance which the plaintiff alleges is due him for professional services when not city solicitor, rendered in the city's suit against the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which resulted from the taking of Spot pond—the source of the water supply of Malden, Melrose and Medford—when the new Metropolitan Water System was established, by act of the legislature.

Mr. Elder claims that he is an expert on water systems, and that his services for the city were unique.

Judgment was entered against the Commonwealth, in the sum of $279,584.72, a much larger sum than the city at first was willing to accept. Mr. Elder claims that this was due to his expert services, and the large amount of research which he put into the case; and he considers that he was entitled to receive $25,000. He was paid $15,000, and now seeks to recover the remainder, with interest.

Mr. Elder's case has been heard by an auditor, who decided in his favor, finding that the claim of $25,000 made by Mr. Elder was a reasonable one for the services rendered. The auditor found that the case was unique, that it involved many questions of law, some of which were extremely complicated, and many questions of fact more or less involved. Also, that the whole history of Spot pond had to be looked up, from the time of its discovery in 1877, and that all legislative enactments relating to water systems had to be looked up by the counsel. He found that Mr. Elder spent 252 days of five hours each, in working on the case, preparing it for trial, and in the trial.

The city claims that it did not employ Mr. Elder as an expert and that it was not known in Malden that he was an expert on water cases. He was known as a hard worker, and was employed by an act of the city council, authorizing the mayor to employ additional counsel. That he was not employed to assume the whole responsibility of the case, but to assist the city solicitor. The city prior to his employment there had been several counsel in the case. Also that the work of preparing the case had been subdivided, between counsel for the three cities.

John C. Burke of this city conducts the case for the plaintiff and R. L. Dorrwell and F. P. Miller for the defendant. The session was taken up with the reading and discussion of the auditor's report in the case.

TREADWAY'S VOTE

Killed the 54 Hour Bill in the Senate Yesterday

BOSTON, April 22.—President Treadway of the senate killed the 54-hour bill for women and minors in mercantile and manufacturing establishments yesterday by casting the vote which created a tie.

The record stood 18 to 17, with every member of the body recorded but Senator Turtle of Pittsfield. Senator Keith of Bridgewater was paired with Senator Spalding of Cambridge, and Sen. Parker, who was sitting beside President Treadway, was requested to ask the Pittsfield member if he would not vote.

Senator Turtle, who was in his seat, refused to do so. The president, who could note the refusal from his place on the rostrum, at once requested Clerk Coolidge to "call the name of the president of the honorable senate."

It was called and President Treadway answered "No," making the vote 18 to 18 and killing the measure as effectively as if a majority had been shown against it. Senator Ross immediately gave notice that he would move reconsideration this afternoon, and the matter went into the orders of the day.

Opponents Want Amendment Previous to the matter being reached on the calendar yesterday several of the bill's opponents suggested that if it were amended so that it would go into effect in 1912, instead of 1911, as provided in the measure as it stands, they might be induced to vote for it.

Senator Ross of New Bedford, who was in charge of the measure, was asked to accept the suggestion, and declared that he was willing to take a chance on it as it stood. Senator Turner of Fall River was willing to meet the others half way, but agreed that Senator Ross, who had had charge of all the preliminary work, probably was the best judge of the chances. As a result the suggested amendment was discarded, and the fight went on the bill as it was before the senate, although it is possible that the friends of the measure may accept the suggestion today if it should be decided to reconsider.

Senator Ross, in opening for the bill, related the history of the compromise two years ago, by which the 54 hour bill was made a 56 hour bill and passed in that form. He declared that that measure had never been satisfactory to the labor people and gave it as his opinion that Rhode Island stood ready to pass a 54 hour bill when Massachusetts did.

"This state has an eight hour law for sturdy men, who are employed in the open air for most of the time," he argued. "The women and children who suffer in the mills are not given the same consideration."

He suggested that the bill could be given its third reading and then, if it were deemed advisable to amend it the amendments might be offered on the next stage.

"If the bill is going to be amended it had better be today," suggested Senator Mahoney of Holyoke. "Then they can be printed and we can study them over Sunday."

The vote was taken a few moments afterwards. The roll call showed the following:

Ye—Bunting, Butler, Doyle, Harvey, Hibbard, Lomasney, Mahoney, Malley, Monney, Nash, Nason, Newhall, O'Connor, Rankin, Ross, Seeling, Tolman, Turner—18.

No—Bennett, Blanchard, Bray, Burnham, Crosby, Denny, Evans, Farley, Gwynwood, Holman, Mellen, Milligan, Parker, Pickford, Rockwood, Tinkham, Treadway (president), White—18.

Paired—Yes, Kelti; no, Spalding. Not voting—Turtle.

FIRE COMMISSIONER

JEREMIAH J. MCCARTHY SELECTED BY MAJOR FITZGERALD

BOSTON, April 22.—Jeremiah J. McCarthy, surveyor of the port of Boston, has been selected by Major Fitzgerald to succeed General Samuel D. Parker as fire commissioner.

The surveyor, who started his long career of public service with the volunteer fire department of Charlestown, has accepted the mayor's offer and is preparing to assume his new duties at the expiration of Commissioner Parker's term on May 1.

That the surveyor will receive the endorsement of the civil service commission is generally accepted because he served six years as a houseman in the regular department and was a member of the state board of fire commissioners by appointment of Governor Brackett. While he was a member of the board he visited Europe and studied the fire departments of all the big cities.

WORCESTER MEN

Say They Have Perfected Flying Machine

WORCESTER, April 22.—Something of a surprise was handed out to Supt. of Public Buildings Halcott when he asked the nature of the structure which Alphonse J. Dube and his brother Vincent Dube asked permission to build.

"I want a building permit for a garage," said Dube.

"Going to have a new place to store the auto in?" asked Supt. Halcott, interestedly.

"This is an aeroplane garage," answered Dube but it might do for an auto on a pinch.

As soon as Mr. Halcott recovered from the shock he dragged out his permit blank and filled out his first flying garage permit.

"I suppose I might just as well start issuing these permits now," he said, "for they are bound to come sooner or later."

The Dube brothers have been experimenting in airships for some time and claim that they now have a perfected flying machine.

SHOT IN HEAD

Doctors Expect to Save Man's Life

The condition was serious when he was taken to the surgeon's table and with heroic treatment the doctors expect to save his life.

Royce resides at 11 Bolander street and in some mysterious manner he was shot and the police are unable to obtain any sort of a satisfactory statement from the occupants of the house where Royce lived and where the shooting took place. The bullet entered the head near the jaw. Royce is 62 years old and he is one of the best-known residents of the North End.

Feet So Sore
Couldn't Walk
TIZ Cured Her Quick.

If you have sore feet, tired feet, sweaty feet, lame feet, tender feet, smelly feet, corns, callouses or bunions, read what happened to Mrs. Crockett of Jeffersonville, TIZ DID IT. Mrs. Crockett says: "After the second treatment she walked downstairs on each step with one of a firm, it is remarkable. Send five more boxes."

No matter what ails your feet or what under heaven you have used without getting relief, just use TIZ. It's different. It acts right off. It cures sore feet to stay cured. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous excretions which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. You will feel better the first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25c per box, or direct, if you wish, from Walter Lath & Co., Chicago, Ill.

JOHN A. McKENNA MEN INVOLVED IN COTTON POOL, ATTORNEY GENERAL AND SENATORS DEMANDING PROBE

Resigns as Secretary of Board of Trade

John A. McKenna, for the past four years the efficient and courteous secretary of the Lowell board of trade, has resigned his position to become sales manager of a well known manufacturing concern located in this city. The resignation was received by the executive committee on Monday and is to take effect on April 30. Mr. McKenna, however, has consented to remain in office after that date if the board by that time has not found a successor to his place.

Mr. McKenna's resignation was a complete surprise to the members of the board and was received with general regret. He has worked untiringly for the advancement of the board's interests and it was mainly through his efforts that the membership of the organization has increased from 92 to 700 in the past four years.

President Harvey B. Greene when apprised of Mr. McKenna's resignation, said: "We are very sorry to lose Mr. McKenna. He has made a most able secretary of the board, has worked unceasingly for its advancement, and has the highest respect and friendship of every member of the organization."

Mr. Greene stated that the executive committee of the board would meet in the near future to take action upon Mr. McKenna's resignation. He also stated that it might be some little time before a new secretary was chosen.

FRANK M. BELL

Presented Memorial by T. & L. Council

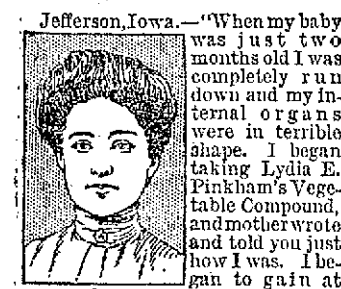

Frank M. Bell, retiring secretary of the Trades and Labor council was last evening presented a handsome memorial, inscribed with the resolutions of regret and the appreciation of his services, passed by the Trades and Labor council upon receiving his resignation.

The presentation took place in the hall at 22 Middle street, in the presence of every member of the council, the presentation being by President Thomas J. Reagan of the council. Mr. Bell, who was taken entirely by surprise, had difficulty in responding.

The memorial is signed by Thomas J. Reagan, Charles E. Anderson and M. A. Lee, and subscribes to the excellence of Mr. Bell's work as secretary, his untiring efforts in behalf of the council, the appreciation of his worth by the council, and the regret of that body at his retirement from office. It is framed and ready for hanging.

D. A. R. CONGRESS

More Excitement is Expected Today

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Delegates to the continental congress of the national society of the Daughters of the American Revolution were again intent on their political affairs when the congress was called to order this morning. Because the election of two days previous had failed in the selection of an honorary vice-president, general and one of the ten vice-presidents another day of balloting was in order. The delegates began voting early for seven nominees for vice-president general who had failed to get a majority vote on Wednesday. From these seven one more vice-president will be chosen. Those nominated for honorary vice-president general before were Mrs. Charles H. Deane of Illinois, Mrs. Sarah T. Kinney of Connecticut, and Mrs. Althen Dedio of New Jersey. None received a majority in the voting Wednesday. After the reception to the delegates last night by Mrs. Matthew Scott, the president general, many of the members busily engaged themselves in electioneering to secure an election today of the necessary two to complete the personnel of officials.

While the ballots were being counted reports of committees and state regents were heard.

This afternoon in Continental hall an entertainment for the children of the American revolution will be held.

ATTORNEY GENERAL WICKERSHAM

J. W. GATES

SENATOR OVERMAN

SENATOR SIMMONS

NEW YORK, April 22.—With some $18,000,000 in cash at his command and plenty of credit from Chicago banks, James A. Patten is in the midst of a fight against the bears in a cotton pool. While Patten is leading the bulls in their struggle for profits and higher prices his greatest trouble is coming when Attorney General Wickersham, backed up by Senator Bacon of Georgia, Senator Overman of North Carolina and Senator Simmons of the same state, lays the matter before the courts. Patten declares he is not running a pool, but is buying and paying for all cotton offered him. But that a pool does exist and that other failures are due to follow the failure of Knight, Yancey & Co., one of the largest "spot" houses in the country, is the statement credited to government officials. Attorney General Wickersham has gone on record as saying an illegal cotton pool exists and the government will punish the guilty members. John W. Gates is credited with being a partner of Patten, and Gates is quoted as saying the "government will have a long run before it gets Jim." The investigation of the cotton pool has been carried into the United States senate, many southern senators backing Wickersham, while other senators are demanding to know why the government is taking such an active part in cotton dealings. Before the inquiry is completed sensations in the form of shattered reputations are promised in high financial and political circles.

LET DREAMS COME TRUE

BOY DROWNED

Little Lad Was Gathering Pussy Willows

Edgar Decelle, aged eight years, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Decelle of 1189 Lakewood avenue, Dracut, was drowned shortly before five o'clock yesterday afternoon in Beaver brook at a point near the Parker avenue bridge in the Navy Yard section.

The boy was gathering pussy willows and had climbed into a willow tree whose branches extend for some little distance over the water. One of the limbs into which he was holding for support gave way and he was precipitated into the water. Yvonne, the little sister of the drowned boy, who was watching her brother screamed for help, but her cries and those of the victim failed to bring assistance in time. Those attracted to the scene made every effort to recover the body but this did not meet with any success and it was nearly 7 o'clock when Undertaker Albert dragged the little victim's body from the water after searching for only a short time.

The deceased is survived by his parents, besides three brothers, Harry, Walter and George and two sisters, Yvonne and Laura.

PRIMROSE CLUB. The fourth annual dancing party of the Primrose club was held last night in Present hall. There was a large attendance and the affair proved to be a success in every particular.

Music for dancing was furnished by Kiltedg's orchestra, and those in charge were: General manager, Andrew Tanager; assistant general manager, Thomas J. Boyle; floor director, James J. Boland; assistant floor director, Andrew Dowd; chief aid, William Walsh.

DELIGHTFUL CONCERT. A very delightful concert was held last night at the Highland Congregational church. The concert was under the auspices of the prudential committee and was in aid of the music fund. Readings by Miss Hazel D. Chandler contributed very acceptably to the evening's entertainment, and were much enjoyed. The auditorium was filled to overflowing.

NORTH BILLERICA

An excellent concert was held last night in the North Billerica Baptist church. The attendance was large and the program which was varied and well carried out greatly pleased the audience. Those who took part in the program were: Herbert Mallinson, violinist of Maynard; Mrs. Lillian Dodge Haskell, reader; Mrs. Nettie L. Roberts, vocalist; of Lowell; Miss Ella M. Reilly and Miss Hilda Perry with a piano and organ duet. A chorus of 25 voices under the direction of Miss Minnie Clifford rendered several pleasing numbers and a short organ recital which included a series of classical selections was given by Miss Reilly, the church organist.

Valuable Advice to Sufferers From Skin Diseases.

Under no circumstances should medicated or plain soap or any preparation containing alcohol or water, be used by sufferers from eczema and similar skin troubles. Those things aggravate the trouble and make it impossible for the skin to heal. The new medical compound called Cadum is the best and surest remedy, as it contains neither water nor alcohol. When applied, it excludes the air and other irritating agents, stops the itching at once, and sets up the healing process immediately. Most wonderful cures are reported from all sections. Cadum is just as effective in the treatment of psoriasis, ringworm, pimples, blotches, rash, eruptions, chafings, itching piles, rough, scaly skin, sores, acne, herpes, etc. 10c and 25c. First Time In My History

I had to stop taking orders for Patriots' day delivery early last week. It was simply and utterly impossible for me to turn out the unexpected volume of work on time. As money could not buy additional skilled labor at this season of the year I could not accept the orders, so I let many a man out of my store to get a suit elsewhere.

With double the facilities that always proved adequate to my growing trade this is the first time in my career that I could not take all the business that came my way.

Think a moment. I do not attract people by pretentious stories. I don't go in for fancy furniture and swell fixtures. I'd rather put the money into the woollens. Advertising helps me, but is not my whole success. All the advertising from now till the crack of doom could not bolster an unworthy success long enough to pay the printer. It's the values, man, it's the pleased customer, it's the good word passed along from Jim to Jack, from Jack to Joe and so on.

Hockanum Worsteds

I pulled off a stunt last week that I admit I can't always duplicate. It isn't given to any one man in business to always accomplish the wonderful things that are wonderful because they are seldom. Today I can talk big—I've got the goods. I've got for you and your neighbors the famous

ROYAL WELCOME

Theatre Audience in Paris Went Wild Over Roosevelt

PARIS, April 22.—No reigning sovereign ever received a more enthusiastic welcome to Paris than did Theodore Roosevelt, the former president of the United States, yesterday. He reached here at half past seven o'clock yesterday morning and was greeted by the representatives of the president of the republic and the cabinet, American Ambassador Bacon; M. Jusserand, the French ambassador at Washington, and a great concourse of people, which the cordon of troops surrounding the railway station had difficulty in holding in check.

After luncheon at the American embassy, Col. Roosevelt called upon President Fallieres and Foreign Minister Pinchon, who immediately afterwards paid return visits to the embassy. Part of the afternoon was devoted to private engagements.

Mr. Roosevelt was given an ovation at the Comedie Francaise last evening, where he made his real public appearance in Paris, occupying the presidential box which had been placed at his disposal by M. Fallieres.

Anticipating his coming, every seat and every box stall seat in the theatre had been sold days in advance, the audience being an exceptionally brilliant one. When Col. Roosevelt entered the theatre between acts, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel, Kermitt, and Ambassador and Mrs. Bacon, the house literally rose to its feet, volleys of applause bursting from the boxes, pit and gallery. For a full minute the colored made no response, but as the demonstration continued he came forward and bowed his acknowledgments. The bill was Sophocles' Greek tragedy, "Oedipus Rex," staged and acted as only possible at a French national theatre, and Mr. Roosevelt seemed to enjoy it hugely, joining with the audience in the applause. At the end of each act, when Mounet-Sully, who played the title role, and the other performers responded, they advanced as enthusiastically when royalty is present, bowing profoundly in the direction of the ex-president before turning to the audience. This seemed only to give additional pleasure to the audience, which in turn each time gave a fresh round of applause for Mr. Roosevelt.

During one of the intermissions Jules Claretie, director of the theatre, conducted the party through the magnificent foyer, pointing out the statues, portraits and relics of actors and authors once connected with the history of the famous houses. As the party left the building at the close of the performance, rounds of cheers were given by the crowds outside.

"The Temps last night fairly reflected the tone of the entire French press, declaring that Mr. Roosevelt's tour of Europe is unparalleled in history. 'No democratic chief of state,' says the paper, 'ever before enjoyed such popularity. We are accustomed to formal visits of kings and presidents, but Roosevelt is no longer president. It is the man, therefore, not the office, which is being honored. It is his vigor, his personality, his character, ideas and temperament, which appeal to European opinion."

After reviewing his career, the Temps concludes:

"Few are more worthy of the esteem of the democracy, for he represents at the same time liberty and authority—those two antithesis which republicans, conscious of their duty and solicitude of the future, are everywhere trying to harness together."

All of the newspapers are particularly warm in their words of welcome and the sentiment of Parisians generally is shown in the abundant display of American flags and bunting on private residences, shops and public buildings.

Mr. Roosevelt said last night that he expected to enjoy his stay in Paris, particularly where he was acquainted, either personally or through correspondence with a host of interesting personalities in the literary, scientific, artistic and political world. At his request Ambassador Bacon managed to restrict the number of official functions as much as possible, to allow him to meet and exchange views with eminent Frenchmen, in whose ideas he is greatly interested.

Yesterday afternoon Col. Roosevelt slipped away for two hours to pay visits to President Loubet and the sister of the late Edward Simmons, the American artist, for whose work the ex-president has a high regard.

Saturday will be devoted to a reception by the French Immortals and the university, Col. Roosevelt delivering his lecture at the Sorbonne on that day, and the American ambassador has arranged for a reception on Tuesday night, to which only Frenchmen distinguished in arts and letters have been invited. Arrangements also have been made for the ex-president to meet Leon Bourgeois, the ex-minister of foreign affairs, Jean Louis Renault and Baron D'Estournelles De Constant, the leaders of the French arbitration and peace movements. Among other engagements made by Col. Roosevelt is a dinner with Edith Wharton, the writer.

Jules Cambon, whom Mr. Roosevelt knew well in Washington, will come from Berlin today to be present at the dinner of President Fallieres. M. Clemenceau, the former premier, has also been invited, but he is ill at Karlsbad and has been obliged to decline.

The lecture at the Sorbonne on Saturday, which the entire cabinet will attend, it is understood, will be a very vigorous document. It was written a year and a half ago and deals with the duties of citizenship. Col. Roosevelt said yesterday that he looked to find his greatest pleasure in addressing before one of the oldest universities in the world. When informed that 900 students had been selected who understood English, he replied laughingly: "I should like to speak to them in French, but I have too much regard for my auditors."

It is understood that both the English and French lectures, as well as that at the Sorbonne, were written in America, the only product of his African labors being the Nobel prize address to be delivered at Christiania.

During the course of the day more than 500 cards were left at the American embassy, where Mr. Roosevelt and his family will be guests during their stay here.

Today will be spent in sightseeing. In the afternoon there will be a luncheon and reception to the American colony at the American embassy, and in the evening President Fallieres will have Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt as guests at dinner and a reception at Elysee palace.

MAN STABBED

Row Occurred Over Marriage of Girl

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 22.—Two Greeks are at the Notre Dame hospital, one of them at the point of death. He received a stab wound through the skull, penetrating the brain, in a street riot among Greeks at 9 o'clock last night. The dying man is named Stavris Samaras, aged 24. Another Greek, Dementrius Plankis, received two deep stabs in the back. The police made a large number of arrests. The row occurred over the marriage of a young Greek girl to a Roumanian, at which the Macedonian Greeks took offense.

ROGERS ESTATE

Valued By Executors at $36,000,000

NEW YORK, April 22.—Instead of the fortune of $100,000,000 popularly accredited to H. H. Rogers, the former vice president of the Standard Oil Co. left an estate valued by his executors at less than $36,000,000, on which a profligate inheritance tax has been paid, according to the New York World. By making this payment the executors are entitled to a discount of five per cent.

The estimate and report on the estate were filed, it is stated, on Nov. 18 last, but no inkling of the fact has ever been made public. The estimated value is given as $24,200,000. An error of five per cent either way is allowable under the rules of the state comptroller's office, and granting the full allowance is asked for in the final accounting, the estate would be worth but $33,910,000.

At the time of the panic of 1907 Rogers had been obliged to dispose of securities at a loss and the statement that he left only one-third of the fortune he was supposed to possess is cited as giving color to the truth of these assertions.

Wednesday night by the members of the Maternal association at the First Congregational church. The gathering was a very pleasant one, the president of the organization, Mrs. M. J. Boynton, welcoming the guests in a most cordial manner.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Mr. Wedge of the Baptist church. Many interesting, entertaining, applicable suggestions were made in the course of the address which were approved by his hearers, as evidenced by frequent applause.

A pleasing musical program, consisting of piano solos by Miss Murphy and vocal solos by Mrs. Stella Wilson, contributed to the enjoyment of the evening.

The hostesses of the evening were Mrs. Robert S. Fulton and Mrs. John

E. Lewis, who were ably assisted by the following members: Reception committee: Mrs. Boynton, president; Mrs. Fulton, vice president; Mrs. Charles E. Robinson, secretary; Mrs. John E. Lewis, Mrs. Otis W. Butler, and Mrs. Edward F. Carley, treasurer.

Prior to an hour of sociability, a most appetizing chafing dish luncheon was daintily served by Mrs. John E. Lewis, Mrs. Otis W. Butler, Mrs. Arthur Bartlett, Mrs. Frank Hoyt, Mrs. Walter Hoyt and Mrs. Charles E. Robinson. Mrs. John A. Osgood poured.

MARK TWAIN DEAD

The Noted Humorist Passed Away at Redding, Conn.

REDDING, Conn., April 22.—Samuel Langhorne Clemens, "Mark Twain," died peacefully at his home here at 6:30 o'clock last night of angina pectoris. He lapsed into coma at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and never recovered consciousness. It was the end of a man worn out by grief and agony of body.

Wednesday was a bad day for the little knot of anxious watchers at the bedside. For hours the gray, aquiline features lay moulded in the inertia of death, while the pale, sunken eyes and lower lip late at night Mark Twain passed from stupor into the first natural sleep he had known since he returned from Bermuda, and yesterday morning woke refreshed, even faintly cheerful, and in full possession of all his faculties. He recognized his daughter Clara, Mrs. Ozzie Gabriellowitch, spoke a word or two, and, feeling himself unequal to conversation, wrote out in pencil: "Give me my glasses."

They were his last words. Laying them aside he sank first into reverie and later into final unconsciousness. There was no thought at the time, however, that the end was so near. At 5 o'clock Dr. Robert Halsey, who had been continuously in attendance, said: "Mr. Clemens is not so strong at this hour as he was at the corresponding hour yesterday, but he has wonderful vitality and he may rally again."

Albert Bigelow Paine, Mark Twain's biographer and literary executor, said to a caller who desired to inquire for Mr. Clemens, "I do not think you will have to call often."

Nevertheless, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Loomis, who had come up from New York to give their love in person, left Stamford, Mr. Clemens' home, without seeing him, and heard of his death just as they were taking the train to New York again.

Mrs. Loomis was Mr. Clemens' favorite niece, and Mr. Loomis is vice-president of the Lackawanna railroad. Similarly, Jarvis Langdon, a nephew, who had run up for the day, left even earlier, and wholly uninformative. At the death bed were only Mrs. Gabriellowitch (Clara Clemens), her husband, Dr. Robert Halsey, Dr. Quintard, Albert Bigelow Paine, and the two trained nurses.

Restoratives were administered, but the patient failed to respond. Oxygen was tried Wednesday, and the physicians explained that it was of no value because the valvular action of the heart was not disordered. There was only an extreme and increasing debility accompanied by labored respiration.

Although angina pectoris is characterized by severe pain and deep impression of anxiety, Mark Twain did not die in anguish. Sedatives soothed his pain, but in his moments of consciousness the mental depression persisted. On the way up from Bermuda he said to Mr. Paine, who had been his constant companion in illness: "This is a bad job; we'll never pull through with it."

On shore once more, and longing for the serenity of the New England hills, he took courage and said to

"FALSE REPORT"

Is the Charge Against Police Inspector

NEW YORK, April 22.—Police Inspector Husey is in serious trouble with Mayor Gaynor and will probably stand trial in the near future, as the result of making a report which the mayor believes to "have been false and without warrant."

Louis Bowsky, of No. 438 West One Hundred and Sixteenth street, on March 18 wrote Mayor Gaynor a letter protesting that the police were interfering with boys selling flowers at the subway station in Broadway, and One Hundred and Sixteenth street, while they allowed vendors of vegetables and newspapers to go unmolested.

Instead of investigating this complaint from his own office, as was his custom, the mayor sent the complaint to Police Commissioner Baker, asking him to look into it. Baker turned the letter over to Inspector Husey, calling for an investigation. In due time Husey sent a report to Baker saying that Bowsky denied ever having written the letter to the mayor and that the complaint was entirely unfounded.

Baker forwarded this report to Mayor Gaynor, who then took the matter into his own hand and asked William E. McInerney, his executive secretary, to make an investigation. As a result of the mayor's inquiry, Bowsky yesterday appeared at the mayor's office, where he swore to an affidavit setting forth that the original letter of complaint was in his own hand, that no police official ever saw him, and that he never made any statement to Inspector Husey or any other official or citizen purporting to represent him, and that the police were still persecuting the boys attempting to sell flowers at Broadway and One Hundred and Sixteenth street.

The mayor last night sent this affidavit by Bowsky to Commissioner Baker, attached to Husey's report declaring that Bowsky had repudiated his letter. The mayor demanded an immediate explanation of Husey's "false report," and intimated that unless Husey could make the matter right, the first thing today he would be placed on trial in a day or so and dismissed for submitting a false report to the mayor.

This action by the mayor alarmed the police department thoroughly last night as soon as the action in Husey's case became known, for it was understood on excellent authority that the mayor had trapped at least three other inspectors in a similar manner and would proceed against them as soon as Husey's case was disposed of.

GRAND CANYON

BEFORE KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS LAST EVENING

Noted Speakers Secured for Council's Banquet on Next Tuesday Evening in Council Rooms

"The Grand Canyon of Colorado," was the theme of an interesting lecture before the members of Lowell Council, Knights of Columbus last evening. The lecturer was Mr. Charles F. McHugh of Cambridge, an eloquent speaker who described the scenes amid the massive gorge most eloquently. The talk was made doubly interesting from the fact that 100 vari-colored views of the canyon region were displayed on the screen. Mr. McHugh visited the canyon district one year ago, and he declared that the place was indescribably beautiful, well worth a trip. During the evening an entertainment program was presented, the feature of which were selections by the Pochontas Mandolin club, under the direction of Wm. P. Hovey. They gave several popular medleys that brought forth tremendous applause. The members of the club are as follows: Violins, George Nelson, Edw. P. Slattery, Jr., Herbert Wisby, William Wiggin; mandolins, Charles Hillier, Edmund Kolsy, Donald Kirby, Harry Brown, and James Rooney; guitars, Abdon Phil, Fred Rolfe, Charles Bell, Donald Whitney, John Down and Barry Putnam. Songs were rendered by Andrew McCarthy and James E. Donnelly. Both gentlemen responded to encores. After the entertainment a buffet luncheon was served. Dr. Thomas P. Carroll was accompanied during the evening. The affair was in charge of Mr. John H. Murphy, lecturer of the council, who has demonstrated since assuming the position that he is the right man in the right place. Mr. Murphy has other entertainments arranged for the members.

K. of C. Banquet

The annual banquet of Lowell Council, Knights of Columbus, will be held Tuesday evening next, and promises to be a brilliant affair. At the post prandial exercises Dr. James J. Walsh of Fordham university, an eloquent speaker and author of note, will be the principal speaker. Dr. Walsh is regarded as in the forefront of Catholic educators, and this week delivered a lecture in Boston in aid of the new

POLICE CAPTAIN

Says He Was Offered $50 Bribe

NEW YORK, April 22.—Assistant District Attorney Robert Elder, of Kings county, Deputy Police Commissioner Reynolds, in charge of Brooklyn, and Captain Samuel McElroy, of the Hamilton avenue police station, Brooklyn, are congratulating themselves on the clever manner in which they trapped a man who, they allege, attempted to bribe Captain McElroy.

The man, who gave the name of Michael M. Armarampa, a barber, of 39 Carroll street, was arrested yesterday afternoon in front of the county courthouse, in Brooklyn, by Lieutenants Van Wagener and Murphy, and later was held in $3000 bail in Adams street court. He was locked up in Raymond street jail.

Several days ago, shortly after Captain McElroy was placed in command of the Hamilton avenue station, Armarampa approached Captain McElroy, the police say, and offered him $50 to refrain from raiding the premises of Frank Colma, at 3 Carroll street, which has been raided a dozen times.

The captain told the man he would consider the offer, and then took the matter to Deputy Commissioner Reynolds. Reynolds called in Elder. "Why, I know this man!" exclaimed Elder. "He is known as Mike the Fixer." "This time we'll fix him," Reynolds and Elder instructed the captain to make an appointment with Armarampa at the captain's home, 991 Sterling place, for the purpose of receiving the money. On Tuesday night the prisoner called at McElroy's home, the captain says, and tendered

NEW YORK, April 22.—After a race of four miles against time, Dr. William Klein, of St. Joseph's hospital, Yonkers, probably saved Peter Clowry, thirty-four, of No. 37 St. Joseph's avenue, Yonkers, at the Webster avenue car barns of the Yonkers Railroad company, last night.

Clowry, a machinist at the car barns, after leaving for the night, had attempted to board the front platform of a Yonkers bound car. He slipped and his foot caught in the step. He was dragged about fifty yards before the motorman saw what had happened and stopped the car.

One of Clowry's feet was almost severed and his head and body were badly bruised, and Clowry had lost much blood. No medical aid was procurable in the vicinity, but a telephone message brought Dr. Klein.

MILK PRODUCERS

Plan a Milkless Day for Boston on May 1

BOSTON, April 22.—If the plans of the Boston Co-Operative Milk Producers' association do not miscarry, Boston will have a milkless May 1.

Reports show that the farmers all over New England are being organized and are agreeing to withdraw their milk from the Boston market after April 20, when the winter price agreement with the group of contractors who control the milk of New England expires, in order to prevent the reduction of the winter price and force a retention of the winter rates throughout the whole year.

The indications seem to be that the farmer is preparing to rise in his might as he never has before.

"This will be the greatest withdrawal of milk from the Boston market that New England has ever seen," Jonas Bonis of Charleston, secretary of the Boston Co-Operative Milk Producers' association, said tonight. "We'll have Boston so dry May 1 that her people will have to drink the sea water."

If this withdrawal goes through, as it will unless the contractors grant the farmers' demands—and their attitude now and in the past makes it almost certain that they will not—much of the milk supplies that will be withdrawn will never be again available for Boston. We have the contractors on chance to get in line with us and they refused to grant our requests.

"The farmer has been pushed to the wall and you know a man in that position gets desperate. The farmer has rights in this matter and he is going to see at this time if he can't get them. He has gone to the legislature and the legislature has done nothing for him."

TO WITHDRAW MILK SUPPLY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 22.—Word was received here last night that 100 farmers, who supply milk to the Providence branch of a large Boston milk concern, last night gathered at Chestnut Hill, Conn., and voted to withdraw their milk from the Providence market unless the winter price is maintained in the summer schedule. A branch of the Boston Co-Operative Milk Producers' association was organized with Nathan Manning of Lebanon, Conn., president, and L. M. Lord of Chestnut Hill, secretary and treasurer. A measure for a campaign fund was secured.

GLIDDEN TOUR

Some Great Attractions to be Seen

One of the great attractions of the 1910 Glidden tour 'from the tourists' point of view will be the historical interest attaching to the various towns in Kentucky and Tennessee. The Gliddenites will travel through much of the civil war territory and through some of the oldest country in the Union. The official pathfinding party has found the people in this territory hospitable and intensely interested in the automobile. They are always willing in fact, proud to relate the historical anecdotes of their localities.

Bardstown, a typical Kentucky village, strung out along the old Louisville and Nashville pike, was found by the pathfinding party as intensely interesting a spot as any along the route. There are a few distilleries, a court house and some private residences in Bardstown which causes the beholder to think that he is gazing upon a vision born of too many misty legends. In this respect Bardstown is by no means in a class by itself.

But Bardstown is the birthplace of "Old Kentucky Home" in Judge Rowan's plantation, on the border of the town. Stephen Foster, an invalid, who was the judge's guest one summer in the old days, had a restless night. Looking over the tall ridges from the window of his room, he felt the spell that Kentucky exercises on all who call her home. He heard the twanging of the banjos and the songs and laughter from the servants' quarters. In the morning he laid at his host's place at the table the manuscript of the song which has become as famous as any in the English language.

But Bardstown has an even more romantic association. In 1812 Louis Philippe an exile, deposed from the throne of France, found refuge in the home of Bishop B. J. Flaget in Bardstown. He had met the prelate while traveling in Cuba. To show his appreciation of the bishop's hospitality, Philippe sent seven paintings to St. Joseph's church in this Kentucky hamlet. They are from the brushes of the old masters and still hang in the little house of worship.

There are also some paintings in this church which were presented by the Boone family.

In the run to Bowling Green from Louisville over the old Louisville and Nashville pike, the party in the pathfinder stumbled upon a vivid reminder of the fact that Abraham Lincoln was a native of Kentucky. There is near Buffalo, Ky., a splendid park filled with monuments of the great president and called the Lincoln memorial. Those in search of Lincoln lore make pilgrimages to this farm. On Knob Creek, just on the border of the village of Athertonville, is a cabin, 14 by 20 feet, built of hewn logs. It is the most remote building on the farm of T. R. Ford. In the structure Lincoln first attended school and there are irrefragable evidences to prove that the shack's claim to distinction is authentic. The building is now used as a manger and so far as the owner of the farm knows, it was never photographed until Y. M. A. Krohn, the official photographer with the Glidden pathfinder, snapped it.

The clay clinking has long since fallen away from the square timbers, which retain the scars of a broadaxe swung by some pioneer builder. The roof of tanned paper is a jarring note and yet as one stands in the little gulley surrounded by the trees which have withstood cultivation up to the present time, one unconsciously pictures an ungainly, tousled headed lad peering through the chink hole at the blue sky where there floated the ancient of two turkey buzzards that circled on motionless wings as the pathfinders gazed upon the tumble down shed.

It was but a few rods from this school on the Rolling Fork of Salt river that Lincoln embarked on a flat boat to leave Kentucky in 1819.

A Lincoln story with a startling point, yet containing a grizzled native by the crew of the pathfinder car in passing through this region. The inhabitants all speak of Lincoln as though he had been an intimate friend. His memory was worshipped and a few patriots who knew him are venerated solely on that account.

"LH had a right smart head on him," said the oldest inhabitant. "Or Ambrose Riney gave them boys in that school house that learnin' an mind ye. He never forgot them numphs. That boys had the pay. Mary Riney an' make a powerful bow, tadin' off their hats and bendin' low. Wal, me as went to school with Abe told me, an' it's true as God's above, Abe had to bor' a cap each day to make his bow. Yes, sub, he didn't have no cap he was that davin' pon'."

AN EXPERT'S OPINION OF SKIN DISEASES

A prominent, national expert on skin diseases whose name you are familiar with says that in all his scientific experience he has never found so hard a disease to conquer as Eczema. Yet he does not hesitate to recommend ZEMO as a most successful remedy for the treatment of Eczema, itching skin diseases, dandruff, pimples, blackheads and all other diseases of the skin and scalp. He says that not only ZEMO cures but that it is a clean, liquid remedy for external use. A great improvement over the old greasy soaps and ointments which are not only unpleasant to use but do not destroy the germ life that causes the disease. ZEMO draws the germs to the surface and destroys them, leaving the skin clear and healthy. Can be used freely on infants. A. W. Down will gladly supply those who call with a free sample bottle of ZEMO and a booklet which explains in simple language all about skin diseases and how to cure yourself at home with ZEMO.

street was put up to grade. Meanwhile the petition was tabled.

The question of macadamizing Butler avenue and laying sidewalks of edgestones and cinders thereon, was brought up. On motion of Councilman Donohoe it was voted to have sidewalks laid.

"ROYAL ROOTER"

Michael J. Regan Placed Under Arrest

PROVIDENCE, April 22.—Michael J. Regan, known all along the baseball belt as "the royal rooter" from Boston, was arrested by the police at the opening game of the Eastern league here yesterday afternoon at the request of Deputy Supt. Watts of Boston.

Regan was wanted in Massachusetts to answer a charge involving $14,000 in bonds of the Florida railway company, the securities being the property at one time of Harriette N. Brown of Boston.

Regan was not making much noise at the game yesterday and inspectors Ahearn and Monahan, who had been looking for him during the week, had no little difficulty in picking him out of the 10,000 other people at the Providence-Toronto contest.

Regan expressed no surprise when taken into custody. He said he knew that steps were being taken by the Boston authorities to get him back to his old stomping ground and that he had made no efforts to get away from Providence, but was about the city all the time and enjoying most of the good things of the town.

Celebrates Baseball Opening

"I've been celebrating the baseball opening a bit today," he told the inspectors, "and I'm feeling good as you can see."

Regan was jolly and then a bit cranky by spells. He finally told the inspectors that they need not ask Supt. Watts to send down an officer to take him back to Boston as a prisoner, for he would not go without extradition papers. The inspectors, however, are inclined to believe that Regan will change his mind.

Regan is held here as a prisoner on a fugitive from justice warrant, sworn out by Chief Horton, this action being taken at the instance of Supt. Watts, who wrote word on the case about a week ago. Watts said that while Regan was reported to be in Europe, he believed he was in Providence and would be on the honorary list of guests at the opening game.

REAL CHARITY

H. W. J. HOWE APPEALS FOR A WORTHY FAMILY

At the last meeting of the board of charity, Commissioner Howe made a strong appeal in behalf of a worthy family that had met with misfortune. He said this was one of many cases that had been brought to his attention and that he had investigated it personally with much care.

His rule was never to allow these cases to draw upon the resources of the department if other means of assistance could be provided. He had found that in many such cases very valuable assistance might be rendered in pointing out to the needy how they can help themselves by a little effort in the right direction.

The family for which he appealed in this case had been temporarily reduced to a state of destitution by sickness. The mother had been suffering for months from diabetes. There were several children and the husband, though temperate and industrious, could not command a higher wage than $6 or $7 a week in the mill.

The family had fallen behind in the rent and were ordered out of the tenement. The mother needed special care and diet but the husband has been unable to pay the rent or to pay the expense of moving. The landlord has waited as long as could be expected, but wants his tenement vacated. To prevent the family from being sent to the farm or from being thrown upon the street, Mr. Howe asked the board to pay the expense of moving and to be responsible for the first month's rent. The request was granted.

WOMEN'S GOLF PLAY

BOSTON, April 22.—It is a pretty stip proposition of 72 holes medal play which the executive committee of the Women's Eastern Golf association has planned for the championship at the Huntington Valley Country club, Noble, Pa., from June 8th to the 11th. In previous years 36 holes has been considered sufficient test, although on two occasions the play had been so close that extra holes were necessary to decide a tie.

The announcement of the meeting was made today by Miss Harriet Curtis, secretary pro tem of the association. The annual meeting of the association will be held on June 9th, 10th, silver and bronze medals will go to the winners and the champion will have the honor of having her name engraved on the association cup.

Contesting Will of Aunt Who Died in Haverhill

HAVERRHILL, April 22.—The supreme court will be called upon to probate the will of Elizabeth G. Bradley, who died in this city last February, as Fred C. Chase of Lowell, a nephew, has filed in the probate court of Essex county an appeal from the decision of that court, basing his action on the allegation "that the instrument was not properly signed and that it never was intended for her last will." Mrs. Bradley left an estate of $8900 and after bequeathing $1000 to the Plafatow, N. H., public library and $4000 more in specific bequests, she set aside the residue for the advancement of socialism and named Rev. Geo. E. Littlefield of Westwood, an ex-pastor of the Unitarian church here, and Alfred E. Gardner of this city, as trustees of the fund.

Henry W. Barnes of Lowell was named as executor of the will and on the document which was filed in the probate court, Ralph E. Gardner appeared as counsel for Mr. Barnes.

At the time the will was filed it was noted in court that it was not signed by the testator, but Mr. Gardner took the ground that the will was in her handwriting and that it was plain that it was her last will and testament. He was sustained by the probate court and the will allowed March 14.

SEARCH OF RUINS

Resulted In Finding of Man's Body

BEVERLY, April 22.—The body of Joseph Phillips, the missing hostler, was found when a search of the ruins of the livery stable of Fred K. Warner was made by the firemen today. Phillips slept in the stable and could not be found after the building caught fire last night. The bodies of eleven horses were uncovered today, and it is believed that five or six other horses were burned to death. Although the search of the stable is believed to have been due to a search of the ruins of the theory that it was of incendiary origin received some impetus by an inquiry into the other barns on Union street about 4 a. m. The barns which were used as a furniture storage house were badly damaged, causing an estimated loss of more than $5000.

LATEST ONE MAN IS DEAD

Many Others Were Injured in Fire at Beverly

BEVERLY, April 22.—One man lost his life, several persons were injured, 18 valuable horses were burned to death and the boarding stables of Fred L. Warner at 23 Atlantic avenue were completely destroyed in a spectacular fire last night in the heart of the residential section of this city.

Firemen, police officers and citizens searched the ruins of the Warner stables for hours after the fire for the body of Joseph Phillips, 60 years old, who was employed as night watchman in the stables and had a room in the left of the barn.

Phillips was seen to go into the stable five minutes before the fire was discovered and he was not seen to come out and has not been seen since.

Thomas Guinivan, who lives next door to the stables, saw Phillips go in to the barn. Phillips has been employed by Warner for two years.

The fire was attended by several spectacular incidents, for the sparks fell upon the roofs of surrounding buildings and started several other small fires.

Overcome by Smoke

When the alarm was sounded from box 15 at Atlantic avenue and Lethrop street at 8:40 p.m. the rear portion of the barn, which is a large frame building, was a mass of flames and by the time the department arrived it had gained great headway.

The fire was discovered by James Guinivan of Ocean street and he rushed into the barn of his brother, Patrick Guinivan, and removed five cows and a horse to a place of safety. Later this barn was slightly burned by a fire started by sparks from the Warner stables.

John A. Bartlett, who was near the Warner stables when the fire started, ran into the stables and attempted to save the horses. He succeeded in leading one horse out through a side door, but in doing so Bartlett nearly lost his own life, for he was overcome by the smoke at the side door and just barely managed to stagger out of the burning building.

The 16 horses which were left behind perished in the flames.

When the fire was first discovered it was burning fiercely in the rear and was rapidly working its way up to the hayloft.

Alderman James McPherson, a member of the fire committee, upon seeing the threatening nature of the fire, sounded a general alarm which called out all the apparatus in the city.

Child Carried to Safety

Belong in the midst of the residential district the burning stable was a real menace to the many fine residences which surround it.

The roof of the handsome residence of Judge Dennis W. Quill, which is in the rear of the stable, was set on fire by the sparks. A stream from a chemical extinguisher the flames before serious damage was done, however.

Judge Quill's child was dangerously ill in a sleeping apartment in his house and had to be carried to the residence of a neighbor when the fire on the roof became threatening.

George F. Stankov of the chemical company was working between the burning stable and the Guinivan house when he first met with a painful accident. Broken glass fell from a window of the stable and cut Stanley's thumb so badly that it required four stitches to close the wound. After being treated by a physician, Stanley returned to work on the burning building.

FUNERALS

BAILEY.—The funeral of Henry B. Bailey took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his residence, 56 Fairmount street. The services were conducted by Rev. Selden W. Cummings, pastor of the First Baptist church. Appropriate selections were sung by the Franklin Male quartet of Boston. The bearers were Edward W. Trull, Loring S. Trull, F. B. Trull and William T. Sheppard. Burial was in the family lot in the Lowell cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Mr. Frederick N. Wier, under the direction of Undertaker Geo. W. Healey.

TILTON.—The funeral of Mrs. Helen M. Tilton, who died in Somerville last Monday, took place yesterday afternoon in this city upon the arrival of the 3:04 train from Boston. Burial was in the family lot in the Lowell cemetery under the direction of the J. B. Currier Co., undertakers.

CARROLL.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Ellen Carroll took place this morning at 8:30 o'clock from the home of her brother, John Vaughan, 229 Cross street, and was largely attended. The cortege proceeded to St. Patrick's church, where at 9 o'clock a mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Joseph Curtin. The choir under the direction of Mr. Michael J. Johnson sang the Gregorian mass, the solos being sustained by Miss Alice E. Murphy and Mr. Andrew McCarthy.

Among the many floral tributes were a large pillow inscribed "Sister," Mr. and Mrs. John Vaughan; standing cross inscribed "At Rest," Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey; wreath, Mrs. Bryan McDonough of Boston, sister of the deceased; and a large basket, Miss Mary T. Kelley. The bearers were John Considine, Michael Gorman, Thomas Burke and Patrick Vaughan. At the grave Rev. Fr. Curtin read the committal prayers and the burial was in dignified manner.

NO MORE TREATING

Drinks on "The House" Are Barred in Worcester

WORCESTER, April 22.—Worcester barkeepers must all wear muzzles next year and there will no longer be heard the old familiar and welcome invitation from the far side of the mahogany: "Well, boys, have one on the house."

When Worcester goes back to its wet season, after a couple of years on the water wagon, a fellow or a party of fellows can go into any of the emporiums where "joy water" is dispensed, blow in his pipe and then go home without getting anything except what he or they pay for.

That is the edict of the new liquor license commission. And the commissioners go even further than shutting off the treating of the house to get things going when they once begin to lag. They don't want to have the patrons of the joy water plunge in and get wet all over at the outset. After two years in the desert they see danger ahead and they intend to have the oasis reached by easy stages. They don't want too much of a rush and they have issued warning to the proprietors of the places that will be allowed to open for business on Monday, May 2, that for the first three days of the wet season the liquor saloons must be run on a short schedule, opening at 8 a. m. and closing at 9 p. m.

There will be no "rushing the can" by women whose husbands do not know that the lady of the house is entertaining her friends when he is at work. The dealers are tipped off to call beer and ale to women patrons only in bottles, and there must be no "drumming up" of trade by drivers of wagons who carry out a load of stuff to sell as opportunity demands. The wholesalers are expected to sell only to customers who give orders by letter or phone or personal visit to their places of business.

The retailers are not to sell liquors of any kind to women unless they have special permission in writing from the commissioners to do so.

And the customers of the saloons will not be allowed to settle the charges made against them during the week by the pay checks they get from the big manufacturing concerns. These employees will be expected to take the pay checks home or to some other kind of a store so that their families will get at least a little of their earnings. They will not be allowed to "blow in" their week's wages at the saloon nearest their place of employment.

These regulations for the liquor traffic in Worcester next year were handed out yesterday by the commissioners in the form of a set of questions and a set of suggested answers that are to be made to the questions by all the successful applicants for licenses. The action caused the biggest kind of a sensation among those in any way interested in the liquor trade, because the regulations tighten up the business to such an extent that the proprietors hardly know what to say.

The questions were sent to all the firms granted licenses yesterday afternoon, and with the questions went the answers that alone will be acceptable to the commissioners. They realize they have no legal authority to hedge around with such restrictions of the liquor trade, but those who want to do business must do business at all. The answers must all be filed in writing with the commissioners before the legal license is issued, and only those who send in the answers wanted will get one of the permits.

STAR THEATRE

A novelty in motion pictures is a subject by the Gamont company known as the "Pirate Airship." The airship has a huge magnet attached to it and many different things leave terra firma and fly through the sky to effect a clinging embrace with the magnet. The picture is very funny. The talking picture, "The Outlaw's Sacrifice" is a thrilling western drama. The picture program comprises scenic and educational subjects as well as those depicting the comic and tragic sides of life. The admission of five cents includes a seat.

A CLOSE SHAVE

Many of Them Happening Every Day but Soon Forgotten

Close shaves would be of more frequent occurrence but for the tender faces of many men, which will not permit of shaving often. Heretofore, nothing has been said in these columns about possum, a new skin discovery, in connection with the use of safety razors. Its publicity and sales have been confined almost exclusively to its remarkable properties as an eczema cure; it stops the itching at once and cures the worst cases in a few days. While the application of possum after shaving is one of its minor uses, such as for eczema, corns, and other skin shavers will find it a revelation, as it does for abrasions, roughness, and severe scrapings what it does for all manner of skin difficulties—beads and cures in a few hours. It is the only article possessing real antiseptic and curative value that has ever been exploited for this purpose, and will soothe and tone up the skin as no toilet preparation could possibly do. Possum can be had for fifty cents at any reliable druggist, particularly Falls & Burkinshaw's and Carter & Sherburne's, who make a specialty of it. Or the Emergency Laboratories, No. 251 West Street, New York City, will send a trial supply free by mail to any one who will write for it. This is sufficient to show results in 24 hours.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

A fine program is offered at the Opera House for the last three days of this week, commencing yesterday afternoon. What is one of the most striking of recent vaudeville offerings here is Col. J. S. Starnes' story of Gen. U. S. Grant in the Days of '61, illustrated by Philippeaux's famous Civil war paintings. The story is completely and well told and the paintings are works of art. The other features of the bill are Fiske and McDonough in a laughable offering, entitled "The Ladies' Interfering Society," Honey Johnson in a black faced monologue, that kept the audience in roars of laughter, and the Prampins, a clever team of colored performers, who sing and play on musical instruments. The pictures are all new and good and include a number of good comedy subjects. The same bill will be repeated today and Saturday. Tonight will be amateur night at the Opera House, and a big list of amateur talent will be seen.

THE WHITE SISTER

James O'Neill of the Viola Allen company is one of the thrifty men of the stage. He has always been shrewd in business affairs, and his many deals in real estate and mining properties have nearly all turned out well for him. Only within the past six or eight months, O'Neill sold a large tract of manufacturing and mercantile business in New York, which is already bringing fine results. By the time this fine actor is ready to leave the stage—which we trust may be years hence—he will be possessed of an abundant competency for his old age. Mr. O'Neill is at present playing the part of the venerable archbishop in the Viola Allen company, which will present "The White Sister," at the Opera House Wednesday night, April 27. Sale of seats begins Monday morning.

"HAVANA"

Thursday, April 28, James T. Powers and the original company from the Casino theatre, New York, will present at the Opera House the musical comedy success, "Havana." The piece came direct from a successful engagement in Boston, where the press hailed it as one of the cleanest, prettiest, daintiest, most tuneful musical shows ever seen in that city. Mr. Powers himself has a part in "Havana" which gives every opportunity to display his best talents but, not depending on the clever comedian alone, the Shuberts have surrounded him with an excellent supporting company. Seats for the engagement go on sale Tuesday morning.

SCENES OF CIVIL WAR.

As vital to the present generation as the recital of Mrs. Pickett, widow of the Confederate leader, proved at a Boston theatre recently, are the exhibition of eight mammoth canvases depicting scenes of the Civil war, by the noted French artist, Paul Philippeaux, at the opera house, the three remaining days of this week.

Philippeaux is scarcely known by the rising generation, outside of France, but in the days succeeding the rebellion he was very widely admired for his remarkable work in painting large oil paintings.

The eight pictures shown in connection with the vaudeville and motion pictures are among the very best the French artist ever painted. They rank with the most noted canvases of the two Vernets and with some of the best work of Paul Delaroche. Philippeaux was to the Civil war what the Vernets were to the wars of Napoleon and Verelstaghin to the march of Napoleon towards Moscow. No other artist has ever sought to immortalize the American internecine struggle like the Philippeaux.

The seven pictures shown are "The Young Grant," a genre of the 11-year-old Ohioan on his father's farm, holding the plough; the battle of Belmont, in which Grant is shown as the only man between the two opposing armies; the battle of Port Donelson, one of the most memorable of the early days of the war, in which the army and navy of the Federals co-operated to defeat the Rebels; the battle of Shiloh, where Don Carlos Buell was killed against the brilliant young Confederate, Albert Sidney Johnson, and which was one of the bloodiest conflicts of the entire war; Battery Robbette at Corinth, a most interesting scene of the assault of the 27th Ohio and 11th Missouri regiments on a Confederate battery; the surrender at Vicksburg, and the surrender of General Robert E. Lee at Appomattox court house. In this last, the group of noted leaders of both armies was shown with remarkable distinctness and with a verisimilitude to the originals which appealed to the 100 veterans present from the three local G. A. R. posts. In this latter picture, shown General Sherman, Ord, Merritt, Custer, Grant and Lee, besides minor leaders.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

At the Academy of Music there is a clever team of musicians in the Van Cooks. They have a sketch called "Harmony in a Chinese Laundry" in which they play on rats, family washing, hot irons, illuminated roses, and other things too numerous to mention. Gilbert Lucie is a clever entertainer. The range of his voice is little short of wonderful. Mae Bagshaw is singing a beautiful song and the pictures are A 1. The feature picture on Monday will be Roosevelt in Africa, which the management has procured at great additional expense. Admission 5 and 10 cents.

THEATRE VOYONS

Hundreds of Lowell people have visited or worn born in the Canary Islands and today the Theatre Voyons shows a motion picture of many of the most interesting sights in these islands. Another picture of the better class is "Her First Appearance" dramatized by Richard Harding Davis from his own story of the same name. The acting is superb and the staging equal to any yet seen. There will be a concert on Sunday and on Monday a double bill will be given the features being "Roosevelt in Africa" and a film d'art production of "Othello."

COLONIAL THEATRE, LAWRENCE

This week's attractions at the Colonial are already the talk of the town. This is as it should be, for with two great headliners like "The Carnival of Roses" and "The Comstock Mystery," and a variety of supporting acts, it is little wonder that the people of Lawrence are talking about the banner show at the popular Hampshire street playhouse.

"The Comstock Mystery" introduces no stranger to Lawrence, Miss Charlotte Parry, in the leading roles. This clever artist appears in seven distinct characters, with an entire change of dress, voice and manners for each character. The quickness of each change is nothing short of startling for Miss Parry is out of sight only a few seconds when she reappears in a different character.

The rest of the bill is made up of new and novel acts.

In Parliament on Anderson's Parnellism and Crime

LONDON, April 22.—Memories of the turbulent scenes of Parnell's time were revived in the house of commons last night during the discussion of a motion by T. P. O'Connor, to reduce the civil service estimate by $4500, the amount of Sir Robert Anderson's pension.

In an autobiographic article recently Sir Robert Anderson admitted authorship of the famous "Parnellism and Crime" series of articles which appeared in the Times in 1887 and culminated in the publication of the Pigott forgery. The Irish members of the house announced their intention to obtain if possible a government investigation of the affair, with a view to depriving Sir Robert of his pension, on the ground that his act was a breach of official confidence, because he had been the head of the investigation department, of Scotland Yard.

Mr. Balfour, leader of the opposition, agreed, at last night's session, with Premier Asquith and Mr. Churchill in condemning Sir Robert's action as improper, but Mr. Churchill, as home secretary, declined to interfere to deprive him of his pension.

The debate was proceeding quietly, but with acerbity on the part of the Nationalists, one of whom declared that Sir Robert's articles were an attempt to revive old charges against the Nationalists, in order to help Tories in the coming elections, when the Rt. Hon. James Henry Campbell,

A RECEPTION

WAS TENDERED REV. AND MRS. NILSSON

The Swedish M. E. church was the scene last night of a farewell reception to Rev. Benedict Nilsson and Mrs. Nilsson. The reception was held in the auditorium and even standing room was at a premium. Mr. and Mrs. Nilsson will go to Springfield, where Mr. Nilsson will take up his new pastorate.

A. F. Swanson, one of the trustees of the church, was master of ceremonies and opened the reception in a brief speech in which he referred to the retiring pastor in most complimentary terms.

He was followed by Victor Hedlund, treasurer of the church, who spoke in a similar vein, and then by Carl G. Laurin, who on behalf of the assembled congregation presented Mrs. Nilsson a beautiful bouquet of flowers. Then he presented Mr. Nilsson a generous purse of money, the gift of the church people.

Following a song by the choir and two selections by the male chorus, Rev. Mr. Nilsson replied, thanking the church people for their gifts and speaking of his regret at leaving the church and of the pleasant remembrance which it was his privilege to carry with him. He thanked them, too, for Mrs. Nilsson.

At the close of the devotional exercises the gathering adjourned to the vestry, where a social hour was enjoyed and an opportunity given the people to bid Rev. and Mrs. Nilsson farewell. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

There were 19 boys, who Wednesday evening for two hours took the examination in Bible study, prepared for the boys of this country, by the international committee of Y. M. C. A.'s at New York. Probably at the same moment there were 600 other boys in other parts of the nation who were doing the same thing.

One local class of boys has had perfect attendance for the season.

On Thursday evening, all the Y. M. C. A. rooms for organization, and elected the following officers: President, Harry Dobson; vice president, Allen Nichols; secretary, Chester Chase; treasurer, J. G. Dow; chairman physical committee, Leslie Clark; of social work, Edwin Moulton; of religious work, Emil Hartford. Refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday evening, May 19, when plans will be submitted for the summer season. The suggested name for this organization, which will be voted on in May is the "Ward" club of the Elliot church.

Dr. Yarnell's Life Problem group for young men will meet this Friday evening as usual at 8.30 when Mrs. Cryder and Mrs. Davis will have charge of the supper. All young men are invited. If you have not attended you are missing a good thing.

THE MASTER BUILDERS.

It is time the Master Builders should bestir themselves to revive their moribund organization. Whether it is business rivalry or general apathy that ails the organization is difficult to say; but the present board of officers intends to stir things up somewhat. Let us hope they will succeed.

THE REACTION AGAINST REPUBLICAN SWAY.

Something bordering on consternation struck the republican leaders at Washington when they heard of the election of a democrat in the Rochester, N. Y., district where George W. Aldridge, a republican boss, was defeated in a republican stronghold by a sweeping majority. The republicans claim that this defeat, like that of the man who ran against Foss, was brought about by the candidate's unpopularity, but they must remember that in past years the candidate, no matter how unpopular, needed only to be labelled "republican" to be elected in a district having a republican majority.

The reaction is setting in. The people dislike the Aldrich tariff law; they blame the republican party for the trusts that sell their products cheaper in Europe than in this country; they stand aghast at the revelations of graft in New York, Pennsylvania, California, Montana and other states.

The indications point to a revulsion of feeling against the republican party with the prospect of more sweeping defeats in the congressional elections to be held next fall.

SOAP AND WATER CAMPAIGN.

The mayor of Kenosha, Wis., has of late come out with a scheme for political advertising that is unrivalled for its novelty. In order to convince the people that he is to give a clean administration he has contributed 5000 bars of soap as a means of calling attention to his candidacy for reelection. Upon one side of each bar of soap he has had ingeniously inscribed the picture of himself and on the other side "Purity Soap." The inference, no doubt, to be drawn from this species of political advertising is, that the mayor of Kenosha, if reelected, will give an administration that is personally as well as politically pure.

It would be well indeed if the man who shows such genius for inventing schemes for advertising, would show equal ingenuity in devising methods to carry out his promises. Unfortunately these pledges of civic purity are not always carried out after election. Out in Pittsburg where the revelations of graft are now going on every one of the guilty men promised to give the city a good, wise and clean administration. They forgot their promises after they entered office, they accepted bribes and proceeded to make the administration exactly the reverse of what they had promised to make it. Perhaps the mayor of Kenosha is right when he thinks a little soap and water is needed, but it will not wash away the record of political corruption.

THE FACTIONISTS PUT TO ROUT.

The feeble effort of William O'Brien, M. P., to assume independent leadership in parliament and to make it appear that he forced concessions from the British chancellor that Mr. Redmond could not secure, has proved a complete fiasco. He and Mr. Healy, both of whom aspire to leadership, have utterly failed to make any impression on the strong attitude assumed and triumphantly maintained by Mr. Redmond. In articles in the press as well as by speeches on the public platform and in the house of commons, these two factionists have done their utmost to overthrow the leadership of Mr. Redmond and to increase their own following, but they have utterly failed, and today they stand more discredited than ever before, and that is saying a great deal.

In an article in the National Review for March, one of the strongest Tory magazines in England, Mr. Healy scoffed at what he called the "revolting pilgrimage of Messrs. Redmond, Dillon and T. P. O'Connor to Downing street." In that article Mr. Healy said:

"If the Nationalists endorse the program of the prime minister, then when this parliament comes to an end, the budget will have become law, but neither home rule for Ireland nor the abolition of the lords' veto will have been secured. When all is over, we may not be denied the comfort of hearing Mr. Redmond assure his countrymen that he still remains a convinced optimist on both subjects. Lacking courage a golden opportunity will have turned like fairy treasure to dust in our hands."

In this case Mr. Healy turns out to be a false prophet, for so far from following the dictates of the British premier, Mr. Redmond forced the premier to accept his terms as the only possible means of securing the support of the Irish party in carrying through the financial legislation. Mr. Redmond distinctly stated in advance that he would subordinate everything else to home rule, and the annulment of the lords' veto power meant home rule in the near future.

O'Brien and Healy opposed this policy and tried to alarm the people over the prospective burdens of the new budget, but Mr. Redmond said he was willing to accept the budget in order to pave the way for home rule, knowing full well that the budget could be easily modified in the future and that at worst it would but take back a portion of the money that had been granted by the government under several measures during the past few years.

These two members are now making a fruitless fight against the budget in spite of the fact that Redmond has agreed to support it on condition that the premier would ask the crown to create peers enough to carry the measure in the upper house.

Yesterday it was announced by Augustine Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland, that Premier Asquith will so advise the king. The latter does not wish to get mixed up in the controversy, but he cannot very well resist a demand that seems to come from the people backed by a reasonable majority.

From the present outlook it seems quite probable that the veto power of the lords will be overcome by the legislation now under consideration, without an additional appeal to the country. Should such a change come about the British parliament would then be the most democratic in the world.

SEEN AND HEARD

Those of us who have met the census enumerators are wondering what happened the thirty questions that he or she was supposed to ask. The fellow who interrogated the writer put five questions over the plate and they were dead easy.

The census taker is up against it, so to speak, when he tackles the Celestial. The Chinese do not count time by the Gregorian calendar as we do, and the census enumerator is supplied with a table for converting Chinese dates of births into their English equivalents. Every Chinaman knows the year, the month, the day and the hour of his birth as well as he knows his name, but not even an educated Chinaman would find it easy to translate it into correct English. Time is counted in China in two ways: First, by cycles of 60 years each; second, by the reigns of the successive emperors. The Chinese month is the lunar month of twenty-nine or thirty days. Each month is known by its number. A year may have 12 months and consist of 354 or 355 days; or it may have 13 months and consist of 383 or 384 days. In order to bring the calendar into accord with the solar year, an extra or intercalary month is inserted every second or third year. The table prepared for the use of enumerators is quite comprehensive.

HOW TO STOP DRINKING

It was formerly customary for the habitual drinker to take the pledge regularly, sometimes once a year, and sometimes in every fit of remorse that followed his debauches, and then—break it.

But now it is gradually dawning on the world that pledges do not stop drinking. The nervous system of the habitual drinker is diseased and he must have treatment that will cure this condition. Orline is sold under a positive guarantee to cure the drink habit or the money will be refunded. Can be given secretly.

come for her husband, Adam Wolf, conditioned on his living the rest of his life in the home of one of her daughters, Annie and Kate, or of her son-in-law, Albert Fleckenstein.

If he should establish a home of his own, remove his personal apparel and belongings out of the homes of one of the persons specified, he, by such act, forfeits all claim to any part of the estate or its income. It is said that Mrs. Wolf had an understanding with her children that they would not receive a step-mother in their homes.

By administering a pledge of total abstinence from intoxicating drinks Justice Maran of the supreme court, in Brooklyn, settled a suit for separation brought by Mrs. Betsy Thorn, against Aaron Thorn, on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. Mrs. Thorn said that her husband was all right except when he drank. The couple have one child, a boy, 14 years old.

"Will you not, for the sake of your wife and boy, try to abstain from drink for a month?" asked Justice Maran.

Thorne said he would, and the court ordered him to hold up his right hand.

"You solemnly swear, in the presence of the everliving God, that you will abstain from all intoxicating drinks for the space of one month from this date."

"We keep our own cow," explained the husband, proudly. "So we're sure of our milk."

"Well," interrupted the small son of the guest, setting down his cup, "somebody's scum you with a sour cow."—Cleveland Leader.

BOSTON HOLDING CO.

Received Another Setback From the Attorney General

BOSTON, April 22.—Efforts to make the bonds of the Boston Holding Co. a legal investment for Massachusetts savings banks received another setback today when Atty. Gen. Malone reported the bill exempting these bonds from taxation to be unconstitutional. The decision of the attorney general was received in the house and without debate the house refused to admit the bill.

The proposition legalizing these bonds originated with Gov. Draper, who advocated such a measure in his inaugural address in January. The bill was vigorously opposed at the hearing before the committee on railroads and the counsel for the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, which company financed the holding company as a solution of the merger of the Boston & Maine railroad with the New Haven, announced that the original measure would not be pressed.

In the meantime Senator Tuttle of Pittsfield brought forward a second proposition exempting the bonds from taxation, but this bill was also held up pending a decision from the attorney general.

The action of the house today prevents savings banks and similar institutions from investing in these bonds, the proceeds of which, it was stated, would be used in upbuilding the Boston & Maine railroad.

The New Haven company again sought the legislature on Monday, when Pres. Miller filed a petition asking that the legislature approve the entire issue of the stock of the road, $121,000,000, pending an investigation into its finances by three state officials and commissions. The most strenuous opponents of the Boston & Maine merger have based their opposition on the claim that the New Haven road issued stock without the consent of the legislature and the New Haven road is now seeking this legalization. The petition is now before the senate committee on rules on the question of its admittance. Undismayed by the decision of the attorney general and the subsequent action of the house, Gov. Draper continued the fight in favor of the bonds by sending a special message to the legislature at noon today urging some action that would prevent the bonds of the company from being subject to double taxation.

The message was immediately referred to the joint committees on railroads and taxation for a public hearing.

The stock of the New Haven road already pays a local tax which the governor deems sufficient. He believes that the legislature will find some method by which the bonds may be exempted without violating constitutional provisions.

WAGE DEMANDS

Of New York Central Employees Have Been Arbitrated

NEW YORK, April 22.—Arbitration of the wage demands of the trainmen and conductors of the New York Central lines west of Buffalo was agreed upon here today. The arbitration will be independent of that now in progress affecting the men on the Central's lines east of Buffalo but the same arbitrator will serve.

The agreement was announced following conferences between C. E. Schaff, vice president and general manager of the Vanderbilt lines west of Buffalo, and A. B. Garretson and W. G. Lee, the heads respectively of the conductors and trainmen's organizations.

E. F. Clark of the Interstate Commerce commission and P. H. Morrissey, president of the railroad employees and conductors' association, who have heard the testimony on both sides on the wage demands of the men on the Central's east of Buffalo line, consent to act as arbitrators. Their decision in the earlier arbitration is looked for by tomorrow.

LOSS IS $55,000

Iron Foundries Were Destroyed by Fire

BRIDGEWATER, April 22.—The Le Baron foundry, with its contents, was destroyed and the Perkins foundry adjoining suffered a loss of about $25,000 by fire last night. The Le Baron loss will be in the vicinity of $30,000. Both companies are partially covered by insurance.

The fire was discovered at about 7:30 in the Le Baron foundry, and an alarm was sounded from box 23. When the fire department arrived most of the roof was ablaze.

The firemen directed their efforts to the adjoining property and succeeded in saving the larger portion of the Perkins plant, although part of the building in which the patterns were stored was burned.

The Le Baron foundry was conducted by E. T. Le Baron, who removed to this town from Middleboro about 18 months ago. The building was owned by the Perkins Foundry company, and the machinery was leased by the Le Baron company. The Le Baron company manufactured fancy iron work and had considerable material ready for shipment. The Perkins company was conducted for many years by the late Henry Perkins, and the business is now carried on by his heirs.

EXPECT ARREST

WESTERLY, R. I., April 22.—An arrest is expected by the people of this city and vicinity following the coroner's inquest today into the death of Daniel Sullivan of White Rock, one of the 13 alleged poisoned whiskey victims in the border town. The coroner's inquest was ordered immediately following the report of Prof. Whitney of the Harvard Medical school, received last Wednesday, in which he stated that he found traces of wood alcohol in Sullivan's stomach and that the whiskey which Sullivan had drunk prior to his death had been composed largely of the same poison.

The police claim that they have traced the purchase of the whiskey to an Italian place, although they express the belief that it was originally purchased from a certain Westerly drug store which acted as a sort of a wholesale place and disposed of adulterated liquor to the Italians in large quantities.

BALLINGER CASE

WASHINGTON, April 22.—When the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry was resumed this morning after the usual five day recess there was still pending the request of Attorney Brandeis representing Louis B. Glavis and others that he be allowed to defer his cross examination of Assistant Secretary of Interior Pierce until after his opportunity to question Secretary Ballinger. Attorney Brandeis representing Mr. Ballinger but opposed the request and has asked the committee to require witnesses to be disposed of as they are offered. The request as to Assistant Secretary Pierce applies also to other subordinates of the interior department.

FUNERAL OF TWAIN

Will Take Place in New York Saturday Afternoon

REDDING, Conn., April 22.—Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) who died last night at Stormfield, will have a public funeral befitting his national fame. He is to be buried on Saturday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon from the Old Brick Presbyterian church at 73rd street and Fifth avenue, New York. Invitations will be by card but after the members of the family and his close personal friends have been seated the church edifice will be thrown open to the public. The burial will be in the family lot at Elmira, N. Y. The arrangements in detail are still under advisement and the list of pallbearers yet remains to be selected. The Old Brick church was Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke's pulpit and it seems likely that he will pronounce the eulogy.

News of Mr. Clemens' death did not reach the countryside at large until the morning papers brought it up from the city.

Expressions of grief were then heard on all sides, for Mark Twain was not only personally endeared to his close friends, but he was generous to this large acquaintance, shared the troubles of his neighbors, and took a lively interest in the affairs of the town. Several of his neighbors who stood very close to him in life were permitted by an old country custom to view the body as it lay in the carved bed. Mr. Clemens did much of his work in bed, and in death he still seemed a part of the surroundings of his active life. Ranged about him were his books. Beside him was his tabouret set with a tobacco jar, a collection of sweet old crusty pipes, a stand of cigars and matches in abundance. Above his head was a reading lamp. In bachelor days he had heartily cursed the curse of bachelordom against all chambermaids because of their hostile ideas of tidiness.

"They always put the pillow on the opposite end of the bed from the gas burner," he wrote, "so that while you read and smoke before sleeping, as is the ancient and honorable custom of bachelors, you have to hold your book

There will be no pall bearers, and although final arrangements have not been made the services probably will consist of merely a short address by Dr. Van Dyke. There probably will be no music, Mr. Duneka said. The body will be brought to New York from Redding at noon tomorrow on a special car.

After the funeral the body will be taken to Elmira where another service as simple as the one here will be held. This service will probably be at the home of General Langdon, a relative of Mr. Clemens and so far as now known will consist simply of a short address by Joseph H. Twitcheell of Hartford, Conn., who was one of Mr. Clemens' oldest friends. From the Langdon home the body will be removed to the cemetery to be laid to rest.

No arrangements have been made for the public memorial service. Mr. Duneka said it probably would be held in a week or ten days in some large hall in the city and that it would be open to the public. On account of the almost private nature of the funeral services it is felt by Mr. Clemens' relatives that some such service should be held at which the public may gather in expression of its affection for the dead humorist.

FUNERALS

REGAN—The funeral of the late Jeremiah Regan took place this morning at 8 o'clock from his late home, 93 Union street, and was largely attended. The funeral cortege proceeded to St. Peter's church, where at 9 o'clock a funeral mass of requiem was sung by Rev. W. George Mullin. The choir sang the Gregorian mass. Mrs. John McDermott presided at the organ. Among the floral tributes was a large pillow inscribed "Husband" from his wife; wreath inscribed "Grandpa," Regan children; spray of pinks and cypress palms, Conney children; standing wreath on base, Mr. and Mrs. P. Hennessey and family; wreath, Mr. John McDermott and family. The bearers were John Sands, James Hennessey, John Watson, Timothy Donovan, Patrick Howe and Mr. Harrington. Burial was in the family lot in the Catholic cemetery. Undertakers M. H. McDonough & Sons in charge.

UNSETTLED WEATHER
BOSTON, April 22.—Unsettled weather made the opening of the New England baseball league today more or less uncertain. Lynn was scheduled to play at Fall River, Haverhill at New Bedford, Worcester at Lowell and Lawrence at Brockton. Because of rain the Brockton game was declared postponed in the forenoon. In the Bristol county cities the weather was unsettled.

TOMB OF NAPOLEON

PARIS, April 22.—After paying a tribute to Mark Twain's memory in an expression to the press, Mr. Roosevelt began his program for the day with a visit to the tomb of Napoleon in the Palais des Invalides. The great stone structure is now used as a home for incapacitated soldiers.

When Mr. Roosevelt accompanied by Kermit, M. Jusserand, French ambassador at Washington and American Ambassador Bacon, arrived in an automobile he was acclaimed by a great crowd which included many photographers who took snapshots of the party as they entered the Cour d'Honneur where General Dalsheim, military governor of Paris and several aides in full uniform awaited them.

Mr. Roosevelt had luncheon at the guest of Baron Pierre de Coubertin whom he met in the United States when the baron visited in connection with the Olympic games, he being the president of the International Olympic committee.

This afternoon Mr. Roosevelt continued sightseeing, visiting the galleries of the Louvre. He returned to the American embassy at 4:30 when he received a call from former President Lobet. Tonight Mr. Roosevelt will be the honorary guest at a dinner at the Elysee palace.

COTTON MARKET

In Liverpool Sustained a Shock

LONDON, April 22.—A severe shock has been experienced in the Liverpool cotton market, according to today's Shipping Gazette in the discovery of forged bills of lading for cotton porting to have been shipped from the United States. The quantity involved is said to be between 15,000 and 20,000 bales.

According to the Gazette it is at present difficult to ascertain which bills of lading are bonafide and which are fraudulent and this point will be determined only upon the arrival of the vessels and the discharge of their cargoes. The paper adds that some eighteen local cotton firms may be involved.

VASSAR GIRLS

OBJECT TO THE "ALWAYS FRESH" LABEL

KANSAS CITY, April 22.—Eugene F. Ware, former commissioner of pensions, representing Vassar college, brought suit in the federal court here yesterday for an injunction to stop a local concern from using the label "Vassar Chocolates."

The noted poet recites that his particular objection is to the imitation seal and the picture of a supposed college girl, which forms the centerpiece of the seal.

The picture is of a young woman in scholastic garb with a mortar board, and the college complains that this tends to provoke discussion and reproach because it is believed that such a garb should be worn only by men.

The official corporate seal of the college has been imitated on the advertisement on the candy boxes. On the face of the seal is represented a woman with a book and a sprig of myrtle. In the background, on the hill, is a Greek temple. On the rim are the words, "Vassar Chocolates," substituted for Vassar college. At the bottom under the female figure whereon the official seal "Purity and Wisdom" would be, the defendants have placed the words, "Always Fresh." The words "Always Fresh," says the complaint, "seem applicable to the female figure above it and are a matter of ridicule and reproach."

CASE OF THREATENING Against John J. Gray Caused Merriment in Police Court

One of the most comical cases ever heard in police court was aired before Judge Samuel P. Hadley this morning when John J. Gray was charged with threatening to do bodily harm to Dennis E. Connors. That there has been some feeling between the parties interested in the case is known, owing to the fact that there are several cross-suits pending between the parties at the present time. While Mr. Connors and other witnesses claimed that threats had been made by Mr. Gray against his life, Mr. Gray, who pleaded his own case, in his argument denied each and every allegation in every point.

While the case for the complainant was conducted by Lawyer A. S. Howard, Mr. Gray displayed great versatility in pleading his own case, and though the court gave him considerable latitude he at times tried to over reach the bounds and was called to account. He was dramatic to say the least and frequently banged the desk of the clerk of the court and the rail on the witness stand in a manner which would indicate that he meant what he said.

ernment was James J. Dacey, who testified that he was in the employ of the Connors Bros. Construction Co. Witness said that Wednesday while driving through Thorndike street he met Mr. Gray and during the course of a conversation Mr. Gray said that he had a pistol and intended to shoot Mr. Connors. Mr. Dacey informed the court that within the past six months Mr. Gray had stated five or six times that he intended to get Mr. Connors out of the way.

Mr. Gray put Mr. Dacey through a sharp cross examination, though the witness held to the original story with a slight exception.

Dennis E. Connors, the complainant, during the direct examination said that he was not on friendly terms with Mr. Gray and had not been since last spring. Mr. Connors continuing with his testimony said, in part: "Last spring I met Mr. Gray in John S. Patton's office in the Parkerton building in Boston and he said that he would stab me. He said to me, 'You might as well get ready to take your medicine now, for it is coming to you.' I said to him, 'What's the matter, John?' He said, 'I will show you,' and then he said that he would shoot and stab me. "Yesterday he called me up on the telephone and said to me, 'Tomorrow I will meet you in the arena and it will be lucky for you if you are not shot before the sun goes down tomorrow afternoon.'"

During the cross examination of witness Mr. Gray endeavored to show that the complainant was out to establish a conspiracy to blacken his character. Witness said that while he did not threaten to strike Mr. Gray he said that he would put his head down a eastern in the yard. He denied that he had had any conversation with Mr. Gray relative to going out on a "joy ride with women," and then went into a story relative to Mr. Gray's family matters when the court put a stop to the talk.

Mr. Connors in answer to questions put by Mr. Gray relative to his family affairs answered in the negative.

Charlotte Johnson of Reading, a clerk in the office of the defendant, testified that a voice which she thought was that of Mr. Gray called the office up on four different occasions yesterday. She said that she was not sure that it was the voice of Mr. Gray, but was pretty sure that it was.

The complainant rested his case at this point.

The first witness for the defense was Henry J. O'Dowd, who told of a conversation which he had with Mr. Connors last August when the latter said that he would tear Gray to pieces and cut his heart out.

John G. McLaughlin, who was in the employ of Mr. O'Dowd at the time in question, said that he heard the conversation between Messrs. O'Dowd and Connors.

Mr. Gray, at this point, informed the court that he did not wish to offer any testimony.

"Do you care to make an argument?" asked Lawyer Howard of Mr. Gray.

"No, you go ahead and I will argue after you get through," said Mr. Gray.

"Well, the counsel for the defense generally argues first," said Mr. Howard.

"That's all right, you go ahead and argue," said Mr. Gray.

At this time Judge Hadley told Mr. Gray that if he wished to offer an argument that he should go ahead and do so, and then Mr. Gray, who had previously stated that he would not offer any testimony, started his argument.

But his argument was in reality a sworn testimony. From time to time Mr. Gray hammered the clerk's desk and the rail of the witness stand which threatened destruction to both pieces of furniture.

After the evidence in the case had been considered by Judge Hadley, he found Mr. Gray guilty and ordered him to be placed under $200 bonds to keep the peace for six months. Mr. Gray appealed and was held under $300 bonds for his appearance before the superior court.

Mr. Gray was congratulated after the trial on his ability as displayed in handling the case and on the amount of ammunition he fired at the other side.

Drunken Offenders

John J. Fox, who was arrested Monday night, appeared before the court this morning on a charge of drunkenness. After the court learned that he was anxious to join the navy, Fox was given a suspended sentence of six months in jail.

John Caran of Flint, Michigan, promised that if he was given a chance he would immediately like back to the burgh where automobiles are manufactured. He was given until tomorrow to leave the city.

Lillian Bernard, who was under a suspended sentence to Sherborn, was arrested yesterday, and this morning the suspension of the former sentence was revoked.

James Stewart, who gave the name of Alexander Campbell when he was placed under arrest, was sentenced to four months in jail. Henry A. Grady will spend four months at the same institution. John C. Crowley was fined $6 and a first offender was fined $2.

BOURKE COCKRAN
To Defend Man Accused of Murder

NEW YORK, April 22.—Judge Malone yesterday assigned W. Bourke Cockran as counsel to defend Victor Nelson, a negro, who is under indictment for the murder of Charles Humphreys, in a building at 167 East 129th street on March 28.

Nelson, when arraigned in court, said he was not guilty and had neither money nor friends to aid him.

"How would Bourke Cockran suit you?" asked Judge Malone.

"I never heard of him," said Nelson, "but he will do."

"I am ready to do all in my power to aid Nelson, whom I do not know. It is a duty that I owe to the bar and the court," said Mr. Cockran later.

BARS FEATHERS

Action Taken by N. Y. Legislature

ALBANY, April 22.—No longer will the beautiful albatross find lodging place in the eye of the wearied man in the subway car. No longer will the hat with its towering feathers be an obstruction to the enthusiastic fan at the ball game. No longer will the cross husband have an excuse for remaining at the club every night for a week on account of an extremely high millinery bill caused by the purchase of rare feathers.

The legislature has decreed that after July 1, 1911, the wearing of the feathers of a bird, except those of a crow or other animal made unpopular by his own misconduct, shall be unlawful.

The official death knell will not be sounded until Governor Hughes signs the bill, but there seems to be a quivering feeling among the milliners that he will follow the lead of the legislators.

So certain are the members of the Audubon Society of America that the governor will sign the bill that they intend to ask him for the pen he uses.

The bill passed the assembly two weeks ago and the senate yesterday.

At the time it passed the assembly there were cross words between certain legislators because a story had gained circulation that a corruption fund had been raised to kill it.

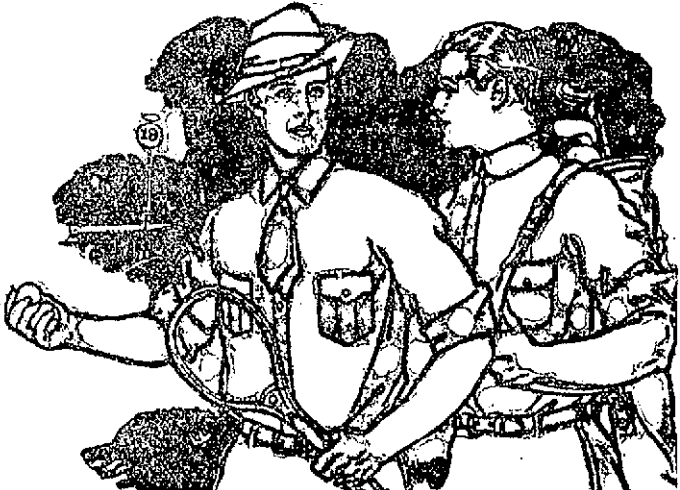

Senator Frawley, of New York, opposed the bill, claiming that it meant disaster to the millinery business in this state, in which there are millions invested. But his words fell on deaf ears.

The bill bars the use of the feathers of all wild birds except the English sparrow, crow hawk, crow-blackbird, snow-owl, great-horned-owl, kingfisher and pheasants, ducks, wild geese, and other birds for which there is an open season.

TO ROB U. S. TREASURY EVICT STRIKERS

Is No Crime Says Assistant Secretary Norton

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The astonishing statement was made by Charles D. Norton, assistant secretary of the treasury, before the house committee on expenditures in the treasury department yesterday, that there is at present no law by which a subordinate in any of the various sub-treasuries of the United States can be punished for making away with public funds.

A man may loot the treasury as much as he likes and no law exists by which he can be punished, said Mr. Norton. If two or more employees engage in an embezzlement, they may be punished for conspiracy, but that is all.

The further information was elicited that the bonding system of treasurers and assistant treasurers of the United States and their various subordinates is obsolete and inadequate.

Thomas McClung said that his bond of $150,000 was the same as that required in 1789. The assistant treasurer at New York furnished a bond of $60,000, signed by private parties because a bonding company would charge him $1500 premium, and Mr. Norton said the furnishing of bonds by private parties in such cases was a most undesirable arrangement for the United States.

Subordinates in the treasury department handling millions in money daily, were required to furnish no bond, except that in some cases assistant treasurers required bonds regardless of the law in the case.

This and much other similar information was gained from Mr. Norton during the hearing yesterday on the question of whether the committee on expenditures in the treasury department should undertake an investigation of the $61,000 shortage in the sub-treasury at St. Louis and other places and incidentally inquire into the accounting system of the U. S. treasury. The committee adjourned without deciding whether an investigation should be held or not.

Mr. Norton told of the extensive and revolutionary plans of the department now under way to perfect a new system of construction of vaults, cages and other features of the various treasuries, and of espionage and examination of these institutions.

HON. BUTLER AMES

Fears That Senator Lodge May Misuse Fund

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Claiming that Senator Lodge might in some way use for political purposes the fund of $65,000 which he has asked congress to appropriate to further investigate the increased cost of living, Rep. Butler Ames of Massachusetts will endeavor to prevent the granting and appointment of employees by Senator Lodge with this money, Mr. Ames said yesterday that he was opposed to the appropriation on general principles, and made it clear that he thought the senator was far off the track in his conclusions as to the cause of the increased cost of food stuffs.

"When the proposition to appropriate $65,000 requested by the senate investigating committee, of which Senator Lodge is chairman, comes up in the house," said Mr. Ames yesterday, "I will add to it that an amendment is offered expressly stipulating that all the employees appointed under that fund to conduct the investigation shall be appointed under the civil service."

It would appear that Mr. Ames is afraid that Senator Lodge will make the appointments to build up and strengthen his political machine in Massachusetts.

"Senator Lodge's conclusions that cold storage is responsible for the increased cost of living is a fallacy," added Mr. Ames. "Cold storage operates to keep down prices, not to increase them. It insures the use of all the food stuffs of a perishable nature produced, and maintains prices on an even and low level. Without cold storage much food must be sacrificed or destroyed, and while at times, when the supply exceeds the demand, prices might fall away down, at other times, when the supply is less than the demand, prices would soar."

"The fixing of an arbitrary period of one year in which food may be kept in cold storage is ridiculous. The time should be determined by the perishability of the various kinds of foods, and be governed by their wholesomeness."

Bids on the annual supply of coal for the public buildings, 2300 barrels of cement and a large quantity of stone, were opened at the city hall today. The opening of the bids took on the form of a meeting participated in by the mayor, the purchasing agent and the bidders.

The contract for the cement went to Daniel T. Sullivan and Frank A. Malory will supply 200 feet of curbed stone. The coal contract has not yet been decided.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

Oberlin lodge, No. 28, I. O. O. F., conferred the second degree on four candidates last Tuesday night before the largest audience of the season. The staff performed its work in the finest manner possible, the ritualistic work being letter perfect and the floor work very fine. The spectacular and dramatic work called forth the highest praise from all present. The staff was very highly complimented by the District Deputy Grand Master M. H. Cotton of Woburn, who was present with members of his suite and also officers of Central Fount lodge of Woburn. Remarks were also made by visiting brothers from Highland-Veritas and Grand Union lodges, after which refreshments were served. On next Tuesday night the big event of the season will take place when Oberlin and Grand Union lodges combine and give a banquet and elaborate entertainment to the members and their wives and to the D. D. Grand Master and suite. The banquet will be held at 7.30 o'clock after which an entertainment will be given consisting of musical and literary numbers, and many of the ablest speakers obtainable. Members are reminded that the banquet is at 7.30 o'clock and members of Grand Union and Oberlin lodges should take note of the time.

Royal Arcanum. Lowell council, No. 8, Royal Arcanum, held its regular meeting, last night, and decided to hold memorial services for those of its members who have died during the past year. The memorial services will be held at the second meeting in May. The services will not be of a public character, only members being admitted. A large portrait of the late Seward N. Proctor, a member of the council, will be hung in the council chamber, probably at the Memorial day exercises. Several of the committees which had been appointed at a previous meeting, were given further time in which to frame their reports. What was played by members after last night's meeting.

GLACE BAY, N. S., April 22.—The eviction of strikers from the houses owned by the Dominion Coal company which took place during the early part of the strike at that company's mines and was one of the causes of the outbreaks, is to be resumed. Eighteen or twenty families of strikers who have not returned to work and refuse to pay rental have been served with notices to vacate the company's houses in which they are living. It is understood that the evictions are to be continued until all the houses of the company are cleared of miners who still remain on strike.

It is believed that the United Mine Workers of America, the organization which opened the labor conflict, will take care of its evicted members.

STAR THEATRE

TO BE ALLOWED TO RUN ON SUNDAY

Confronted with a petition bearing the signatures of 9000 citizens, who ask that the Star theatre in Merrimack street, opposite city hall, be accorded the same privilege as is enjoyed by other moving picture houses throughout the city, that of giving sacred concerts on Sunday, Mayor Meehan has decided to allow the theatre in question to open next Sunday on condition that the concerts be given at services which will not conflict with church services next day.

The Star theatre is less than 200 feet removed from the First Congregational church and the people who worship at that church objected to Sunday performances at that theatre because of the fact that such performances disturb the church services. The church people stated their case to Mayor Meehan, and the latter has refused to allow the Star theatre to open on Sunday.

The church people made it plain in their statement to the mayor that they did not want to unnecessarily interfere with the theatre managers or with the business of the theatre, and all they asked was that their hours of worship should not be disturbed.

Several days ago the petition, signed by 9000 persons, and asking that the Star theatre be allowed to give concerts on Sunday, was submitted to the mayor and after considering the matter carefully the mayor has decided to allow the Star theatre to open on Sunday next, with the stipulation that the hours of performances there shall be other than the hours of worship at the church next door.

He formed a part of the estate of the late Miss Hazel Brown of Newton, Mass., announced after being arrested that he would not return to Boston without extradition and that he would fight the case here.

TREADWAY'S VOTE

Killed the 54 Hour Bill in the Senate Yesterday

BOSTON, April 22.—President Treadway of the senate killed the 54-hour bill for women and minors in mercantile and manufacturing establishments yesterday by casting the vote which created a tie.

The record stood 18 to 17, with every member of the body recorded but Senator Turtle of Pittsfield. Senator Keith of Bridgewater was paired with Senator Spalding of Cambridge, and Sen. Parker, who was sitting beside President Treadway, was requested to ask the Pittsfield member if he would not vote.

Senator Turtle, who was in his seat, refused to do so. The president, who could note the refusal from his place on the rostrum, at once requested the Clerk to call the name of the President of the honorable senate.

It was called and President Treadway answered "No," making the vote 18 to 18 and killing the measure as effectively as if a majority had been shown against it. Senator Ross immediately gave notice that he would move reconsideration this afternoon, and the matter went into the orders of the day.

Opponents Want Amendment Previous to the matter being reached on the calendar yesterday several of the bill's opponents suggested that it be amended so that it would go into effect in 1912, instead of 1911, as provided in the measure as it stands, they might be induced to vote for it.

Senator Ross of New Bedford, who was in charge of the measure, refused to accept the suggestion, and declared that he was willing to take a chance on it as it stood. Senator Turner of Fall River was willing to meet the others half way, but agreed that Senator Ross, who had had charge of all the preliminary work, probably was the best judge of the chances of the measure. As a result the suggested amendment was discarded, and the fight went on the bill as it was before the senate, although it is possible that the friends of the measure may accept the suggestion today if it should be decided to reconsider.

Senator Ross, in opening for the bill, related the history of the compromise two years ago, by which the 54 hour bill was made a 66 hour bill and passed in that form. He declared that that measure had never been satisfactory to the labor people and gave it as his opinion that Rhode Island stood ready to pass a 54 hour bill when Massachusetts did.

"This state has an eight hour law for sturdy men, who are employed in the open air for most of the time," he argued, "but the women and children who suffer in the mills are not given the same consideration."

He suggested that the bill could be given its third reading and then, if it were deemed advisable to amend it the amendments might be offered on the next stage.

"If the bill is going to be amended it had better be today," suggested Senator Mahoney of Holyoke. "Then they can be printed and we can study them over Sunday."

The vote was taken a few moments afterwards. The rollcall showed the following:

Yes—Bunting, Butler, Doyle, Harvey, Hibbard, Lomasney, Mahoney, Malley, Mooney, Nash, Nason, Newhall, O'Connor, Rankin, Ross, Teeling, Tolman, Turner—18.

No—Bennett, Blanchard, Bray, Bunnell, Crosby, Denny, Evans, Fuller, Greenwood, Hildman, Mellen, Mulligan, Parker, Pickford, Rockwood, Tinkham, Treadway (president), White—18.

Paired—Yes, Keith; no, Spalding. Not voting—Turtle.

FIRE COMMISSIONER

JEREMIAH J. MCCARTHY SELECTED BY MAJOR FITZGERALD

BOSTON, April 22.—Jeremiah J. McCarthy, surveyor of the port of Boston, has been selected by Mayor Fitzgerald to succeed General Samuel D. Parker as fire commissioner.

The surveyor, who started his long career of public service with the volunteer fire department of Charlestown, has accepted the mayor's offer and is preparing to assume his new duties at the expiration of Commissioner Parker's term on May 1.

That the surveyor will receive the endorsement of the civil service commission is generally accepted because he served six years as a policeman in the regular department and was a member of the state board of fire commissioners by appointment of Governor Brackett. While he was a member of the board he visited Europe and studied the fire departments of all the big cities.

WORCESTER MEN

Say They Have Perfected Flying Machine

WORCESTER, April 22.—Something of a surprise was handed out to Supt. of Public Buildings Halcott when he asked the nature of the structure which Alphonse J. Dube and his brother Vincent Dube asked permission to build.

"I want a building permit for a garage," said Dube.

"Going to have a new place to store the auto in?" asked Supt. Halcott interestingly.

"This is an airplane garage," answered Dube but it might do for an auto on a pinch.

As soon as Mr. Halcott recovered from the shock he dragged out his permit blank and filled out his first flying garage permit.

"I suppose I might just as well start issuing these permits now," he said, "for they are bound to come sooner or later."

The Dube brothers have been experimenting in airships for some time and claim that they now have a perfected flying machine.

Doctors Expect to Save Man's Life

PROVIDENCE, April 22.—Department Foreman Eugene Royce of the American screw company underwent an x-ray operation at the hospital last night in an effort to extract a bullet from his head. His condition was serious when he was taken to the surgeon's table and with heroic treatment the doctors expect to save his life.

Royce resides at 11 Bolander street and in some mysterious manner he was shot and the police are unable to obtain any sort of a satisfactory statement from the occupants of the house where Royce lived and where the shooting took place. The bullet entered the head near the jaw. Royce is 42 years old and he is one of the best-known residents of the North End.

GIRL A WITNESS FOR COUNSEL FEES

At the Trial of Wolter, Accused Lawyer Sues City of Malden for $10,000

NEW YORK, April 22.—Two witnesses—the young prisoner himself and a young woman—were relied upon by Albert Wolter's counsel today to sweep away the mass of evidence which the prosecution has piled up against him and to clear him from the charge of having strangled Ruth Wheeler and burned her still living body in the fireplace of his apartment. The trial of the 16-year-old youth moved swiftly to its close. For the last four days he has sat in queer calm and seen without a quiver the constant production in court of the charred bones and other gruesome reminders of the deed which so shockingly ended the life of the 16-year-old stenographer who called on his rooms looking for work and was never again seen alive. Wolter's lawyer says the boy's innocence has fortified him and he expected to prove from Wolter's own lips today that the prosecution's array of facts counted for nothing. He would be helped in this, the prisoner's counsel, Walter Scott, stated, by a woman who would swear that the body of Ruth Wheeler was not placed on the fire escape of Wolter's apartment until two days after the alleged commission of the crime when it would have been impossible for Wolter to have put it there.

The bright faced German girl, Kate Gille, went to the witness stand today to tell a story that Wolter's counsel hopes will unravel the moths of circumstantial evidence which have been woven around the East Side neighbor-deed. Her room adjoined that of the Wolter apartment where little Ruth Wheeler was murdered. Mr. Scott told the jury that he would build the foundation of Wolter's defense by testifying that the bag containing the burned body was not on the fire escape either on Friday or Saturday morning. It was not there at that time then, Wolter did not kill Ruth Wheeler, declared counsel, for Wolter was then in the hands of the police.

The Gille girl told the jury that she heard two rings of her doorbell on the fatal Thursday morning. No one came upstairs. About 8.30 o'clock she heard somebody leave the Wolter apartment and the door closed. All that morning she heard no one enter Wolter's room.

"I did my washing on Friday," said the girl, "but did not look out on the fire escape during the day."

"I stayed in my room until 4 o'clock and then went out," she continued.

"Saturday morning I took possession of the Wolter room and cleaned it. About 10.30 in the morning I looked out on the fire escape and there was nothing on it. Wolter threw a smile of apparent triumph to his counsel."

"On Thursday," the Gille girl said, "the sack which later held Ruth's body was in the public hall. It was there on Friday 'full of wood' she declared in answer to a question from the court."

"When was the last time you saw the sack?" asked Mr. Scott.

"On Friday at one o'clock," Miss Gille replied.

"If there had been anything on the fire escape on Saturday, would you have seen it?"

"On a grill of questioning the Gille girl was only slightly shaken in her testimony. She said she didn't remember whether she had told Pearl or Adelaide Wheeler that she had not been home on Friday."

WOLTER'S STORY

ACCUSED MAN BETRAYED NO EMOTION WHILE TELLING IT

NEW YORK, April 22.—Gently guided by counsel, Albert Wolter, taking the stand today in his own defense,

MADE WELL AND STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Jefferson, Iowa.—"When my baby was just two months old I was completely run down and my internal organs were in terrible shape. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and mother wrote and told you just how I was. I began to gain at once and now I am real well."—Mrs. W. H. Buxton, 700 Cherry St., Jefferson, Iowa.

Another Woman Cured. Glenwood, Iowa.—"About three years ago I had falling and other female troubles, and I was nothing but skin and bones. I was so sick I could not do my own work. Within six months I was made sound and well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will always tell my friends that your remedy cured me, and you can publish my letter."—Mrs. C. W. Duxon, Glenwood, Iowa.

If you belong to that countless army of women who suffer from some form of female ills, just try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

told to an intently listening jury his story of that fateful day on which youthful Ruth Wheeler came to his apartment on a quest for work and found death by strangulation and burning.

Wolter betrayed no emotion. He coolly declared that he had never written Ruth Wheeler in his life; he had not even seen her and had only written her name in his memorandum book at the request of a Coney Island waiter, Fred Ahner, who, he said, wanted to start a German stenographic school.

He was eighteen years old, the defendant said, and had come here from Germany two years ago. Wolter had met Katie Mueller and they had lived together since December.

Early on the morning of March 24, Wolter said, he left his room, bought paint and brush and after looting all day in Central park, returned home in the evening and painted the fireplace.

Some time during the hours Wolter said he spent in the park, Ruth Wheeler met her death in his room. That evening Pearl Wheeler came in search of her sister but the witness said he did not meet her.

"That night I was awakened by the falling fireplace," said the witness. "Twice it fell and each time I arose and fixed it."

Explaining the postal cards sent to young girls in reference to securing work, Wolter said he met Ahner and they talked of establishing a school to teach German shorthand.

"Did you see any girl come up to your room on Thursday?"

"I did not."

Prosecutor Moss on cross-examination asked Wolter to answer questions to entrap the fencing witness.

No flush of shame tinged the face of Wolter as he admitted that he and Katie Mueller lived on what the girl earned—$6 a week. They had bread and cocoa for dinner. Wolter blurted out that he had lost one position because he had collected money and did not turn it in. Prosecutor Moss read extracts from Wolter's memorandum book, including some stories of murders which Wolter had copied from newspapers into his book.

Wolter had now lost his nonchalance. His brow was drawn, his lips were drooping and his smile was wan and sickly. Mr. Moss read Ruth Wheeler's name from the book and asked:

"Why did you also write March 27th?"

"Because I thought that date was Monday?"

"Why did you write it wasn't the girl standing alongside of you when you wrote this? Hadn't you told her you would give her a job?"

"No. Fred Ahner told me to write it."

"When?"

"In my room on Thursday, March 24th, between three and four o'clock, he dictated it to me."

Mr. Moss wanted to know what Wolter had meant by telling Captain Carey that he had copied the name Ruth Amos Wheeler and her address from an advertisement.

"I did not tell him that."

Mr. Moss read from the stenographer's record of his examination by Captain Carey.

"Well, you did say that, didn't you?"

"I don't know. I was too sleepy at that time to remember," was the faint reply.

"Is that your shirt?"

Wolter looked it over carefully and replied:

"Yes."

"How did it get all that blood and grease on it?"

"I don't know."

"When Pearl Wheeler was in your room looking for Ruth, calling her by name, knocking on the door, did you hear her name in the book and said nothing about it to Pearl?"

"I didn't remember," said Wolter.

"Why did you go so far away from home to buy the paint and brush?"

"Because I thought I could get it cheaper," said the witness, and Wolter's cross examination was ended.

The defense rested when Wolter left the stand. After several witnesses had been called by the prosecution in rebuttal and Katie Gille was recalled to testify briefly for the defense, court adjourned until 4 o'clock, when Mr. Scott will sum up for Wolter.

Remainder of a $25,000 Counsel Fee That He Alleges is Still Due Him—Verdict of $172.20 for Plaintiff in Case of Sullivan vs. Inhabitants of Pepperell

The jury in the case of Sullivan vs. the Inhabitants of Pepperell to recover land damages returned a verdict of $172.20 for the plaintiff this morning.

The case of Charles R. Elder of Malden vs. City of Malden to recover $10,000 for legal services rendered the city of Malden, was opened shortly before adjournment last evening and took the entire session today, all jury men not empaneled in this case being excused until Monday.

The plaintiff, Mr. Elder, is a former city solicitor of Malden but the case is an action of contract to recover the balance which the plaintiff alleges is not city solicitor, rendered in the city's suit against the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which resulted from the taking of Spot pond—the source of the water supply of Malden, Melrose and Medford—when the new Metropolitan Water System was established, by act of the legislature.

Mr. Elder claims that he is an expert on water systems, and that his services for the city were unique. Judgment was entered against the Commonwealth, in the sum of $279,554.72, a much larger sum than the city at first was willing to accept. Mr. Elder claims that this was due to his expert services, and the large amount of research which he put into the case; and he considers that he was entitled to receive $25,000. He was paid $15,000, and now seeks to recover the remainder, with interest.

Mr. Elder's case has been heard by an auditor, who decided in his favor finding that the claim of $25,000 made by Mr. Elder was a reasonable one for the services rendered. The auditor found that the case was unique, that it involved many questions of law, some of which were extremely complicated, and many questions of fact more or less involved. Also, that the whole history of Spot pond had to be looked up, from the time of its discovery in 1631; and that all legislative enactments relating to water systems had to be looked up by the counsel. He found that Mr. Elder spent 252 days of five hours each, in working on the case, preparing it for trial, and in the trial.

The city claims that it did not employ Mr. Elder as an expert and that it was not known in Malden that he was an expert on water cases. He was known as a hard worker, and was employed by an act of the city council, authorizing the mayor to employ additional counsel. That he was not employed to assume the whole responsibility of the case, but to assist the city solicitor. That prior to his employment there had been several counsel in the case. Also that the work of preparing the case had been subdivided, between counsel for the three cities.

John C. Burke of this city conducts the case for the plaintiff and H. L. Boutwell and F. P. Miller for the defendant. The session was taken up with the reading and discussion of the auditor's report in the case.

LET DREAMS COME TRUE

BOY DROWNED

Little Lad Was Gathering Pussy Willows

Edgar Decelle, aged eight years, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Decelle of 1163 Lakeview avenue, Dracut, was drowned shortly before five o'clock yesterday afternoon in Beaver brook at a point near the Parker avenue bridge in the Navy Yard section.

The boy was gathering pussy willows and had climbed into a willow tree whose branches extend for some little distance over the water. One of the limbs onto which he was holding for support gave way and he was precipitated into the water. Yvonne, the little sister of the drowned boy, who was watching her brother screamed for help, but her cries and those of the victim failed to bring assistance in time. Those attracted to the scene made every effort to recover the body but this did not meet with any success and it was nearly 7 o'clock when Undertaker Albert dragged the little victim's body from the water after searching for only a short time.

The deceased is survived by his parents, besides three brothers, Harry, Walter and George and two sisters, Yvonne and Laura.

Valuable Advice to Sufferers From Skin Diseases

Under no circumstances should medicated or plain soap or any preparation containing alcohol or water, be used by sufferers from eczema and similar skin troubles. These things aggravate the trouble and make it impossible for the skin to heal. The new medical compound called Cadum is the best and surest remedy, as it contains neither water nor alcohol. When applied, it excludes the air and other irritating agents, stops the itching at once, and sets up the healing process immediately. Most wonderful cures are reported from all sections. Cadum is just as effective in the treatment of psoriasis, ringworm, pimples, blotches, rash, eruptions, chafings, itching piles, rough, scaly skin, sores, acne, herpes, etc. 10c and 25c. First Time In My History

I had to stop taking orders for Patriots' day delivery early last week. It was simply and utterly impossible for me to turn out the unexpected volume of work on time. As money could not buy additional skilled labor at this season of the year I could not accept the orders, so I let many a man out of my store to get a suit elsewhere.

With double the facilities that always proved adequate to my growing trade this is the first time in my career that I could not take all the business that came my way.

Think a moment. I do not attract people by pretentious stories. I don't go in for fancy furniture and swell fixtures. I'd rather put the money into the woollens. Advertising helps me, but is not my whole success. All the advertising from now till the crack of doom could not bolster an unworthy success long enough to pay the printer. It's the values, man, it's the pleased customer, it's the good word passed along from Jim to Jack, from Jack to Joe and so on.

Hockanum Worsteds

I pulled off a stunt last week that I admit I can't always duplicate. It isn't given to any one man in business to always accomplish the wonderful things that are wonderful because they are seldom. Today I can talk big—I've got the goods. I've got for you and your neighbors the famous

ROYAL WELCOME

Theatre Audience in Paris Went Wild Over Roosevelt

PARIS, April 22.—No reigning sovereign ever received a more enthusiastic welcome to Paris than did Theodore Roosevelt, the former president of the United States, yesterday. He reached here at half past seven o'clock yesterday morning and was greeted by the representatives of the president of the republic and the cabinet, American Ambassador Bacon; M. Jusserand, the French ambassador at Washington, and a great concourse of people, which the cordon of troops surrounding the railway station had difficulty in holding in check.

After luncheon at the American embassy, Col. Roosevelt called upon President Fallieres and Foreign Minister Pinchon, who immediately afterwards paid return visits to the embassy. Part of the afternoon was devoted to private engagements.

Mr. Roosevelt was given an ovation at the Comedie Francaise last evening, where he made his real public appearance in Paris, occupying the presidential box which had been placed at his disposal by M. Fallieres. Anticipating his coming, every seat and every box seat in the theatre had been sold days in advance, the audience being an exceptionally brilliant one. When Col. Roosevelt entered the theatre between acts, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel, Kermit, and Ambassador and Mrs. Bacon, the house literally rose to its feet, volleys of applause bursting from the boxes, pit and gallery. For a full minute the colonel made no response, but as the demonstration continued he came forward and bowed his acknowledgments. The bill was Sophocles' Greek tragedy, "Oedipus Rex," staged and acted as only possible at a French national theatre, and Mr. Roosevelt seemed to enjoy it hugely, joining with the audience in the applause. At the end of each act, when Mounet-Sully, who played the title role, and the other performers responded, they advanced as customary when royalty is present, bowing profoundly in the direction of the ex-president before turning to the audience. This seemed only to give additional pleasure to the audience, which in turn each time gave a fresh round of applause for Mr. Roosevelt.

During one of the intermissions Jules Claretie, director of the theatre, conducted the party through the magnificent foyer, pointing out the statues, portraits and relics of actors and authors once connected with the history of the famous house. As the party left the building at the close of the performance, rounds of cheers were given by the crowds outside.

The Temps last night fairly reflected the tone of the entire French press, declaring that Mr. Roosevelt's tour of Europe is unparalleled in history. "No democratic chief of state," says the paper, "ever before enjoyed such popularity. We are accustomed to formal visits of kings and presidents, but Roosevelt is no longer president. It is the man, therefore, not the office, which is being honored. It is his vigor, his personality, his character, ideas and temperament, which appeal to European opinion."

After reviewing his career, the Temps concludes: "Few are more worthy of the esteem of the democracy, for he represents at the same time liberty and authority—those two antitheses which republicans, conscious of their duty and solicitude of the future, are everywhere trying to harness together."

All of the newspapers are particularly warm in their words of welcome and the sentiment of Parisians generally is shown in the abundant display of American flags and bunting on private residences, shops and public buildings.

Mr. Roosevelt said last night that he expected to enjoy his stay in Paris, particularly where he was acquainted, either personally or through correspondence with a host of interesting personalities in the literary, scientific, artistic and political world. At his request Ambassador Bacon managed to restrict the number of official functions as much as possible, to allow him to meet and exchange views with eminent Frenchmen, in whose ideas he is greatly interested.

Yesterday afternoon Col. Roosevelt slipped away for two hours to pay visits to President Loubet and the sister of the late Edward Simmons, the American artist, for whose work the ex-president has a high regard.

Saturday will be devoted to a reception by the French Immortals and the university. Col. Roosevelt, delivering his lecture at the Sorbonne on this day, and the American ambassador has arranged for a reception on Tuesday night, to which only Frenchmen distinguished in arts and letters have been invited. Arrangements also have been made for the ex-president to meet Leon Bourgeois, the ex-minister of foreign affairs, Jean Louis Renault and Baron D'Estournelles De Constant, the leaders of the French arbitration and peace movements. Among other engagements made by Col. Roosevelt is a dinner with Edith Wharton, the writer.

Jules Cambon, whom Mr. Roosevelt knew well in Washington, will come from Berlin today to be present at the dinner of President Fallieres. M. Clemenceau, the former premier, has also been invited, but he is ill at Karlshof and has been obliged to decline.

The lecture at the Sorbonne on Saturday, which the entire cabinet will attend, it is understood, will be a very vigorous document. It was written a year and a half ago and deals with the duties of citizenship. Col. Roosevelt said yesterday that he looked to find his greatest pleasure in appearing before one of the oldest universities in the world. When informed that 900 students had been selected who understood English, he replied laughingly: "I should like to speak to them in French, but I have too much regard for my auditors."

It is understood that both the English and French lectures, as well as that at the Sorbonne, were written in America, the only product of his African labors being the Nobel prize address to be delivered at Christiania.

During the course of the day more than 500 cards were left at the American embassy, where Mr. Roosevelt and his family will be guests during their stay here.

Today will be spent in sightseeing. In the afternoon there will be a luncheon and reception to the American colony at the American embassy, and in the evening President Fallieres will have Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt as guests at dinner and a reception at Elysee palace.

MAN STABBED

Row Occurred Over Marriage of Girl

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 22.—Two Greeks are at the Notre Dame hospital, one of them at the point of death. He received a stab wound through the skull, penetrating the brain, in a street riot among Greeks at 9 o'clock last night. The dying man is named Shavis Samaras, aged 24. Another Greek, Demetrius Plankis, received two deep stabs in the back. The police made a large number of arrests. The row occurred over the marriage of a young Greek girl to a Roumanian, at which the Macedonian Greeks took offense.

ROGERS ESTATE

Valued By Executors at $36,000,000

NEW YORK, April 22.—Instead of the fortune of $100,000,000 popularly accredited to H. H. Rogers, the former vice president of the Standard Oil Co., left an estate valued by his executors at less than $36,000,000, on which a preliminary inheritance tax has been paid, according to the New York World. By making this payment the executors are entitled to a discount of five per cent. The estimate and report on the estate were filed, it is stated, on Nov. 18 last, but no filing of the fact has ever been made public. The estimated value is given as $34,000,000. An error of five per cent either way is allowable under the rules of the state comptroller's office, and granting the full allowance is asked for in the final accounting, the estate would be worth but $35,500,000.

At the time of the panic of 1907, stories were circulated that Mr. Rogers had been obliged to dispose of securities at a loss and the statement that he left only one-third of the fortune he was supposed to possess is cited as giving color to the truth of these assertions.

"FATHER'S NIGHT" OBSERVED AT THE FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH "Father's Night" was observed on

Wednesday night by the members of the Maternal association at the First Congregational church. The gathering was a very pleasant one, the president of the organization, Mrs. M. J. Boynton, welcoming the guests in a most cordial manner.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Mr. Wedge of the Baptist church. Many interesting, entertaining, applicable suggestions were made in the course of the address which were approved by his hearers, as evidenced by frequent applause.

A pleasing musical program, consisting of piano solos by Miss Murphy and vocal solos by Mrs. Stella Wilson, contributed to the enjoyment of the evening.

The hostesses of the evening were Mrs. Robert S. Fulton and Mrs. John

E. Lewis, who were ably assisted by the following members:

Reception committee: Mrs. Boynton, president; Mrs. Fulton, vice president; Mrs. Charles E. Robinson, secretary; Mrs. John E. Lewis, Mrs. Otis W. Butler, and Mrs. Edward F. Carley, treasurer.

Prior to an hour of sociability, a most appetizing chafing dish luncheon was daintily served by Mrs. John E. Lewis, Mrs. Otis W. Butler, Mrs. Arthur Bartlett, Mrs. Frank Hoyt, Mrs. Walter Hoyt and Mrs. Charles E. Robinson. Mrs. John A. Osgood, poured.

MARK TWAIN DEAD

The Noted Humorist Passed Away at Redding, Conn.

REDDING, Conn., April 22.—Samuel Langhorne Clemens, "Mark Twain," died peacefully at his home here at 6.30 o'clock last night of angina pectoris. He lapsed into coma at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and never recovered consciousness. It was the end of a man worn out by grief and agony of body.

Wednesday was a bad day for the little knot of anxious watchers at the bedside. For hours the gray, aquiline features lay moulded in the inertia of death, while the pulse sank lower and lower, but late at night Mark Twain passed from stupor into the first natural sleep he had known since he returned from Bermuda, and yesterday morning woke refreshed, even faintly cheerful, and in full possession of all his faculties. He recognized his daughter Clara, Mrs. Ossip Gabrilovitch, spoke a word or two, and, feeling himself unequal to conversation, wrote out in pencil: "Give me my glasses."

They were his last words. Laying them aside he sank first into reverie and later into final unconsciousness. There was no thought at the time, however, that the end was so near. At 5 o'clock, Dr. Robert Halsey, who had been continuously in attendance, said: "Mr. Clemens is not so strong at this hour as he was at the corresponding hour yesterday, but he has wonderful vitality and he may rally again. Albert Bigelow Paine, Mark Twain's biographer and literary executor, said to a caller who desired to inquire for Mr. Clemens, "I do not think you will have to call often."

Nevertheless, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Loomis, who had come up from New York to give their love in person, left Stamford, Mr. Clemens' home, without seeing him, and heard of his death just as they were taking the train to New York again.

Mrs. Loomis was Mr. Clemens' favorite niece, and Mr. Loomis is vice-president of the Lackawanna railroad. Similarly, Jarvis Langdon, a nephew, who had run up for the day, left even earlier, and wholly uninformed. At the death bed were only Mrs. Gabrilovitch (Clara Clemens), her husband, Dr. Robert Halsey, Dr. Quintard, Albert Bigelow Paine, and the two trained nurses.

Restoratives were administered, but the patient failed to respond. Oxygen was tried Wednesday, and the physician explained that it was of no value because the valvular action of the heart was not disordered. There was only an extreme and increasing debility accompanied by labored respiration. Although angina pectoris is characterized by severe pain and deep depression of spirits, Mark Twain did not die in anguish. Sedatives soothed his pain, but in his moments of consciousness the mental depression persisted. On the way up from Bermuda he said to Mr. Paine, who had been his constant companion in illness: "This is a bad job; we'll never pull through with it."

On shore once more, and longing for the serenity of the New England hills, he took courage and said to those who noted his enticement in sorrow: "Give me a breath of Redding air once more and this will pass." But it did not pass, and tired of body and weary of spirit the old warrior against sham and snobbery said faintly to his nurses: "Why do you fight to keep me alive? Two days of life are as good to me as four."

Mark Twain was for more than 50 years an inveterate smoker and the first conjecture of the layman will be that he weakened his heart by over-indulgence in tobacco, but Dr. Halsey said last night that he was unable to predicate that the angina pectoris from which the humorist died, was in any way a sequel of nicotine poisoning. Yet it is true that after his illness began the doctors cut down Mark Twain's daily allowance of 20 cigars and countless pipes to four cigars a day.

No deprivation caused him more discomfort. He tried to smoke on the steamer while returning from Bermuda, and only gave it up because he was too feeble to draw on his pipe. Even on his death bed, when he had passed the point of speech and it was no longer certain that his ideas were lucid, he would wear an imaginary cigar, and, smiling, expel empty air from his heavy moustache, stained with smoke.

CLEMENS' HOME

MAY BE PURCHASED BY THE STATE

HANNIBAL, Mo., April 22.—The news of the death of Samuel L. Clemens was received with profound sorrow in Hannibal, his boyhood home. Many of the characters in his earlier works are still living here.

All business places and city offices will be closed on the day of the funeral and memorial services will be held at the usual hour as the services in the past.

A lengthy telegram of condolence was sent to Mrs. Gabrilovitch urging that the body be buried here, in the same lot with his father, mother and brothers.

A movement has been started to have Clemens' boyhood home purchased by the state and it is said State Senator McAllister said that a bill to this effect would be introduced in the next legislature.

"HUCKLEBERRY FINN" WEPT

PARIS, Mo., April 22.—B. C. M. (Barnes) Farthing, the original of "Huckleberry Finn" wept when he heard of Mark Twain's death. "The old days are passing," he said. "Even the long sweep of the majestic Mississippi river seems to have dwindled. The noise of its traffic and the music of its deep throated whistles are practically no more. The man who put into words for the delight of the world the pictures of the great river, is dead."

COL. ROOSEVELT

PAINED TO HEAR OF MARK TWAIN'S DEATH

PARIS, April 22.—Former President Roosevelt was greatly pained to hear of the death of Mark Twain. He said: "It is with sincere grief that I learned of the death of this great American author. His position, like that of Joel Chandler Harris, was unique, not only in American letters but in the literatures of the world. He was not only a great humorist, but a great philosopher, and his writings form one of the assets in America's contributions to the world of literature of which we have a right as a nation to be genuinely proud."

In the pigskin library which Mr. Roosevelt carried through the jungles of Africa were two of the late author's books, "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer," and Mr. Roosevelt says that he read both of them several times and always with the greatest interest.

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY

INDIANAPOLIS, April 22.—James Whitcomb Riley said: "Though not unexpected, the announcement of Mr. Clemens' death is startling. The news will cause universal sorrow because the world has lost not only a genius but a man of striking character, of influence and of boundless resources. The world never will have another 'Mark Twain.'"

"FALSE REPORT"

Is the Charge Against Police Inspector

NEW YORK, April 22.—Police Inspector Hussey is in serious trouble with Mayor Gaynor and will probably stand trial in the near future, as the result of making a report which the mayor believes to "have been false and without warrant."

Louis Bowsky, of No. 436 West One Hundred and Sixteenth street, on March 18 wrote Mayor Gaynor a letter protesting that the police were interfering with boys selling flowers at the subway station in Broadway and One Hundred and Sixteenth street, while they allowed vendors of vegetables and newspapers to go unmolested.

Instead of investigating this complaint from his own office, as was his custom, the mayor sent the complaint to Police Commissioner Baker, asking him to look into it. Baker turned the letter over to Inspector Hussey, calling for an investigation. In due time Hussey sent a report to Baker saying that Bowsky denied ever having written the letter to the mayor and that the complaint was entirely unfounded. Baker forwarded this report to Mayor Gaynor, who then took the matter into his own hand and asked William E. McLoney, his executive secretary, to make an investigation. As a result of the mayor's inquiry, Bowsky yesterday appeared at the mayor's office, where he swore to an affidavit setting forth that the original letter of complaint was in his own hand, that no police official ever saw him, and that he never made any statement to Inspector Hussey or any other official or citizen purporting to represent him, and that the police were still persecuting the boys attempting to sell flowers at Broadway and One Hundred and Sixteenth street.

The mayor last night sent this affidavit by Bowsky to Commissioner Baker, attached to Hussey's report declaring that Bowsky had repudiated his letter. The mayor demanded an immediate explanation of Hussey's "false report," and intimated that unless Hussey could make the matter right the first thing today he would be placed on trial in a day or so and dismissed for submitting a false report to the mayor.

This action by the mayor alarmed the police department thoroughly last night as soon as the action in Hussey's case became known, for it was understood on excellent authority that the mayor had trapped at least three other inspectors in a similar manner and would proceed against them as soon as Hussey's case was disposed of.

GRAND CANYON

Noted Speakers Secured For Council's Banquet on Next Tuesday Evening in Council Rooms

"The Grand Canyon of Colorado," was the theme of an interesting lecture before the members of Lowell Council, Knights of Columbus, last evening. The lecturer was Mr. Charles F. McHugh of Cambridge, an eloquent speaker who described the scenery amid the massive gorge most eloquently. The talk was made doubly interesting from the fact that 100 vari-colored views of the canyon region were displayed on the screen. Mr. McHugh visited the canyon district one year ago, and he declared that the place was indescribably beautiful, well worth a trip. During the evening an entertainment program was presented, the feature of which were selections by the Pocahontas Mandolin club, under the direction of Wm. P. Hovey. They gave several popular medleys that brought forth tremendous applause. The members of the club are as follows: Violins, George Nelson, Edw. F. Slattery, Jr., Herbert Wisby, William Wiggin; mandolins, Charles Hillier, Edmund Foley, Donald Kirby, Harry Brown, and James Rooney; guitars, Alben Phil, Fred Rolfe, Charles Roll, Donald Whitney, John Down and Barry Farnham. Songs were rendered by Andrew McCarthy and James E. Donnelly. Both gentlemen responded to encores. After the entertainment a buffet luncheon was served. Dr. Thomas F. Carroll was accompanied during the evening. Dr. Murphy, lecturer of the council, who has demonstrated since assuming the position that he is the right man in the right place. Mr. Murphy has other entertainments arranged for the members.

K. of C. Banquet
The annual banquet of Lowell Council, Knights of Columbus, will be held Tuesday evening next, and promises to be a brilliant affair. At the post prandial exercises Dr. James J. Dr. Walsh is regarded as in the forefront of Catholic educators, and this week delivered a lecture in Boston in aid of the new

POLICE CAPTAIN

Says He Was Offered $50 Bribe

NEW YORK, April 22.—Assistant District Attorney Robert Elder, of Kings county, Deputy Police Commissioner Reynolds, in charge of Brooklyn, and Captain Samuel McElroy, of the Hamilton avenue police station, Brooklyn, are congratulating themselves on the clever manner in which they trapped a man who, they allege, attempted to bribe Captain McElroy.

The man, who gave the name of Michael M. Armarampa, a barber, of 30 Carroll street, was arrested yesterday afternoon in front of the county courthouse, in Brooklyn, by Lieutenants Van Vagener and Murphy, and later was held in $3000 bail in Adams street court. He was locked up in Raymond street jail.

Several days ago, shortly after Captain McElroy was placed in command of the Hamilton avenue station, Armarampa, a barber, offered him $50 to refrain from raiding the premises of Frank Colma, at 3 Carroll street, which has been raided a dozen times. The captain told the man he would consider the offer, and then took the matter to Deputy Commissioner Reynolds. Reynolds called in Elder. "Why, I know this man!" exclaimed Elder. "He is known as 'Mike the Fixer.' This time we'll fix him."

Reynolds and Elder instructed the captain to make an appointment with Armarampa at the captain's home, 991 Sterling place, for the purpose of receiving the money. On Tuesday night the prisoner called at McElroy's home, the captain says, and tendered him the money. The captain was not the only one who saw him hand it over.

Clowry, a machinist at the car barns, after leaving for the night, had attempted to board the front platform of a Yonkers bound car. He slipped and his foot caught in the step. He was dragged about fifty yards before the motorman saw what had happened and stopped the car.

One of Clowry's feet was almost severed and his head and body were badly bruised, and Clowry had lost much blood. No medical aid was procurable in the vicinity, but a telephone message brought Dr. Klein.

YONKERS DOCTOR

NEW YORK, April 22.—After a race of four miles against time, Dr. William Klein, of St. Joseph's hospital, Yonkers, probably saved Peter Clowry, thirty-four, of No. 37 St. Joseph's avenue, Yonkers, at the Webster avenue car barns of the Yonkers Railroad company, last night. Clowry, a machinist at the car barns, after leaving for the night, had attempted to board the front platform of a Yonkers bound car. He slipped and his foot caught in the step. He was dragged about fifty yards before the motorman saw what had happened and stopped the car.

MILK PRODUCERS

Plan a Milkless Day for Boston on May 1

BOSTON, April 22.—If the plans of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' association do not miscarry, Boston will have a milkless May 1.

Reports show that the farmers all over New England are being organized and are agreeing to withdraw their milk from the Boston market after April 30, when the winter price agreements with the group of contractors who control the milk of New England expire, in order to prevent the reduction usual every summer and force a retention of the winter rates throughout the whole year.

The indications seem to be that the farmer is preparing to rise in his might as he is never risen before.

"This will be the greatest withholding of milk from the Boston market that New England has ever seen," Jonas Beams of Charleston, secretary of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' association, said tonight. "We'll have Boston so dry May 1 that her people will have to drink the sea water."

"If this withdrawal goes through, as it will unless the contractors grant the farmers' demands—and their attitude now and in the past makes it almost certain that they will not—much of the milk supplies that will be withdrawn will never be again available for Boston. We gave the contractors a chance to get in line with us and they refused to grant our requests."

The farmer has been pushed to the wall and you know a man in that position gets desperate. The farmer has rights in this matter and he is going to see at this time if he can't get them. He has gone to the legislature and the legislature has done nothing for him.

New he's going to see what he can do for himself.

"At the prices the contractors want to pay, the farmer cannot make a profit on his milk. Living has advanced. The cost of grain and the increased wages for help have made fat his expense. If he can't make money selling milk, perhaps he can make money making butter and utilizing his skim milk in various ways."

Three or four firms control practically all of the milk sold in New England, aside from that sold in or near their home towns by small producers. These men have divided the New England states into 10 zones that radiate from Boston. As these zones, each 20 miles wide, recede from Boston, the price paid the producer in each arbitrarily marked territory is automatically reduced one cent per can of eight and a half quarts. This is on account of transportation charges, which the farmer, consequently, has to pay in a ratio with his distance from the Hub.

TO WITHDRAW MILK SUPPLY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 22.—Word was received here last night that 100 farmers who supply milk to the Providence branch of a large Boston milk concern, last night gathered at Chestnut Hill, Conn., and voted to withdraw their milk from the Providence market unless the winter prices are maintained in the summer schedules. A branch of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' association was organized with Nathan Manning of Lebanon, Conn., president, and L. M. Lord of Chestnut Hill, secretary and treasurer. A nucleus for a campaign fund was secured.

GLIDDEN TOUR

One of the great attractions of the 1910 Glidden tour from the tourists' point of view will be the historical interest attaching to the various towns in Kentucky and Tennessee. The Gliddenites will travel through much of the civil war territory and through some of the oldest country in the Union. The official pathfinding party has found the people in this territory hospitable and intensely interested in the automobile. They are always willing—in fact, proud—to relate the historical anecdotes of their localities.

Bardstown, a typical Kentucky village, strung out along the old Louisville and Nashville pike, was found by the pathfinding party as intensely interesting a spot as any along the route. There are a few distilleries, a court house and some private residences in Bardstown which causes the beholder to think that he is gazing upon a vision born of too many wild juleps. In this respect Bardstown is by no means in a class by itself.

But Bardstown is the birthplace of "My Old Kentucky Home." On Judge Rowan's plantation, on the border of the town, Stephen Foster, an invalid, who was the judge's guest one summer in the old days, had a restless night. Lying over the fall ridges from the window of his room, he felt the spell that Kentucky exercises on all who call her home. He heard their twanging of the banjos and the songs and laughter from the servants' quarters. In the morning he laid at his host's place at the table the manuscript of the song which has become as famous as any in the English language.

But Bardstown has an even more romantic association. In 1812 Louis Philippe, an exile, deposed from the throne of France, found refuge in the home of Bishop B. J. Flaget in Bardstown. He had met the prelate while traveling in Cuba. To show his appreciation of the bishop's hospitality, Philippe sent seven paintings to St. Joseph's church in this Kentucky hamlet. They are from the brushes of the oil masters and still hang in the little house of worship.

There are also some paintings in this church which were presented by the Boone family.

In the run to Bowling Green from Louisville over the old Louisville and Nashville pike, the party in the pathfinder stumbled upon a vivid reminder of the fact that Abraham Lincoln was a native of Kentucky. There is near Bufton, Ky., a splendid park with monuments of the great president and called the Lincoln memorial farm. Those in search of Lincoln lore make pilgrimages to this farm. On Knob Creek, just on the border of the village of Athensville, is a cabin, 14 by 20 feet, built of heavy logs. It is the most remote building on the farm of T. R. Ford. In this structure Lincoln first attended school and there are irrefutable evidences to prove that the shack's claim to distinction is authentic. The building is now used as a manger and so far as the owner of the farm knows, it was never photographed until Wm. A. Krohn, the official photographer with the Glidden pathfinder, snapped it.

The clay clinking his long since fallen away from the square timbers, which retain the scars of a broadaxe swung by some pioneer. Under the roof of tarred paper is a burning nook and yet as one stands in the little gulley surrounded by the ridges which have withstood cultivation up to the present time, one unconsciously pictures an ungainly, toiled headed lad peering through the chink hole at the blue sky, where the dream of the ancestors of two turkey buzzards circled on motionless wings as the pathfinders gazed upon the tumble down shed.

It was but a few rods from this school on the Rolling Fork of Salt river that Lincoln embarked on a flat boat to leave Kentucky in 1816. A Lincoln story with a startling point, yet containing a touch of interest was gleaned from a grizzled native by the crew of the pathfinder car in passing through this region. The incident all speak of Lincoln as though he had been an intimate friend. His memory is worshipped and a few patriarchs who knew him are venerated solely on that account.

"Lil' Abe had a right smart laid on him," said the oldest inhabitant. "Ol' Ambrose Riney gave thuh boys in thuh school house thar learnin' an' thuh boys never forgot thar nannache. Ev'ry day when lessons was finish, thuh boys had thuh pass Masiah Riney an' make a powerful bow, talkin' off thuh hats and bendin' low. Wal, men as went to school with Abe told me, an' it's true as God's above, Abe had to borah a clip each day to make his bow. Yes, suh, he did n't have no cap he was thar down poah."

It was voted to repair the crossing at June and Twelfth streets, but the committee allowed that June street did not need any attention at this time.

The petition that Wentworth avenue and Laurel street be macadamized was referred to the next city government.

On the question of extending New Fletcher street, near the Shaw hospital, Chairman Gray of a sub-committee reported that the land necessary for a 40 foot street would cost $703, as against $1125 wanted last year. Action was deferred.

In the Plain and Houghton streets petitions, a sub-committee was appointed to investigate and make a report. The proposition to change the name of Houghton street to Harriman avenue was turned down.

A sub-committee was appointed to consider the petition to extend Shaw street from Warwick to Wilbur. AN EXPERT'S OPINION OF SKIN DISEASES

A prominent, national expert on skin diseases whose name you are familiar with says that in all his scientific experience he has never found so hard a disease to conquer as Eczema. Yet he does not hesitate to recommend ZEMO as a most successful remedy for the treatment of Eczema, itching skin diseases, dandruff, psoriasis, black heads and all other diseases of the skin and scalp. He says that it not only cures the disease but makes the skin clear and healthy. Can he be used freely on infants? A. W. Down will gladly supply those who call with a free sample bottle of ZEMO and a booklet which explains in simple language all about skin diseases and how to cure yourself at home with ZEMO.

street was put up to grade. Meanwhile the petition was tabled.

The question of macadamizing Butler avenue and laying sidewalks of edge stones and cinders thereon, was brought up. On motion of Councilman Donohoe it was voted to have sidewalks laid.

"ROYAL ROOTER"

Michael J. Regan Placed Under Arrest

PROVIDENCE, April 22.—Michael J. Regan, known all along the baseball belt as "the royal rooter" from Boston, was arrested by the police at the opening game of the Eastern league here yesterday afternoon at the request of Deputy Supt. Watts of Boston. Regan was wanted in Massachusetts to answer a charge involving $13,000 in bonds of the Florida railway company, the securities being the property at one time of Harriette N. Brown of Boston.

Regan was not making much noise at the game yesterday and inspectors Ahearn and Monahan, who had been looking for him during the week, had no little difficulty in picking him out of the 10,000 other people at the Providence-Toronto contest.

Regan expressed no surprise when taken into custody. He said he knew that steps were being taken by the Boston authorities to get him back to his old stamping ground and that he had made no efforts to get away from Providence, but was about the city all the time and enjoying most of the good things of the town.

Celebrates Baseball Opening

Regan was jolly and then a bit cranky by spells. He finally told the inspectors that they need not ask Supt. Watts to send down an officer to take him back to Boston as a prisoner, for he would not go without extradition papers. The inspectors, however, are inclined to believe that Regan will change his mind.

Regan is held here as a prisoner on a fugitive from justice warrant, sworn out by Chief Horton, this action being taken at the instance of Supt. Watts, who wrote here on the case about a week ago. Watts said that while Regan was reported to be in Europe, he believed he was in Providence and would be on the honorary list of guests at the opening game.

Oldest Passamaquoddy Indian Dead

EASTPORT, Me., April 22.—The oldest member of the Passamaquoddy tribe of Indians, 100 years old, died a short time ago at the settlement. His name was Nicholas Jelscock.

There are yet a few old Indians at the village, but none as old as Nick, and the few that are now living at Pleasant point and who have reached an advanced age are confined to their homes.

REAL CHARITY

H. W. J. HOWE APPEALS FOR A WORTHY FAMILY

At the last meeting of the board of charity, Commissioner Howe made a strong appeal in behalf of a worthy family that had met with misfortune. He said this was one of many cases that had been brought to his attention and that he had investigated it personally with much care.

His rule was never to allow these cases to draw upon the resources of the department if other means of assistance could be provided. He had found that in many such cases very valuable assistance might be rendered in pointing out to the needy how they can help themselves by a little effort in the right direction.

The family for which he appealed in this case had been temporarily reduced to a state of destitution by sickness. The mother had been suffering for months from diabetes. There were several children and the husband, though temperate and industrious, could not command a higher wage than $6 or $7 a week in the mill.

The family had fallen behind in the rent and were ordered out of the tenement. The mother needed special care and diet, but the husband has been unable to pay the rent or to pay the expense of moving. The landlord has waited as long as could be expected, but wants his tenement vacated. To prevent the family from being thrown out of the home or from being thrown upon the street, Mr. Howe asked the board to pay the expense of moving and to be responsible for the first month's rent. The request was granted.

WOMEN'S GOLF PLAY

BOSTON, April 22.—It is a pretty stiff proposition of 22 holes medal play which the executive committee of the Women's Eastern Golf association has planned for the championship at the Huntington Valley Country club, Noble, Pa., from June 10th to the 11th.

In previous years 26 holes has been considered sufficient, but although on two occasions the play had been so close that extra holes were necessary to decide a tie.

The announcement of the meeting was made today by Miss Harriet Curtis, secretary pro tem of the association. The annual meeting of the association will be held on June 8th, 10th, 11th and 12th. The winners of the trophy and prize medals will go to the winners and the champion will have the honor of having her name engraved on the association cup.

Haverhill, April 22.—The supreme court will be called upon to probate the will of Elizabeth G. Bradley, who died in this city last February, as Fred C. Chase of Lowell, a nephew, has filed in the probate court of Essex county an appeal from the decision of that court, basing his action on the allegation "that the instrument was not properly signed and that it never was intended for her last will."

Mrs. Bradley left an estate of $8000 and after bequeathing $1000 to the Plaislow, N. H., public library and $4000 more in specific bequests, she set aside the residue for the advancement of socialism, and named Rev. Geo. E. Littlefield of Westwood, an ex-pastor of the Unitarian church here, and Ralph E. Gardner of this city, as trustees of the fund.

Henry W. Barnes of Lowell was named as executor of the will and on the document which was filed in the probate court, Ralph E. Gardner appeared as counsel for Mr. Barnes.

At the time the will was filed it was noted in court that it was not signed by the testator, but Mr. Gardner took the ground that the will was in her handwriting and that it was plain that it was her last will and testament. He was sustained by the probate court and the will allowed March 14.

SEARCH OF RUINS

Resulted in Finding of Man's Body

SEVERLY, April 22.—The body of Joseph Phillips, the missing hostler, was found when a search of the ruins of the livery stable of Fred K. Warner was made by the firemen today. Phillips slept in the stable and could not be found after the building caught fire last night. The bodies of eleven horses were uncovered today, and it is believed that five or six other horses were burned to death. Although the fire in the Warner stable is believed to have been due to crossed electric wires, the theory that it was of incendiary origin received some impetus by an investigation of the other barns on Union street about 4 a. m. The barns which were used as a furniture storage house were badly damaged, causing an estimated loss of more than $5000.
